CONTRACTS.

GRANGEGORMAN MENTAL HOSPITAL.
TENDERS INVITED.

The Joint Committee invite Tenders for the following supplies to Grangegorman Mental Hospital, Dublin, and Portrane Mental Hospital, Donabate, County Dublin:—

FOR SIX MONTHS, COMMENCING 1st OCTOBER, 1922.
1. BEEF AND MUTTON.
2. FLOUR AND BRAN.
3. FISH, ICE, AND CHICKENS.
4. OTHER PROVISIONS (including Margarine, Butter, Eggs, Bacon, Pigs' Heads, Sugar, Rice, Oatmeal, Split Peas, Salt, Shell Cocoa, Sundry Groceries, and Mineral Waters).
5. SOAP AND CHANDLERY.
6. TOBACCO AND SNUFF.
FOR 18 MONTHS, COMMENCING 1st OCTOBER, 1922.
7. BOOKS, PRINTING, AND STATIONERY.

Printed Forms of Tender (none other will be considered), and, where required, information as to probable quantities, may be obtained from the Storekeeper, Grangegorman Mental Hospital but such particulars shall in no way bind the Joint Committee, as they reserve the right to order a greater or lesser quantity, or, if they consider it desirable, to cease ordering any article altogether.

Standard samples of supplies may be inspected at the Storekeeper's Office, Grangegorman. ALL TENDERS MUST BE BASED ON THE SUPPLY OF GOODS SIMILAR IN EVERY RESPECT TO THESE STANDARD SAMPLES, which must be personally inspected, and cannot be sent by post to intending contractors.

Unless where specially requested in Tender Forms parties tendering must not furnish their own samples or specifications. Where samples are requested and furnished they must be sent in sealed packages separately from tenders.

All contracts entered into by the Joint Committee must be executed entirely by Trade Union Labour.

Sealed Tenders, endorsed on outside, "Tender for ———," to be deposited in the tender box in the Office of the undersigned no later than 2 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, September 21st 1922, for consideration by the Joint Committee at any time within ten days thereof, during which period no tenders may be withdrawn. (Late tenders will not under any circumstances be received or considered by the Joint Committee).

The Joint Committee do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.
(By Order),
W. J. MURPHY,
Chief Clerk.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The death of Rev. Harold J. Chapman, who has passed away after five weeks' illness, is a great loss to the Methodist Church, which he entered in 1896. He was an original preacher and an zealous worker.

A very interesting afternoon was spent in the garden of the Manse at Fintona. Tea was accompanied by a concert, which was greatly enjoyed.

Enniskillen District Synod has just been held at Fintona. Rev. William Moore, Chairman of the Synod, presided. The Fintona congregation hospitably entertained the members of the Synod to luncheon and tea.

BOY SEVERELY INJURED.

William Taplin (14), 109 Marlborough street, Dublin, was removed to Jervis street Hospital yesterday suffering from injuries caused by a hair-teasing machine. His left arm was crushed and he sustained a scalp wound.

U.S. MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSED STEADY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Stocks opened irregular during early operations. Realising and bear selling caused weakness, especially in Railroads, the latter being also affected by rumours of a receivership being appointed for the Chicago and Great Western Railroad. Chicago and Great Western Preferred broke 7¼ and Chicago Great Western Bonds 9½ points, but in the later dealings bullish activities were continued in Oils, Chemicals, Food, and Equipments, this promoting some hardening of prices in most of the early weak shares. The market closed steady.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

WHEAT—Spots weak 1c. to 6c. lower. Sixty-five boatloads of wheat engaged for export to-day. The visible supply of wheat in Canada has increased 1,449,000 bushels on the week, and now totals 8,796,000. Receipts—Atlantic 935,000, last year 659,000; clearances 546,000, last year 685,000.

FLOUR quiet.

CORN—Spot steady and unaltered. Exporters engaged to-day 25 boatloads of corn. The following are last week's clearances:—Wheat, 8,431,000; corn, 2,214,000; and oats, 828,000 bushels; flour, 210,000 barrels. Receipts—Atlantic 156,000, last year 31,000; clearances 81,000, last year 63,000.

LARD—Cash steady at 5 points advance.

COFFEE opened steady, 1 point to 4 points up, and went higher on a more active spot demand and buying by trade interests; then reacted under selling by commission houses and liquidation, the market closing easy, 7 to 9 points down. Spot steady and unchanged. Approximate sales—16,000. October, 9.63; December, 9.62; March, 9.70; May, 9.70; July, 9.68.

RUBBER firmer, ⅛c. to ¼c. higher; first latex crepe, 14½; smoked ribbed sheets, 14½.

SUGAR easy, 4 points lower for Centrifugal Cuban; Porto Rico nominal. Futures easy, 5 to 4 points down. October, 3.20; December, 3.29; March, 3.11; May, 3.21. 10,000 bags of Cuban sugar were sold to-day to refiners at 4.95 for prompt shipment.

COTTON opened steady and 13 to 8 points up, and further improved on bullish private crop news, improved Wall street conditions, and the trade buying; then eased under lower cables and Southern and foreign selling, but again moved up on reported greater activity among New England spinners, improved spots, and Wall street support. Despite some late realising, the market closed steady at 34 to 29 points gain. Spot steady at 30 points rise. New Orleans spot advanced 12 points. It is rumoured that the National Ginners' Association will issue the crop condition as 49.4 and the total crop 9,900,000 running bales. Receipts—Atlantic 9,000, Gulf 26,000. Exports—Britain 4,000, Continent 5,000. September, 21.60; October, 21.73; November, 21.86; December, 21.98; January, 21.86; February, 21.93; March, 21.99; April, 21.95; May, 21.91; June, 21.82; July, 21.73; August, unquoted.

MINNEAPOLIS—Wheat weak, 1⅛c. down; No. 1 Northern spring, 108.

WINNIPEG—Wheat opened steady, ⅛c. to ¼c. up, and closed easy, ⅛c. to ⅜c. cheaper; October, 95½; December, 93½. Oats easy, ⅛c. lower; October, 41.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

WHEAT opened steady and ¼c. up, and, after improving further on unfavourable threshing weather and bullish Liverpool cables, took a downward turn on reports of a good yield from Canada, larger North-West receipts, lower cash markets, increasing stocks, outsiders holding off, and liquidation. The market closed easy, 1⅛c. to ⅜c. down. Spot steady. No. 2 hard winter, 102½; No. 3 hard winter, nominal. September, 99½; December, 100⅞; May, 106⅛.

CORN opened steady at ⅛c. advance, and went higher on small stocks and commission house buying; then declined under larger country offerings and receipts, a poor cash and outside inquiry, commission house selling, and liquidation. Covering of September shorts caused an irregular finish, with September unaltered and other months ⅛c. lower. No. 2 mixed, spot, 63½. September, 62½; December, 56⅞; May, 60⅛.

OATS easy at ⅛c. fall. September, 34½; December, 34½; May, 37½.

PROVISIONS opened barely steady, and declined with grain and Europe, and also on a slow investment demand and traders unloading; then rallied partially on a firm hog market and buying by packers. The market closed quiet, with lard 7½ points up to 5 points down and ribs 15 points lower. Lard—September, 10.25; October, 10.25; January, 8.85. Pork unquoted. Ribs—September, 9.85.

BACON steady and unchanged. The receipts of hogs at 15 principal Western centres, including Chicago, since March 1, total (amended) 14,268,000, against 13,684,000 for the same season last year.

HOGS firm, with light 10 to 25 points up and heavy unchanged.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY.

At the weekly meeting of the Committee of the Dublin Incorporated Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Mr. G. W. Ledwich presided, and the following were also present:—Mr. J. Patterson, Mrs. Power O'Donoghue, Miss Overend, Mr. W. H. Wilkinson, M.R.C.V.S.; Dr. Maurice Dockrell, L.R.C.P. and S.I.; and Mr. Joseph Abbott.

Seven cases of cruelty were reported by the Inspectors during the week. Three were ordered to be summoned; two to be cautioned.

A contribution of 10s. from Mrs. E. W. Hare was thankfully acknowledged.

IRISH CROP REPORTS.

GOOD YIELDS EXPECTED.

Irish crop and live stock conditions at 1st September, 1922, as compiled from reports furnished for each county, are reported to be as follows by the Department of Agriculture:—

August, for the most part, was a succession of cold showery days. There were, however, occasional spells of good drying weather, which allowed hay to be saved in fairly good order. The continued effect of rain and the low temperature delayed the ripening of the corn crops, which in the latter counties will not be ready to cut for two or three weeks later than usual. A couple of excessively wet days at the end of the month caused damage from flooding in the low-lying districts of some of the Northern and Western counties; this continuous downpour also lodged fields of oats on rich soils in such counties as Leitrim and Monaghan, and will make the cutting of these more tedious. Pastures benefited from the rains, and carried plenty of herbage throughout. It was considered in Co. Carlow that grazing fields showed a higher proportion of white clover than usual. Stock of all kinds made good progress, and store cattle put on more condition than during July. Dairy cows maintained the flow of milk well. Lambs made weight satisfactorily, and breeding ewes were likewise well fleshed.

In the earlier counties, such as Co. Carlow, autumn-sown wheat has all been cut and harvested in good order. Yield is expected to be average, and is put at ten barrels per statute acre: the grain is described as well filled and of excellent quality. In other counties much of the crop is yet in stock. Some threshing has been done in Co. Wexford, and the yields generally are described as good. Plots of spring-sown wheat are still green in North Tipperary, and would be helped to ripen by heat. In some Southern counties the wheat crop is considered the best cereal of the season.

The oat crop is variable, and is generally light on poor soil. Cutting has begun in the Midland and Southern counties, and is now well advanced. Some of the crop has been threshed in County Cork, and a few samples of new white oats have been already sold at from 10s. to 12s. per cwt.: the yield and quality of the grain is described as good. In the Northern and Western counties the crop is ripening slowly, and cutting will not begin until mid September. In Co. Louth the crop is regarded as fair, but not so good as last season's.

Barley is described as a splendid crop in Co. Carlow. Ripening is slow, but the grain appears plump and well filled, and may yield up to 12 barrels per statute acre. Cutting began in Co. Kildare at 21st August. In most counties very little has as yet been harvested. In Co. Cork the crop is stated to be standing well, which will facilitate harvesting greatly: the yield in that county is expected to be at least average.

The small plots of rye grown in the Counties of Dublin, Meath, Cavan, Monaghan, Leitrim, Mayo, and Roscommon are stated to be fairly good, and in some cases harvesting has begun. In most counties there is usually more value placed on the straw for thatching purposes than on the grain for sale or for feeding to stock.

Most of the flax crop, which is much smaller in area than last year, has been pulled and is now in steep. In County Monaghan good fields were the exception; some were medium and many were poor. It is believed that owing to the coldness of the growing season, yield will be poor in proportion to the bulk of straw. Dry, firm weather is badly needed for the handling of the crop.

The potato crop is generally stated to be of exceptional promise, and in County Louth the prospect is described as the best for years. Blight did not appear in some counties till the closing days of August, and fields which have been sprayed are still in strong healthy foliage. In some of the Southern counties fields left unsprayed were showing marked trace of disease effect at the end of the month. In County Roscommon potatoes are regarded as the most satisfactory crop of the year; in some counties the retail price is as low as 6d. per stone.

Root crops made great improvement during August. Mangels, though patchy, made good growth, and may yet turn out close to average; the coldness of the season was quite unfavourable to this crop. Turnips are poor and uneven in general, but are showing improvement from recent rains; they have grown well since mid-July. Early-sown fields are by far the best; some late sowings now show fair promise.

Supplies of hay are plentiful in all counties. Notwithstanding the broken weather both first and second crop hay were saved in good order. The crop in general is of fine quality as fodder, except some of that portion saved during August. It is reported from different counties that there is little or no bad hay this season. In Offaly hay is stated to be a record crop of fair quality. In County Louth the price was around 3s. per cwt., and in Meath from 3s. to 5s. per cwt., according to quality. In County Westmeath first crop hay sold at 5s. and old meadow at 4s. per cwt. In County Wexford the range for top quality hay was from 3s. to 4s. Supplies are plentiful in Counties Galway and Mayo, and prices there are as low as from 2s. to 2s. 10d. per cwt.

CATTLE.

Large supplies of cattle were on offer. Fat beasts declined somewhat in price from July. The average price in Midland counties was from 50s. to 54s. per cwt., live weight, and in a few cases 55s. was obtained for choice finished sorts. Aged stores in forward condition met with steady demand; current rates in County Westmeath were from 41s. 6d. to 50s. per cwt.; in County Galway fairs good stores were bought at 40s. per cwt. In County Roscommon two-year-old stores brought from £18 to £23 per head, and three-year-old stores from £22 to £26. There was a good demand for milch cows in Midland fairs, and really good cows made up to £30. In Western fairs the range for these was from £24 to £30 each. Dropped calves sold at from £2 to £3 each in County Galway; in County Westmeath as much as £4 to £5 each was paid.

The average prices paid by creameries during the month for whole milk (separated milk being returned) were—in Leinster, around 8d. per gallon; in Munster, from 5½d. to 7½d.; in Ulster from 6d. to 7d.; and in Connaught around 7d. Supplies are described as plentiful and good for the season. There has been little or no falling off in the yield of cows noticeable in any county.

Prices for fat sheep kept the same level. In County Wexford young ewes and hoggets cashed at from £3 15s. to £5, and fat wethers at from £4 10s. to £5 each. Lambs were somewhat cheaper. In County Meath fairs prices went from 42s. to 60s. each, according to quality. In County Galway good white lambs fetched around 50s. each. Breeding ewes met with brisk demand in all counties.

Pork was marketed in fair supply. Prices, however, were lower. In County Carlow live weight prices per cwt. dropped from 87s. to 75s. and 76s.; the range in County Kildare was from 77s. 6d. to 80s., while 85s. was current in Offaly. In Counties Cork and Limerick the dead weight price dropped from 115s. to 104s. and 105s. per cwt. The range of prices in Northern markets was also lower at from 120s. to 127s. 6d. per cwt. Young pigs continued to sell better proportionately than bacon pigs. In County Kilkenny, markets were readily cleared at 50s. to 70s. each, and similar rates were current in Northern counties.

Horses showed no improvement in price. Good young working farm horses were easily bought at £15 to £22, and very few reached as high as £30. There was little or no trade done in hunters; a few young horses likely to make hunters changed hands in County Kildare at from £30 to £35 each. In Offaly, yearolds sold at from £5 to £10, and the average price of 1½-year-olds in County Meath was around £8 10s. each.

TINSMITH'S DEATH.

INQUEST IN LONGFORD.

Yesterday an inquest was held in the County Home, Longford, on the body of Thomas McDonagh, a tinsmith, who died of wounds on Sunday.

John McDonagh stated that he was a member of a camp of travelling tinkers. He identified the remains as those of his father, whom he last saw alive in Longford about 12 noon on Friday. He next saw him on the same night lying on the roadway covered with blood. He did not see him engaged in any row.

Medical evidence showed that McDonagh was unconscious when admitted to hospital, and was suffering from concussion and compression of the brain. He died on Sunday evening. There was a large cut on the centre of the forehead, from which he bled profusely, and the left side of the face was very much discoloured and bruised. The left eye was closed. The injuries were the result of direct violence, and could have been caused by a blow of any hard object. Death was due to hemmorhage.

The Crown Solicitor, who appeared for the police authorities, said that depositions had been made by two women, who had since disappeared. One of them had stated that she saw a man throw a stone which hit McDonagh.

The jury found that McDonagh met his death by being hit with some heavy object, such as a stone, and that the person who inflicted the injuries was guilty of manslaughter. They added a rider that they were of opinion that the movements of people of the tramp class should be restricted on fair and market days in Longford, and that they should be made to leave the town before 4 p.m.

Mr. Garden, secretary of the Sydney Trades and Labour Council, has left Australia for England, Germany, Russia, and America, to study industrial conditions on behalf of the workers.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS.

ARTILLERYMEN DEPART.—Two hundred and eighty-five men of the Royal Horse Artillery left Kingstown for Holyhead by the mail steamer last night. The men travelled to the pier from Dublin in motor lorries flying the Union Jack, and were in the most excellent and exuberant spirits. Two armoured cars escorted the party. A hundred artillerymen left the North Wall for Holyhead last night. The detachments are going to Aldershot.

FALSE PRETENCES CHARGE.—Kathleen Knott (alias King and Shanahan) was charged in the Dublin Police Court yesterday with obtaining board and lodging from Mrs. Bennett, Blackhall place, by false pretences. It was alleged that she told the landlady that she was a doctor. The accused woman was remanded for a week.

MOTORISTS FINED.—Several motor prosecutions were dealt with in the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday. Fines ranging from 1s. to £6 were imposed. The majority of summonses were for being without a driver's licence. In one case a fine of £6 was inflicted for exceeding the speed limit.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION.—James Fox, of no fixed address, was charged in the Dublin Police Court yesterday with stealing from Miss Mary Anne Kelly, 10 Colliers' avenue, a purse containing £1 1s. 10d., and with having in his possession a bicycle, a Gillette razor, and a pliers. He was remanded for a week.

ULSTER.

NEW "CITY" LINER.—The City of Nagpur, a new steamer completed by Messrs. Workman Clark and Co., Ltd., for the City Line fleet of the Ellerman Lines, Ltd., ran a series of successful trials in Belfast Lough on Tuesday, at the conclusion of which the vessel left for Glasgow. The steamer has been designed and equipped for passenger service between Great Britain and India, and is 900 feet in length, with a tonnage of 10,200 tons.

BIGAMIST SENTENCED.—Frederick George Smith, who pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the Recorder of Belfast yesterday. Margaret Gillespie stated that she had been married to the prisoner for seven months, and did not know about his former marriage. She said that she was prepared to continue living with him.

ROAD PERILS.—A verdict of accidental death was returned in Belfast yesterday at an inquest on the body of Hugh Cotter, aged 12, of Waterford street, who was killed by a motor lorry, which skidded when the driver endeavoured to avoid fowls on the road.

TICKLING.—Two men were fined £2 each at Strabane Petty Sessions for attempting to catch fish in their hands from the River Mourne at Siggartown.

Horses purchased in Ireland for the Dutch Government were shipped from Dublin last night.

The 1st Battalion the Norfolk Regiment left Belfast yesterday afternoon for Colchester.

Mayo County Council is receiving a further sum of £5,000 for the relief of distress in the county.

Galway County Council, at a meeting on Saturday, decided to repair all main road bridges in the county.

Yesterday morning a patrol of police on duty at Clawney, Falls road, Belfast, was fired on from the waste ground at Beechmount avenue. No one was hit.

Rathdown (Co. Wicklow) District Council has been served with further claims for compensation for the seizure of cattle and the destruction of crops and machinery, amounting to about £450.

MAYO AND PEACE.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S VIEWS.

The resolution of the Roscommon County Council regarding peace came on for consideration at the Mayo County Council meeting, when it was decided by 5 votes to 4 to postpone its consideration.

Mr. Michael Lavelle said that it would be unwise of them to consider any such proposal while the National Parliament was in session. The men elected to the Dail had the support of the people of Ireland in conducting the affairs of the nation.

Mr. Sean O Ceallaigh said that they all had confidence in the Government, but if they could help towards peace it would be to their credit and to the benefit of the nation. Between dead and wounded since the hostilities started 950 Irishmen had fallen, and that was more than had been knocked out during the War of Independence.

Mr. John O'Boyle said that he believed the Government was the only authority to deal with the question of peace. It was newly-elected, and, as far as the will of the people was allowed to be expressed, they supported the present Government.

Mr. P. O'Hara agreed. There were men fighting against the National Government now who would not fight against the Black-and-Tans, but instead left the country rather than take up arms against England.

Mr. M. Staunton proposed the adoption of the resolution. There was a great deal said about the will of the people, but was this question of the war before the people at the election? A great many of the men who were on the hills now were on the hills before.

Mr. Corrigan—If we can stop hostilities by passing this resolution we should adopt it.

Mr. T. Walsh said the Irish Parliament was the body to deal with the peace question.

Mr. O'Boyle—We want peace on the basis that the majority of the votes of the people will count, not the majority of guns.

DISCUSSION AT BALLINROBE.

At Ballinrobe District Council a resolution was moved, expressing deep regret at the death of General Collins, and "imploring the present members of the Government to form a compromise by some means, with a view to putting an end to the bloodshed of brother Irishmen, and join hands with them before it is too late."

The Chairman protested that the request should be deleted from the resolution.

Clerk—But you must stop the bloodshed or you will have no country. No Government or country could stand that.

The Chairman said that the Government had done their best for peace before they went to war.

The portion of the resolution objected to was deleted, and the vote of sympathy passed.

The Waterford resolution on peace was marked "read."

ULSTER'S NEW POLICE.

METHOD OF DISTRIBUTION.

The Ministry of Home Affairs, Northern Ireland, has informed the Antrim County Council that under the Constabulary Act (Northern Ireland), 1922 (12 and 13 Geo. V., ch. 8), which is now operative, the Royal Ulster Constabulary is established as the police force for Northern Ireland.

The letter states:—"The total number of sergeants and constables available for distribution amongst the various counties and county boroughs is 2,718, while the number of the Royal Irish Constabulary hitherto so distributed was 2,364.

"Before prescribing the free quota for the several counties and boroughs, the Minister desires, in accordance with the undertaking given in the House, to intimate for the information of your Council the system which it is proposed to adopt in fixing the new free quota as a provisional measure, and pending the further consideration of this question by the Police Committee.

"The free quota as fixed for the Royal Irish Constabulary will be taken as the basis of calculation, and this figure will be increased in the case of each county and each county borough in the porportion which the new total of men available for distribution bears to the old figure. Under this arrangement the free quota for Antrim, which was formally fixed at 315, will now be increased to 362.

"It will be understood that up to the latter figure the cost of the police will be paid entirely out of the moneys provided by Parliament. Should it be found necessary, however, at any time to draft an additional force into any county or county borough, half the cost of the number of men, in excess of the free quota, will be chargeable to the county or county borough concerned.

"Neither the rate of charge nor the method of its calculation has been definitely fixed, and it is proposed to postpone the prescribing of the rate for, say, a period of three months, until figures of the actual expenditure in respect of the police service are available on which to base a precise calculation."

TYRONE MURDER CHARGE.

The hearing was continued before two magistrates at Clogher yesterday of the charge against John Hackett, of Aghamilkin, of murdering his father-in-law, Bernard M'Caughey, of Aghamilkin, an old man of 70, on August 18 last, the dead man's charred remains being found in a burning house. A District Inspector gave evidence of the finding of the body under a bed in the burning house. The accused man assisted the police to put out the fire. The prisoner was again remanded.

The Abbé Amourdre, who remained at his post as curé of Notre-Dame de France, in Petrograd during the Russian Revolution, has been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour.

Child's Eczema
With Skin Eruptions and Blackheads. Itched intensely but soon completely Cured by Germolene.

Master Rudge.

Mrs. Rudge, 27 Edenham street, Westbourne Park, London, says: "My little boy's face was in an awful state with eczema. At first it was only his chin, but it spread all over his cheeks and brow, and it itched terribly. He could not keep from scratching, and of course that made it worse. I had advice, but nothing did any good. There were pimples and blackheads, too, and I was at my wits' end what to do. Then one day I read about Germolene and tried it. The result was wonderful. Germolene soothed at once, and there was no more itching.

"After a few dressings the rash disappeared entirely, and new healthy skin appeared. I continued using Germolene for blackheads that remained. I used Germolene Soap, too, and the result is that my boy's face is now as clear and well as ever."

Germolene is matchless as a remedy for
Eczema, Psoriasis, Rashes, Piles, Itching, Ulcers, Skin Eruptions, Cuts and Burns, Ringworm, Pimples, Chapped Hands, Chilblains

OBITUARY.

THE REV. R. B. COOKE.

The death occurred late on Monday night in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast, of the Rev. R. B. Cooke, M.A., All Saints', Belfast. Mr. Cooke was taken ill while on his way to the church in the morning to perform a wedding ceremony. He had not been in robust health for some time, and a year ago he visited America for the benefit of his health. Mr. Cooke was actively concerned with several charitable institutions in Belfast, and had been joint hon. sec. to the Hospital Saturday Committee for a number of years. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and ordained in Londonderry in 1884. From 1885 to 1887 he was curate at Whitehouse; for the next three years vicar of Dunaford; from 1890 to 1894 rector of Bright, Co. Down; and from 1894 to 1899 rector of Dunaghy and Killagan, Co. Antrim. He was then appointed to All Saints', Belfast. Mr. Cooke leaves a widow and family.

RAILWAY LINES TORN UP.

GOODS TRAINS LOOTED.

There has been further damage and raiding on the Great Southern and Western Railway system. The company's goods store at Belmont was raided and foodstuffs stolen.

A goods train from Waterford to Maryborough was stopped in the section between Mullinavat and Thomastown, waggons opened, and goods looted. Another goods train from Waterford to Kilkenny was stopped by armed men between Mullinavat and Ballyhale, and goods interfered with. Still another train was "held up" near Athlone, and foodstuffs, tobacco, drapery, etc., looted.

An underbridge between Thurles and Goold's Cross was maliciously damaged by fire, temporarily preventing a service beyond Thurles from Dublin on Monday. Late in the afternoon the damage was made good, and trains proceeded to Dundrum, the furthest point on the main line, with which the company have been maintaining a service. Yesterday morning, however, further advices were to hand that the line between Lisduff and Templemore has been torn up, and, in addition, a culvert has been blown up in the same section, stopping the train service as from Dublin beyond Ballybrophy until this damage has been repaired.

The damage on the Kildare and Kilkenny Branch between Gowran and Bagenalstown has since been repaired, and the through service has been resumed.

CANADIAN CATTLE.

CONFERENCE IN LONDON.

The Colonial Office makes the following statement:—

His Majesty's Government have been considering the steps to be taken to give effect to the resolutions adopted by the House of Commons on July 24, and by the House of Lords on July 26 regarding the admission of Canadian cattle. They have been in communication with the Canadian Government, and it has been arranged to hold a conference of representatives of the two Governments in London at an early date. It is hoped that as the result of the conference it will be possible to arrive at a basis of agreement which could be embodied in a bill to be introduced into Parliament during the autumn session. It is expected that the Canadian representatives will reach London towards the end of September.

DEATH NEAR A GAS METER.

At an inquest at Manchester on John Alfred White, aged 70, whose body was found on Thursday close to a gas meter in a neighbour's house, it was shown that his left hand contained a number of coins, and in his right was a pair of pliers. The lock had been torn off the meter. There was no smell of gas, and the medical testimony was that death was due to heart failure.

The Hungarian Legation states that reports to the effect that Hungarian officers are implicated in a plot to assassinate the Kings of Rumania and Yugo-Slavia, and also the President of Czecho-Slovakia, Dr. Masaryk, and Dr. Benes are devoid of foundation.

DUBLIN FOOTPADS.

SUBURBAN DWELLERS TERRORISED.

For some time past there have been numerous complaints from people who have been stopped in the streets of Dublin and in the suburbs by armed men, who use threats to extract money from them. These robbers and footpads are no respectors of persons, for even women are not immune from their unwelcome attentions.

A few nights ago a gentleman, who lives in the Rathmines district, had a disquieting experience. He was going home at about 10.30, in company with his daughter, aged 17. On Palmerston road they heard footsteps, and on turning round two men confronted them in a threatening manner. One was about forty years of age, and the other was a much younger man. The senior produced a revolver and gave the order, "Hands up," which was not obeyed. He then repeated "Hands up, or I'll shoot you and your daughter." The gentleman replied, "Very well, shoot," and his courage seemed to upset the footpads, for they moved off with the parting direction, "Don't you follow us." Some persons came along and joined in the pursuit of the men, who, however, escaped.

The gentleman displayed great courage and coolness right throughout, but his daughter was naturally terrified. The incident was reported to the police barrack at Rathmines and to General Headquarters, Portobello Barracks. This is only an isolated case of the many which are occurring. It is felt that every effort should be made by the citizens, in co-operation with the authorities, to stamp out a system of hooliganism which is bringing discredit on the city.

FAILED TO HALT.

CO. GALWAY MAN WOUNDED.

Near Gort Workhouse, on Saturday night, Michael Fitzgerald, who failed to halt, was shot by a national sentry at the workhouse gate. Some weeks ago bombs were flung into the workhouse, where national troops are quartered, and an attack followed on some of the soldiers on the street, one of them being killed. Since that time the troops have strict orders to observe all precautions.

Fitzgerald, with a companion, was walking towards the gate of the workhouse at about 11 p.m. on Saturday, when he was called upon to halt. After the third challenge a warning shot was fired over the heads of the two men. They then, it is reported, took cover, fire was opened upon them, and Fitzgerald fell seriously wounded. He was taken to St. Bride's Home, Galway, where he lies in a precarious condition.

ARRESTS NEAR KINGSTOWN.

Seven men were arrested by national troops in the Glasthule district (near Kingstown) on Monday night. They were taken to the Harbour Barracks, Kingstown.

ARRESTS IN COUNTY GALWAY.

Troops operating from Galway early on Sunday morning scoured the Bushypark district, and made five arrests. On Sunday evening a party of troops operating from Galway patrolled the Spiddal and Knock districts. In Knock two local irregulars were arrested. The seven prisoners have been lodged in Galway Jail. During the patrol an important irregular leader had a narrow escape from capture.

POLICEMAN INTIMIDATED.

Armed men approached a Metropolitan constable who was on patrol outside the post office at Sandycove at midnight on Monday, and, presenting revolvers, ordered him to clear off. National troops subsequently visited the neighbourhood, but the men had disappeared.

ARMED ROBBERIES.

Mr. Goss's shop, Granby Row, Dublin, was entered by armed men on Monday night, and the contents of the till were taken away. The men subsequently stopped a man named Kelly and took a cycle from him.

National troops have arrested Professor McDevitt at Irishtown, Co. Mayo. He was reputed to be leader of the irregulars operating in the district.

ROBANOR, ch. c. by Lomond—Bobbin (Mr. H. King), 9-0

The result is as open as one could wish. There is a general impression here that whatever beats Ramus will win, but there are a dozen or more genuine tips in other directions. Silurian, for example, is much fancied, and Royal Lancer is preferred by many to his stable companion, Diligence. However, must hold a great chance, for there is no question about his staying, and, if he gets away well from the gate, he should win. Other selections are:—

RAMUS

Cleveland Handicap—Cortona.
Milton Plate—Delightful.
Bradgate Park Nursery—Jarvie.
Tattersall Sale Stakes—Brownhylda.
Rufford Abbey Handicap—Bucket.

GOLF.

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

PORTRUSH, Tuesday.

The outlook in the morning, when the 32 matches in the second round of the Open Championship was taken in hand was rather cheerless, with rain falling steadily, to the accompaniment of a stiff breeze, but it eased off before noon, and, except for an occasional shower, of brief duration, the remainder of the afternoon was, on the whole, favourable for golfing.

Sixteen matches made up the list for the morning, but none of the favourites, except Munn and Soulby, were out. Carter, Wilson Smyth (the holder), Colonel Tillie, Major Hezlett, and Captain Waddell being engaged in the evening, when fourteen matches, which concluded the round, were decided. A quintet of the cross-Channel entries took part in the forenoon round, but only two of these survived—Dr. Grace, an Irishman, resident in London, who entered from Oldfold Manor Club, and Charles Gibb, of Kilmarnock.

There was not much outstanding interest in the morning play beyond the golf in the match between Soulby and Ward. The latter put up some very good golf against the Queen's University man; but Soulby, who has added many yards to his long game, and has greatly improved his iron play, was too good for him. As evidence of the strength of Soulby's wooden club play, it will suffice to record that, against the wind, in two wooden club shots to the fourth hole, which was increased to 464 yards, he was past the pin. He then holed a long putt for a very excellent 3. He was now 2 up and playing well within himself. He turned 3 up, and, despite a bad lapse on the sixth green, where he missed a one foot putt for 4, he was out in 37. Ward fought hard to reduce his arrears, and looked like making a fight of it up to the twelfth hole, but he lost that also. He became 3 down, and from that point Soulby went on to achieve victory by 4 and 3.

Dr. Gaussen held his own well with Ector Munn up to the turn, where they were all flat; but Munn went into the lead at the twelfth, and winning the next three in 4, 2, 4, made success certain, a half at the sixteenth giving him the match by 3 and 2.

That the old school can still hold its own with the younger generation was made evident by another fine display given by the veteran Harold Reade against the Light Blue, H. G. Joseph. It is 25 years since Reade won the Close Championship. On Saturday last he was second to Captain Carter in the Stroke Competition, and to-day he beat the young 'Varsity man by 3 and 2. He was 1 down at the ninth, but his steadiness on the way home stood him in good stead. He squared at the tenth with a 3, and took the next in 4, and of the succeeding five holes he won the fourteenth and sixteenth in 3's and the match by 3 and 2.

The importance of good putting was again exemplified in a remarkable manner in the match between Todd and Small. The latter was fancied to go far in the contest, and from tee to green he outplayed the Holywood youth, who was always playing the odd; but Small's putting was superb. On seven of the greens he required only one putt, and his uncanny accuracy enabled him to spring a big surprise by a 4 and 2 victory.

A. B. Babington was badly off his game against Gibb, of Kilmarnock. His wooden play was very weak, and turning 5 down he was beaten by 7 and 6 by a very finished golfer.

Carter survived the second round, a farcical match ending in his favour by 8 and 7, his opponent, Ewart, not winning a hole. Carter was out in 37.

ANGLING.

BANN AND TRIBUTARIES.

Such a great flood recently went down the Bann that salmon fishing is out of question this week. However, new fish are coming into the lower reaches of the river, and the fish that were lying in the lower waters are now on the run through the upper waters to Lough Neagh and its tributaries. Before the big spate a few fish were killed about the Coleraine reaches, and on the tidal waters a good many sea trout were killed on those old favourite flies, Peter Ross, Postman, and Fiery Brown, amongst the most successful anglers being Mr. Moore, Derry; Mr. Cannin and Mr. Darragh, Coleraine. Not a few of the heavy trout, sea trout, and brown trout in the tidal waters are taken on the mackerel bait rigged on an Archer spinner. In fact, the heaviest trout are got in this way, as well as on the "eelskin." One of the drawbacks of this mode of fishing is that the percentage of landed fish is small as compared with the number hooked, probably not more than half a dozen out of a score. The salmon that were in the Cutts Pool (at the Salmon Leap) and Loughran Pool have all gone up stream. At Kilrea, Portglenone, Movanagher, and other centres, the river is so heavy that fishing is impossible. Flax water, if any, has disappeared. Anyway, its effects were not felt.

SWIMMING.

POLO.

ALL-IRELAND CLUB.

THE SEPTEMBER TOURNAMENT.

At one time yesterday it looked as if polo would be out of the question at the A.I.P.C. enclosure, so unfavourable was the weather, but the rain ceased prior to the start, and the teams engaged in the first tie of the September tournament lined out up to time. The sides were Linnets and the Larks. There was never much between them at any time, and the issue was in doubt down to the last minute when Major Kirkwood hit a brilliant goal to give Linnets victory.

LINNETS (4) v. LARKS (3).

Larks pressed at the start and following a scrimmage at close range the ball was sent wide. Mr. Slocock made headway from the hit out, but Mr. Tyrrell cleared to mid-field. Linnets got down subsequently, and a good shot by Major Kirkwood went inches wide. There was no score at the bell. Linnets went into the lead early in the second chukkar, Mr. O'Reilly hitting through from close range. Just at this point Mr. Malcolm received a nasty blow on the elbow from a stick, and was obliged to retire. His place on the Larks team was taken by Mr. Shackleton. Larks made the pace subsequently, and Mr. P. Leonard equalised. They had only just begun the third period when Mr. Larminie obtained the lead for Linnets, but the others got away from the throw-in and following some close exchanges Mr. Tyrrell hit a fine goal with a shot under his pony. Mr. P. Leonard scored for Larks in the next minute, but so far it was either sides' game, and they entered upon the last chukkar on level terms. Mr. P. Leonard was responsible for some clever stick work at mid-field, and placed nicely for Mr. J. Leonard, who, however, sent behind. A drenching downpour fell during the last few minutes of the game. Linnets were defending for a time, but Mr. O'Reilly brought off a fine clearance, and following good play at mid-field Major Kirkwood hit a brilliant goal, to give his side victory. Teams:—

Linnets—Mr. J. P. A. Larminie, Mr. E. S. Slocock, Mr. H. J. O'Reilly, and Major Kirkwood (back).

Larks—Mr. J. Leonard, jun.; Mr. P. J. Leonard, Mr. J. Malcolm, and Mr. T. P. Tyrrell (back).

Umpire—Mr. R. H. Usher.

To-morrow—Linnets v. Canaries, 4.15. Practice follows:—

LAWN TENNIS.

CRICKET.

MISS HARRINGTON'S XII. v. LEINSTER (UNDER 14) XII.

Quite a large crowd witnessed some bright juvenile cricket on the Leinster ground yesterday, when the girls completely outshone the boys, whom they defeated handsomely. A feature was the batting of the Misses M. Harrington and C. Dunne, the former carrying her bat for 62, which included 8 fours; and Miss C. Dunne hit up 54, in which there were seven boundaries. Miss E. Harrington, bowling in great style, captured seven wickets at a cost of 22 runs. Score:

BOXING.

DEMPSEY TO RE-VIST ENGLAND.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

The New York Times quotes Mr. Jack Kearns as stating that he and Dempsey will sail for England on November 6, their plans including a fight with Joe Beckett and a return match with Carpentier.

Mr. Kearns declared:—"English followers of boxing are keen to see Dempsey in action against their heavy-weight champion. Dempsey will tackle Beckett as a sort of warm up for a bout with Carpentier."—(Reuter.)

It will be recalled that a guarantee of 500,000 dollars was offered for Dempsey to fight Wills this season in New York, but the offer was declined.

HOCKEY.

LEINSTER BRANCH MEETING.

The annual general meeting will be held on Wednesday next, 20th inst., at 7.30 p.m., in the Mills' Hall, 8 Merrion row. Each affiliated club is entitled to send two delegates. Business—To receive hon. secretary and treasurer's reports, League secretary's returns, election of officers, etc., and to consider instituting a Senior Schools Cup in addition to Junior Schools Cup. New clubs desiring affiliation please communicate with the hon. secretary, James S. McMahon, 38 and 39 South Great George's street.

SMITHFIELD STRIKE ENDED.

The strike of cold storage workers in Smithfield market, London, has been settled at a meeting of employers and men. The men are to resume work under the old conditions of wages until June 1 next year, when, if there has been a sufficient fall in the cost of living, a percentage cut equal to that of the dockers may be made. There is to be no victimisation.

SHIPBUILDING SLUMP.

In Edinburgh yesterday the Central Committee of the Shipbuilding Employers' Federation met the representatives of the Shipyard Trade Unions to discuss the critical position of the industry in view of the unprecedented lack of orders and the steps to be taken to secure new orders. Colonel James Lithgow, of Port Glasgow, President of the Employers' Federation, was the chairman on behalf of the employers, and Mr. John Hill, of the Boilermakers' Society, acted as chairman on behalf of the workmen. The proceedings were private.

CONCILIATION BOARD'S RECORD.

The Board of Conciliation and Arbitration in the North of England manufactured iron and steel trade held its final meeting at Newcastle, after being in existence fifty-four years, during which it has dealt successfully with wages and disputes. Its functions have been merged in the Iron and Steel Trade Federation.

SUFFOCATED IN SAWDUST PIT.

An inquest was held in Belfast yesterday on the body of a lad named Charles Rodgers, aged 15½ years, Crimea street, who was described as a "fireman." The lad was found suffocated in a pit of shavings and sawdust on the premises of his employers, a firm of timber merchants. The Coroner returned a verdict of death from suffocation by accidentally falling into the pit, which he considered to be dangerous in its present state.

The four great miners' unions of Germany have issued a manifesto warning their members of the danger of listening to the Communists, who are now carrying on an active propaganda against them.

ARRESTS IN DUBLIN.

HABEAS CORPUS MOTIONS.

In the King's Bench Division yesterday, before Mr. Justice Gordon, the cases of the King (Beaumont) v. the Military Governor of Wellington Barracks and the King (White) v. same were listed on applications by Mr. Sean Beaumont, of No. 1 Clare street, Dublin, an inspector of Irish in the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, and Mr. James Robert White, of Lake Cottage, Cushendall, Co. Antrim, ex-captain in the Gordon Highlanders, for writs of habeas corpus directed to the Military Governor of Wellington Barracks to produce Mr. Beaumont and Mr. White and show by what authority the men were detained. The applications were made on the 5th inst., when it was stated that Mr. Beaumont was arrested on the night of the 22nd August at No. 1 Clare street, Dublin, by the national troops; that Mr. White, who was staying on a visit with him, was arrested at the same time and place, and that both were conveyed to Wellington Barracks and detained there.

Mr. Justice Gordon gave permission to serve notice on the proper authorities for that day.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan (instructed by Mr. Philip O'Reilly) now appeared for Mr. Beaumont and Mr. White; and Mr. Hugh Kennedy, K.C., Law Officer of the Provisional Government (instructed by Mr. M. H. Corrigan, Chief State Solicitor), appeared for the Provisional Government.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan said that after the time fixed for the sitting of the Court that morning he had been handed a long affidavit made by the Adjutant-General. He had not had time to finish the reading of it, but as the matter was urgent and as his client had been in prison for three weeks, he would ask that the matter be allowed to stand to the end of the list.

Mr. Justice Gordon—Although I can deal with the matter myself, still, perhaps, the parties might prefer to have a full Court.

Mr. Kennedy, K.C.—The applicant is in military custody in circumstances arising out of the existing state of affairs.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan—I have no knowledge of the exact position taken up by the Government, as the affidavit was not handed to me until after the time fixed for the sitting of the Court.

Mr. Kennedy—The military are very busy, and there was a little delay in getting the affidavit.

Mr. Justice Gordon—If you have a matter of substance that requires serious consideration the parties might prefer to have a full Court rather than one judge.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan—My client has already been in prison for three weeks without any charge against him, and there is the question of the time.

It was agreed that the case should stand over till a later hour. It was again subsequently mentioned, and it was agreed that it should be taken on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, Mr. Justice Gordon intimating that if he could not get any other judge or judges of the King's Bench Division he himself would hear the case.

INCOME TAX OFFICIAL

ARRESTED NEAR A CATHEDRAL.

Mr. W. J. Gleeson (instructed by Mr. M. J. O'Farrell) applied on behalf of John L. Kealy for an order for a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Military Governor of Mountjoy Prison to produce his client and show by what authority he was detained in custody. His client was an official in the Income Tax Department. He was arrested on the 5th July last, and he had been in prison since without any charge being made against him and without any warrant, and he stated to his solicitor that he had committed no offence of any description. He had made a statement to his solicitor in Mountjoy Prison on the previous day, and that statement was represented in an affidavit made by Mr. O'Farrell, who said that he interviewed his client on the previous day in Mountjoy Prison. His client's statement to him was as follows:—"At Marlborough street Cathedral, Dublin, on the 5th July, 1922, about 8 p.m., I was arrested by national military forces. I had not committed any crime or offence, and no charge of any kind was made against me. I was not informed of any charge at any time. I was never brought before any court or magistrate. I had not firearms when arrested. I have never carried firearms. I have never been connected with any association of a militant character."

Mr. O'Farrell, in his affidavit, proceeded to state that on the 7th September he wrote to the Adjutant-General, National Forces, Portobello Barracks, asking him to inform him by what authority and upon what charge, if any, his client was detained. He had not had any reply.

Mr. Justice Gordon—Is there no affidavit by the man himself?

Mr. Gleeson—No; because the man himself was in prison, and up to yesterday Mr. O'Farrell was unable to interview him. He got a statement from him then, and that was the best evidence we can get.

Mr. Justice Gordon—The best evidence would have been an affidavit of your client himself. He was arrested on the 5th July. Why was there no application made sooner when the full Court was sitting?

Mr. Gleeson—My solicitor made the application as soon as he got instructions to do so. Although the fact is not set out in the affidavit, I have instructions that my client already, and the proper head of his department, submitted a statement of the facts connected with his detention.

Mr. Justice Gordon—I will give you leave to serve notice. But I would suggest that your client himself, who, of course, knows the facts much better than anyone else, should make an affidavit.

Mr. Gleeson—There are certain reasons connected with what took place at the interview which would make it impossible, under the circumstances that obtained yesterday, that he should make an affidavit. It is not necessary to say any more about it at the moment. But I will have an affidavit if we are permitted to have access to our client for that purpose.

Mr. Justice Gordon—I have no doubt you will be permitted to have access to him for that purpose.

Mr. Gleeson—He is in custody since the 5th July. He has not been brought to trial or brought before any court, and he is not subject to military law or jurisdiction.

Mr. Justice Gordon—I will give you leave to serve notice on the proper authorities.

BETTING BY CHEQUE CASE RECALLED.

Mr. Tobias (instructed by Messrs. Cooper and McCullagh) applied on behalf of the plaintiff in an intended action between H. C. Cronhelm, solicitor, and H. R. Rigby, solicitor, practising in Leigh, Lancashire, under the style of Wright and Rigby, for an order giving the plaintiff leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction on the intended defendant.

The present proceedings arose out of an action brought by one A. N. Brogden against Mr. Duggan, the well-known Irish bookmaker, to recover moneys lost by Mr. Brogden in betting transactions and paid to Mr. Duggan by cheque. The plaintiff (Mr. Brogden) was defeated in his action, and was also defeated in a subsequent motion for a new trial made to the Court of Appeal.

Council alleged that Mr. Cronhelm was employed by the intended defendant, who was acting as solicitor for Mr. Brogden to act as their agent in the Irish proceedings, and that Mr. Cronhelm had incurred considerable expense and done considerable work for which the intended defendant was liable, and had refused to pay him.

Mr. Justice Gordon made an order giving leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction.

WEXFORD LAND CASE.

In the case of Richard B. Tomkins, of Nevillescourt, Ballycanew, Gorey, Co. Wexford, v. Esther J. Murphy, of Dranagh, Boolavogue, Ferns, Co. Wexford and her two sons, Michael and Patrick,

Mr. Sheehy (instructed by Messrs. John A. Sinnott and Co.), applied on behalf of the plaintiff for an interlocutory injunction pending the trial of the action restraining the defendants from trespassing on the lands of Court Ballyedmond, Co. Wexford, and interfering with the plaintiff in his enjoyment of them. In the action, the plaintiff claimed £2,000 damages for trespass and an injunction. It was stated, in an affidavit by the plaintiff, that a family named Carroll were evicted from the lands in 1887, that he became tenant in 1888, that he purchased them under the Land Acts, and that the freehold interest was vested in him in 1909. Mrs. Murphy was the nearest living relative of the Carroll family. In April, 1922, the defendants Michael and Patrick Murphy, entered the lands drove off cattle, sheep, and a horse, and took possession of the house and lands. Mrs. Murphy in an affidavit denied the alleged trespass, so far as she was concerned. In 1887 her parents were evicted from the lands. She referred to some conversations which took place in subsequent years between Mr. Tomkins and herself, in which she proposed that Mr. Tomkins should give her back the lands, she paying him compensation. Mr. Tomkins offered then £500, which she refused to accept, and she offered him £500 for his interest in the place. Nothing came of the negotiations.

Mr. Patrick Murphy, in an affidavit, denied that he was on the lands when his brother Michael took possession. At the request of his brother he went to work on the lands for him as an ordinary workman. He received as wages his support, and was allowed by his brother to graze a couple of cattle.

Mr. St. L. Devitt (instructed by Mr. Thomas B. Dunbar), appeared for Mrs. Murphy and her son, Patrick, and opposed the application so far as they were concerned.

Mr. Justice Gordon granted the interlocutory injunction asked for against the three defendants, and adjourned for a supplemental affidavit an application for a writ of attachment against Michael Murphy, who was not represented, for alleged disobedience of an interim injunction previously granted.

LETTING OF A BRAY HOUSE.

In the case of Frank Durdin Cooke, of San Remo, Novara road, Bray, v. David Wilson and Elizabeth L. Wilson, his wife,

Mr. James Henry (instructed by Mr. H. J. W. Downey LL.D.), applied on behalf of the plaintiff for an order giving liberty to serve a concurrent writ out of the jurisdiction on the defendant, Mr. David Wilson, in London. By a lease of July, 1921, the defendants took part of the premises known as "Glencourt," Bray, for a term of ten years at the rent of £130 a year. They paid £32 10s., and afterwards vacated the premises, which, plaintiff alleged, suffered considerably in consequence. Mrs. Wilson was residing in Dublin.

Mr. Justice Gordon granted the application.

DOLLYMOUNT RENT CASE.

In the case of Mrs. Georgina W. Bradshaw v. John F. Garvey, 2 Ardilaun villas, Dollymount,

Mr. Boyle, solicitor (Messrs. William Smyth and Sons), applied on behalf of the plaintiff for liberty to mark final judgment in default of appearance. The action was brought to recover money, alleged to be due in respect of the rent of the premises No. 2 Ardilaun villas, Dollymount. After the issue of the writ the defendant served notice in the Republican Court to restrain plaintiff from proceeding in these (Supreme) Courts. The plaintiff agreed to appear in the Republican Court, and she got a decree in that court. Then the defendant appealed to the Appeal Tribunal, which had since been abolished, and now the plaintiff Mrs. Bradshaw, wanted to mark judgment in respect of the writ she had served.

Mr. Nolan-Whelan (instructed by Mr. J. A. Meagher), who appeared for the defendant, said that the plaintiff undertook by counsel to proceed in the Republican Court in Dublin. On that undertaking it was agreed that the matter at issue should be tried and decided in other courts of which his lordship had no Statutory knowledge. These courts had been set up by the members of the Provisional Government themselves, and people had been sent to prison by them. There was an appeal now to the Republican Circuit Court. The Circuit Court had not been abolished, it had only been suspended; and he submitted that in accordance with the agreement arrived at between the parties the matter was at issue still. The present members of the Government were the same individuals as directed those courts to proceed in every other part of the country except Dublin; that there were innumerable people suffering long terms of imprisonment imposed by those courts.

Mr. Justice Gordon said that so far as this court was concerned no appearance had been entered, and if Mr. Nolan-Whelan liked to enter an appearance he could meet this properly then by pleading that there was an agreement between the parties, and the matter was to be determined in some other way. He now gave Mr. Nolan-Whelan an opportunity of entering an appearance.

THE BUILDING TRADE.

MANY WORKERS IDLE.

There is much dissatisfaction amongst skilled workers engaged in the Dublin building trade at the attitude of the labourers, who are members of the Irish Transport Workers' Union. These men rejected the revised offer of the Dublin Builders Employers' Federation—namely, a reduction of 1½d. per hour on present rates. Bricklayers, carpenters, painters, slaters, and plasterers, however, agreed to accept a reduction in their cases of 2d. per hour.

The effect of the labourers' decision is to hamper the progress of building in a good many cases, since bricklayers and other skilled workers cannot make headway without the assistance of labourers. They are thus, in some instances, obliged to stand idle.

Amongst the skilled workers it is recognised that a reduction was inevitable, and the action of the labourers in standing aside is regarded with disapproval.

DAYLIGHT STREET MURDER.

William Smith, aged 55, a sailor, of North Queen street, Belfast, was walking near his home on the afternoon of June 13th, when he was struck by a rifle bullet fired from a group of men standing at the corner of Grove street. Shouting "I am catched," he collapsed and died. At the inquest yesterday, the Coroner found that death was due to a wound inflicted by an unlawful assembly.

FARMING IN SOUTH AFRICA:
THE BEGINNER'S CHANCE.

To start farming in the Union of South Africa, even on a modest scale, a minimum capital of £2,300 is necessary. The sum is large; but what, in most other countries, can the beginner do even with such capital? Carefully invested in South African farming, it will give him scope. It will open to him a career, the means of livelihood, the prospect of gradual progress.

Whoever contemplates settling oversea should consider the Union of South Africa. It is a country with a future, especially in farming. It has been proved suitable, not only for every sort of farming, but for mass production. And now there is activity to organise the distribution of that production. Co-operation among the farmers is spreading throughout the country. Twelve thousand miles of up-to-date railways, and well-equipped ports, are available to put the South African farmer in touch with the world's markets.

Yet land is still comparatively cheap, and there are good facilities for obtaining training and guidance before investing.

Full particulars should be obtained from the office of the High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa, Trafalgar square, London, W.C. 2. Write for Farm Book No. "S.C."

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The deep depression over Northern Ireland will cause cold, stormy, and unsettled weather over the British Isles. The wind will be S. to S.E. for a time over Eastern England, but is likely to become N.E. to N. in all districts in the course of the next day or two.

Ireland.—Wind between N. and E., strong to a gale at times; much cloud, intermittent rain; visibility moderate; cold.

South-west seaboard, mouth of Channel to S.W. Ireland.—Strong N. winds, much cloud, intermittent rain; visibility moderate; sea rough.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel, north-west seaboard, Northern Ireland to Hebrides.—Wind N.E. to N., strong to a gale; much cloud, intermittent rain; visibility moderate; sea rough.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Provisional Parliament yesterday approved the measures taken by the Government to assert its authority in the country. In the course of the debate General Mulcahy said that before the attack on the Four Courts the irregulars planned to declare war on Britain.—(P. 5.)

Troops were ambushed in three parts of Dublin yesterday, with the result that one civilian was killed and several others were wounded.—(P. 5.)

The Dublin Chamber of Commerce yesterday considered the position raised by the strike of Post Office employés, and a committee was appointed to assist, as far as possible, in meeting the urgent needs of business men.—(P. 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

A conference between representatives of the Imperial Government and the Canadian Government is to be held to discuss the bill to be introduced into Parliament in connection with the lifting of the Canadian cattle embargo.—(P. 2.)

ABROAD.

Anti-European outbreaks have occurred in Constantinople, and General Sir C. Harington, commanding the British forces, has threatened to put martial law in force. (P. 5.)

In explaining to the India Legislative Assembly the origin of the trouble with fanatical Akali Sikhs in the Punjab, Sir William Vincent said that the Government was determined to assert its authority.—(P. 5.)

SPORTING.

At Doncaster yesterday Irish Belfry won the Great Yorkshire Handicap.—(P. 3.)

COMMERCIAL.

Need and Duty.

In Parliament yesterday the Minister for Defence made an important statement on military matters. Some of Mr. Mulcahy's revelations were startling, but his promises were reassuring. They will strengthen the country's hope that the Government really is resolved to restore public order and to assert the supremacy of Parliament in all parts of Southern Ireland. Much of yesterday's debate, however, was preposterous in the strictest sense of the word. It sought to put the cart before the horse—to build the fabric of a new Irish society before the foundations have been laid. To insist that unemployment and financial stringency ought to claim the Government's first attention is to confuse cause and effect. Unemployment will be rife so long as the whole machine of industry continues to be dismantled by reckless hands. As Mr. Cosgrave said, security is the vital condition of sound finance. Without it taxes cannot be raised, because the money which ought to pay them cannot be earned. Taxes are a contract between the citizens and the State, and the contract fails when the State is unable or unwilling to fulfil its obligations to the taxpayer. At this moment the Government's financial position is serious. On the one hand, income tax is not being paid. On the other, the Government cannot raise loans without adequate security. The security will be found only in the establishment of settled conditions and the restoration of law. These things, then, must be the Government's first task. The solution of every other problem that was discussed yesterday waits upon their achievement.

Upon the swift achievement of these things, therefore, depends the whole material welfare of Southern Ireland—her trade and commerce, her agriculture, the prosperity of her banks, the livelihood of all her sons and daughters who work with hand or brain. The one hope now of all these interests lies in the new Government. Many people may distrust and dislike it. Many may think that it cannot succeed in restoring order out of chaos. One thing, indeed, is certain. The Government cannot succeed without the active sympathy and co-operation of all classes—especially the men with brains, money and experience. No matter what memories they must forget or what political teachings they must unlearn, such men must rally now to the Government's support if they wish to save Ireland and themselves. We welcome, therefore, with lively satisfaction Mr. William Hewat's appeal yesterday to the Dublin Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber had been summoned to consider the difficulties caused by the postal strike, and it decided, very sensibly, to adopt vigorous methods of self-help. Mr. Hewat's appeal, however, went far beyond the range of this special emergency. He asked the business men of Ireland to take their full share of responsibility in shaping the policy of the new State. Would they stand outside the gate or would they enter and put their shoulders to the burden? The appeal was directed particularly to the members of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce and of the sister chambers throughout Southern Ireland.

We have predicted that, if the Free State comes to full growth, the controlling influence in its councils will be a Centre Party, at once conservative and progressive, drawn from the most stable and substantial elements in the country's life. We said last week that we should welcome an immediate movement for the founding of such a party. It will be founded in the near future if the business community of Southern Ireland responds quickly and unanimously to Mr. Hewat's appeal. Parliamentary parties do not create themselves. They represent bodies of public opinion which, by organising themselves for the protection and advancement of certain interests, have been able to win a greater or less measure of support from the electorate. The Centre Party will claim its due place in the Irish Parliament as soon as it has taken firm root in the constituencies. The Southern Chambers of Commerce could begin by sending delegates to a meeting in Dublin. These delegates could draft a provisional statement of policy, and, having submitted it to a large number of probable adherents, could bring together a representative body which would frame the final statement of policy, establish an organisation, and make an open appeal for public support. That would be the beginning of the national Centre Party, and we believe that its success would be assured from the first moment. In the meanwhile the Chambers of Commerce, through their spokesmen, could put their knowledge and experience at the Government's service in all matters of finance and trade. Help, not criticism, is the Government's most urgent need; and the Irishman who sulks in his tent is helping neither the nation nor himself.

The Turkish Menace.

It is refreshing to have an opinion on the whole Near Eastern muddle by one whose experience makes him the best possible judge of the matter, and whose impartiality as an observer cannot be suspected. Mr. Morgenthau has been United States Ambassador in Constantinople for a number of years, and nobody knows the Turk better or understands better what a Turkish revival means, or what repercussions it may have among the defeated nations that were lately the allies and patrons of Turkey. His view of the situation is pessimistic. He regards the whole Turkish movement, beginning with the setting up of the Angora Government and ending with what he justly describes as a "formidable manifestation of Turkish military power and racial intolerance," as a furious refusal to accept the Treaty of Sèvres. The Turk, in a word, unlike his allies, was defeated, but not beaten. Mr. Morgenthau appears to take the recovery of Smyrna, and even of Constantinople, by the Kemalists as a foregone conclusion. He doubts, however, if the recovery of these lost provinces will content the Turk, arrogant in defeat and trebly arrogant in victory. Kemal is already demanding the restoration of Thrace. Should this be conceded, Mr. Morgenthau believes that Bulgaria will follow the Turkish lead. "Turkey was supposed to be defeated," the Bulgar will say, "and now turns out to be a victor. Let us see if we were not really victors, too, and if our acceptance of the rôle of vanquished was not procured by trickery." If Bulgaria, by a sort of mental somersault, can pass from the rôle of vanquished to that of victor, why cannot Germany do the same? In Mr. Morgenthau's opinion there is a grave danger that Germany may do this very thing. He does not anticipate that the German nation will fall once once more, vi et armis, upon a peaceful world. He sees, however, the impoverished and desperate German militarists becoming the gunmen of the world, as he describes them—responsible to nobody and regarding the democratic nations exactly as the bandit of old regarded the rich, but unwarlike, occupants of the stage-coach. If Turkey's military adventure should continue, if Bulgaria should follow suit, and if ambitious and discontented Moslems in Irak or Arabia or Egypt or India should respond to the religious call to arms, the temptation to make themselves its leaders and soldiers of fortune might be more than the Prussian military caste could resist. It is a gloomy picture, but Mr. Morgenthau is not a croaker or a dealer in visions. He sees these things coming unless Great Britain takes a resolute stand and steadfastly resists, at any cost, the re-entry of the Turk into Europe.

A Gallant Rescue.

The story of the wreck of the German steamer Hammonia off Cape Finisterre, on Saturday, adds another page of glory to the annals of the British mercantile marine. The ss. Kinfauns Castle, of the Union-Castle Line, arrived at Southampton yesterday with 377 survivors of the disaster, and the description of their rescue makes thrilling reading. The German ship was bound from Vigo to Cuba and Mexico, with a complement of 365 passengers and 192 officers and men. Off Cape Finisterre she suddenly ran into a heavy gale and immediately got into serious difficulties. When the captain discovered that his ship was sinking, he sent out the S.O.S. signal by "wireless." The message was picked up by several vessels, and the Kinfauns Castle, under Captain E. W. Day, was quickly on the scene. In spite of the terrible seas that were running, Captain Day lost no time in launching his lifeboats, one of which capsized immediately; and, after hours of patient and hazardous toil, 377 souls were saved by the efforts of this single British ship. Several other steamers stood by and gave valuable assistance, but the brunt of the gallant work was borne by Captain Day and his crew, who shirked no risk in their task of mercy. The fact that all but fifteen of the wrecked ship's company have been saved constitutes a splendid tribute to this band of British sailors. The rescue of the Hammonia survivors is in the best tradition of the British merchant service. Britain is proud of it, and it asks for no greater reward.

Sensitive Americans.

Ever since Dickens wrote "Martin Chuzzlewit" English men of letters have been falling foul of American susceptibilities. The latest offender is Mr. Rudyard Kipling, whose works have been enjoying a remarkable "vogue" across the Atlantic during recent years. Some time ago he wrote a poem, entitled "The King's Pilgrimage," which, referring to those who had died in the war, contained the lines—

> "We they redeemed denied their faith
> And mocked the gains they won."

An American lady asked Mr. Kipling what these lines meant, whereupon the poet delivered himself of a very strong attack on the United States, which the lady promptly published in the New York World. According to this journal, Mr. Kipling blamed America for everything that has happened recently in Europe. He blamed her for not entering the war in 1914, for insisting on an armistice at the earliest opportunity, for "quitting" immediately after the cessation of hostilities, and, above all, for making money out of the Allies' embarrassments. The interview has infuriated the American public, and several public men have denounced Mr. Kipling in unmeasured terms. He may have made the remarks which have been attributed to him by the inquisitive lady, but the suggestion that the matter is of State importance is ridiculous. Mr. Kipling is a poet, and poets are rarely diplomatists. Some Americans, however, make no allowances for anything.

THE LAUGHTER OF CHILDREN.

At the British Association meeting at Hull a paper was contributed by Dr. Kimmins, London, upon "Laughter." He told amusing stories of the manner in which children were induced to laughter, saying that animals were a source of merriment at an early age. Later Punch and Judy shows and parental mistakes provided a subject for humour.

At the joint sections of Botany and Zoology Darwin's theory concerning evolution was generally upheld, although his natural selection theory was criticised.

Dr. Cunningham, London, declared that Darwinism was as extinct as the dodo.

SCOTTISH LIBERALS' CONFERENCE.

The annual Conference of Scottish Liberals will be held at Dumfries on October 6th and 7th. The public demonstration on the first evening will be addressed by Mr. Asquith. It is understood that the Coalition Liberals will not attend the Conference.

PASSENGERS CAST ADRIFT.

BUENOS AYRES, Tuesday.

A remarkable story is published in the Argentine newspapers, according to which the captain of a German liner is reported to have cast adrift in the Atlantic sixteen passengers on the ground that they were undesirables. The report adds that only ten out of the sixteen have been picked up and that the fate of the remaining six is uncertain.—(Reuter.)

END OF NOTORIOUS U BOAT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

Carrying out the strict letter of the Treaty agreement to sink surrendered German submarines in deep water, the Navy has sent the notorious U 3 to the bottom of the sea off the Shoal Lightship on the Virginia coast.—(Reuter.)

AID FOR AUSTRIA.

PARIS, Tuesday.

According to a Vienna message to the Matin, it is stated in official circles that M. Motta, a former President of the Swiss Confederation, has succeeded in associating Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Italy in a scheme for separate action to aid Austria financially. These three States are prepared to lend Austria a sum of £15,000,000 sterling, and conclude commercial agreements with Austria. This action may be extended by the later participation of other Powers. It is added that Austria must furnish guarantees to be stipulated by the League of Nations which will contain clauses regarding financial and political control, and probably military control.—(Reuter.)

The death is announced of Mr. William Ehrhardt, of Handsworth, Birmingham, managing director of Messrs. William Ehrhardt, Ltd., watch manufacturers, Barr street, Birmingham. His father was the first manufacturer of watches by machinery in England, starting originally—

General Sir William R. Birdwood, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., one of the outstanding personalities of the European War, is fifty-seven to-day. He was gazetted when only eighteen to the Royal Scots Fusiliers, exchanging two years later into the 12th Lancers. He became captain in the 11th Bengal Lancers in 1896, since which time his career has been an unbroken record of success. His services in the late war were recognised by the thanks of Parliament, a grant of £10,000, and a baronetcy, and he received various decorations from the French, Belgian, and Portuguese Governments. He was appointed to the command of the Northern Army in India in 1920, and is an A.D.C. General to His Majesty. He married the eldest daughter of Colonel Sir Benjamin Parnell Bromhead, and their only son is in the Indian cavalry, and served with distinction through the two last years of the war. Of their two daughters, the eldest is married to Captain F. C. Craig, R.A.F.

MARRIAGE OF CAPTAIN N. M. ANDERSON AND MISS SIMPSON.

The wedding of Captain N. M. Anderson, son of Lieutenant-General Sir Charles and Lady Anderson, of Ballinacarriga, Kilworth, Co. Cork, to Miss Shelagh Lisle Simpson, only daughter of the late Major D. Simpson, I.M.S., and Mrs. A. S. Hay, took place on August 23 at St. Mary's Church, Belgaum, India. The bride's dress was of ivory georgette, draped with old Limerick lace. Her only ornaments were a diamond pendant and pearl tassels, the gift of her mother; she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, lilies, and roses, arranged with silver ribbon. The bridesmaids were Miss Pat Clementi and Miss Sheila Cramer-Roberts, who were dressed in frilly pink dresses, and carried wreaths of roses. The bride was given away by Lieutenant-Colonel J. Clementi, Commanding the 114th Mahrattas, and the bridegroom's brother, Captain C. B. C. Anderson, R.A.M.C., was best man. After the ceremony the British and Indian officers of the 114th Mahrattas formed a guard of honour at the porch of the church, and the bridal pair drove off to Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. Hay's bungalow. Among the guests were Mrs. Ap Rhys Price, Colonel and Mrs. Clementi, Mr. Lewis J. Mountford, Mr. McGregor, Colonel and Mrs. Spring, Colonel and Mrs. Barker, Colonel and Mrs. Scott and Miss Powell, Colonel and Mrs. Sealey, Major and Mrs. Benton, Major Welch, Dr. and Mrs. Fisher, Major and Mrs. Radford, the Rev. Canon Kennelly, Mrs. Kennelly, and Miss Kennelly; Captain C. B. Mosse, Miss Mosse, and Mrs. Corser; Major Aubrey and officers of 1st K.S.L.I.; Captain Dyson and officers of the 94th Battery R.F.A.; Captain Bailey, Mr. Aitchison, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrance, Mr. Cawan Taylor, Captain F. C. Goddard and officers of the 114th Mahrattas (the bridegroom's regiment).

MARRIAGE OF CAPTAIN E. H. DE STACPOOLE, M.C., AND MISS FRANCIS.

Captain E. Hubert de Stacpoole, the Royal Scots, M.C. and Croix de Guerre with Palms, was married, at Brompton Oratory yesterday, to Miss Millicent Lavender Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Francis, of 6 Stanhope place, Hyde Park, London. The bridegroom is the second son of the Duke and Duchess de Stacpoole, of Mount Royal, Co. Galway. Father Edgar Blount, cousin of the bride, with Father Hague, officiated. The bride wore a dress of white satin and georgette, embroidered in gold thread, the court train being lined with cloth of gold. She was attended by a page and a married friend, Mrs. Vincent Poore, termed a "Dame d'Honneur," who wore a shot grey silk dress and pale pink hat. Captain Caulfield, M.C., acted as best man. The bridegroom is one of four sons, two of whom were killed in the war, the bridegroom himself being wounded in 1915. The dukedom is a Papal honour. Among those at the Oratory were the Duke de Stacpoole—the Duchess and Mrs. George de Stacpoole were unable to leave Ireland owing to the unsettled state of affairs—Mrs. Francis, wearing a beige gown and picture hat; Mrs. Fairhurst, the bride's sister; Colonel and Mrs. H. McMickin and their two sons, Terence and Hubert; Marie Lady de Freyne, the Hon. Lily French, the Hon. Grace Trench, Lady Glove, the Hon. Mrs. Persse and Miss Daphne Persse, Frances Lady Talbot Parr, Bishop Keatinge, Captain and Mrs. Frederick Cavendish, Colonel May, and Captain MacCormick.

MRS. HARDING'S CONDITION.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

To-night's bulletin states that Mrs. Harding spent a most comfortable day, and that the operation will be deferred until the infection has been localised.—(Reuter.)

ABBEY THEATRE.

A THREE-PLAY PROGRAMME.

A triple bill was presented at the Abbey Theatre last night; the comedy element predominated. The first play was "An Imaginary Conversation," by Conal O'Riordan, the scene of which is laid in Tom Moore's den over his father's shop in Aungier street, on a May morning long ago, when Robert Emmet listened to the poet's composition of "Let Erin Remember." Mr. Barry Fitzgerald made a good study of the character of Tom Moore; Mr. P. J. Carolan played well the part of Robert Emmet, and Miss Eileen Crowe was a charming Kate Moore.

Lady Gregory's two-act comedy, "Damer's Gold," followed. Damer, or Patrick Kirwan, the miser, is a part that requires some ability, and it was adequately portrayed by Mr. Barry Fitzgerald. The other actors in the cast, each of whom did well, were Miss Christine Hayden, Messrs. Peter Nolan, Michael J. Dolan, and U. Wright.

The third play was the most cheerful and most enjoyable of the programme. It was Mr. Seumas O'Kelly's pastoral comedy in one act, entitled "Meadowsweet." This little comedy, dealing with the provision of a labourer's cottage, was full of rustic humour, enriched by the chagrin that inevitably follows the selection of a site. It was admirably acted by Miss Eileen O'Kelly, Messrs. Tony Quin, Peter Nolan, and Eric Gorman.

The orchestra, under the direction of Dr. J. F. Larchet, performed an enjoyable selection of music.

MODERN PHOTOGRAPHY.

RECENT YEARS' PROGRESS.

An International Exhibition of Photography is being held by the Professional Photographers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland at Prince's Galleries, Piccadilly, London, W. The exhibition comprises more than 300 pictures in the British section alone, and almost as many from America. It is also a practical demonstration of the progress that has been made in recent years in professional photography. Hardness of effect has practically disappeared, and some of the pictures exhibited have almost the appearance of reproductions in monochrome of portraits in oils. An interesting feature of the exhibition is a collection of typical Press photographs, which reveal the wonderful degree of clearness that is now obtained.

The American exhibits include some fine portraits of distinguished men by Mr. Pirie Macdonald, and there is also much good work from France, Italy, Spain, Holland, and Germany, the German exhibits being remarkable for artistic merit.

WORLD SHORT OF WOOD.

A NOTE OF ALARM.

Lord Lovat, who addressed the botanists of the British Association at Hull yesterday, sees the world growing very short of timber and England in a worse position than almost any other country. He sounded a note of alarm, and appealed for a consistent forestry policy.

"The home position is critical," said Lord Lovat. "Russia has practically ceased to be a factor in the supply. America, the other great soft wood storehouse of the world, requires, or will shortly require, the whole of her supplies for herself. She ceased to be an exporting nation in 1918, and is already in a position to consume all that Canada can produce."

Lord Lovat was sarcastic about the bewildering changes in British forestry policy. Private forestry, he said, which saved the timber situation in the war, could not do so again. We were the greatest importers of timber of any nation in the world, and had less wood compared with population than any other.

PALESTINE'S OPPORTUNITY

BRITISH MANDATE FORMALLY ESTABLISHED.

JERUSALEM, Monday.

An imposing ceremony took place here to-day on the occasion of the proclamation of the British mandate for Palestine, Field-Marshal Lord Allenby and the Emir Abdullah being present. In the course of the ceremony, the High Commissioner, Mr. Herbert Samuel, took the oaths of allegiance to the King, his office, and the people.

In his speech, the High Commissioner said that he earnestly hoped that under the broad shelter of the British Empire the period now opening would be one of peace and progress for Palestine, and would be memorable both for an Arab and Jewish revival.

"When the day comes for Great Britain to lay down her trust, may she leave Palestine popular, prosperous, self-reliant, and self-governing. We rejoice in the presence of the Emir Abdullah, who, as General of the Arab forces, shared the Allied victory.

"I will conduct the Administration without fear or favour, in justice to all and partiality to none."—(Reuter.)

RELATIONS WITH ARABIA.

REASSURING ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Colonial Office announces that although reports have appeared to the effect that Abdel-Aziz es-Sa'ud, the Sultan of Nejd, has recently concluded some form of military convention, which by necessary implication would be opposed to the policy of the British Government in Arabia and contrary to the spirit of the agreement subsisting between him and the British Government, the Sultan of Nejd has not concluded any such convention.

In repudiating the reports, the Sultan of Nejd has taken the opportunity of renewing his assurances of friendship to the British Government and of respect for the covenants subsisting between the British and himself. It is worthy of record that Ibn Sa'ud of his own motion promptly directed the attention of the British Government to the published rumours and to the probable source of their inspiration, and expressed his entire confidence that the British Government continued to be "fully aware of his friendly policy towards them, and that rumours of this sort would not have any effect on them."

PAYMENT OF DISABILITY PENSIONS.

The Regional Director, Ministry of Pensions, of the Ireland (South) Region announces that he hopes to make arrangements by which disability pensioners and persons in receipt of pensions as widows and dependents will be paid the amounts which they are normally in receipt of each week from the Post Office. No payments can be made to-day (Wednesday), but it is hoped that to-morrow's paper will contain a detailed announcement of the arrangements which are being made.

NORTHERN CABINET MEETS

SIR JAMES CRAIG LEAVES FOR LONDON.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, left Belfast yesterday afternoon for London. Prior to his departure he presided at a meeting of the Northern Cabinet, held at Stormont Castle. All the Ministers were present, except Lord Londonderry, who is holidaying in Scotland.

It is understood that the Royal Assent is now forthcoming to the Local Government (Northern Ireland) Bill, which abolishes the proportional representation system in Local Government elections in the Six Counties.

THE POPE AND AN IRISH BOOK.

Mr. M. A. MacNamara, barrister-at-law, has received a letter from the Marquis MacSwiney, of Mashanaglass, addressed from Rome, requesting that a copy of Mr. MacNamara's book, "Place Names in County Dublin," be presented to His Holiness the Pope and to his Eminence Cardinal Gasparri, Librarian of the Vatican.

MR. LEWIS HASLAM'S ILLNESS.

Mr. Lewis Haslam, M.P., underwent an operation on Monday night. His condition is still critical.

THE LATE PRESIDENT GRIFFITH.

Requiem High Mass (Month's Mind) was celebrated in the Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, Dublin, yesterday, for the repose of the soul of the late President Griffith.

There was a large attendance, and the Government and the Army were represented. Many members of Parliament also attended.

END OF SUMMER TIME.

The Provisional Government has given notice that Summer Time will end at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning next. Clocks and watches should, therefore, be adjusted by the public before retiring on Saturday night.

Summer Time in England will end on Sunday, October 8.

GERMAN ECONOMIES.

The German Food Ministry has issued a Decree prohibiting the use of home-grown sugar in the manufacture of chocolate, sweets, brandy, liqueurs, and champagne, and also restricting the manufacture of brandy and strong beers.

LONDON LETTER.

THE ALLIES AND ANGORA.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

The studied firmness of the Note sent by the Allies to Kemal Pasha, warning him that a violation of the neutral zone will not be tolerated is, it is to be hoped, an augury of a unity of purpose which will be the only effective way to keep the Near East war clouds out of Europe. The only question is whether Kemal Pasha and his advisers will take the warning as serious. It is consequently important that the French Government has made its position in this matter absolutely clear. M. Poincaré may, perhaps, have some little difficulty in making the Kemalists believe what he says, but that he will do so seems certain. The Allies in the face of the dangerous position must stand shoulder to shoulder, and this fact is now well recognised in Paris.

In Downing street circles there is considerable anxiety as to the course of events during the next few days, and it is fervently hoped that the Allies will be able to resist the extravagant demands of the Turks. It must not be forgotten that technically we are still at war with Turkey, though it may be said that this fact applies only to the Constantinople Government. Really, there is little difference between that Government and the Angora Government. Both are Turkish, and both want the same thing—the clearance of the European out of Asia Minor. It is rumoured that the Constantinople Government has little or no objection to the freedom of the Dardanelles; but that the Angora Government, objecting to the Treaty of Sèvres, has strong objections. Should the two Governments coalesce, it may be regarded as certain that the Angora Government will dominate the situation and try to carry out its plans for driving the Greeks out of Thrace and Adrianople. Then there would be considerable trouble.

THE PROBLEM OF THE STRAITS.

One of the conditions of the Sèvres Treaty was that the Straits should be open to the ships of the world, says the Diplomatic Correspondent of the Evening Standard. The Kemalists are in close touch with French policy, and what they desire has been recently reflected by a suggestion in a section of the Parisian Press that the time has come when the command of the Straits should revert to Turkey—and among our own statesmen there is nothing but resistance to that idea. In this connection, it must steadfastly be kept in mind that France has a treaty with Mustapha Kemal not to act against the Turks in Asia Minor—a provision made as a useful preliminary to the Turkish drive against the Greeks—but that France reserves freedom of action in respect to the Straits. As France was one of the signatories that opened the Dardanelles, the fact that she definitely stated that she retained her freedom of action showed that, in the drafting of the Franco-Kemal Treaty, the closing of the Dardanelles was discussed. If the Dardanelles are closed, it is understood that the Kemalists will at the same time insist on the withdrawal of the Allies from Constantinople.

The Prime Minister is reported to be taking the serious Turkish-Greek situation very calmly, and not worrying himself about it. It is, however, greatly occupying his mind, and he intends to call another Cabinet Council this week to discuss the position. If nothing untoward happens, he will leave for Geneva on Tuesday or Wednesday in next week to address the League of Nations Assembly. His visit will be a very brief one, and he is unlikely to be away for more than four or five days. In the circumstances now ruling the visit of Mr. Lloyd George to Geneva becomes a matter of great international importance. If he goes, it is probable that he will be met by M. Poincaré and all the other members of the Supreme Council. The meeting, therefore, might become another great international conference.

MR. ASQUITH'S BIRTHDAY.

Mr. Asquith was seventy to-day, and, before the strain of the war caused a number of minor break-downs, he was able to say that he had not spent two consecutive days in bed through illness for a quarter of a century, and had not swallowed a dozen bottles of medicine in his life. He still looks remarkably well, though age and responsibility tell a tale. The occasion of his birthday probably will call forth some speculation as to his political future. There are members of his party who think that it would be a suitable date for him formally to hand over the leadership of the Independent Liberals to Viscount Grey, but that Mr. Asquith is of such an opinion himself is most unlikely. There have been many discussions and speculations as to the future of the party, but to them Mr. Asquith has contributed nothing. He has apparently no desire to give up his work or his leadership.

The Labour Party has now completed its arrangements for a general election, and, contrary to expectation, it has determined to put forward some fifty candidates of what is known as the "New Thought Movement." These men are the intellectuals of the Labour Party, generally men in early middle age with a University education, and their candidature has been endorsed, although rather unwillingly, by the Trade Union element of the party. The idea of most of these men is a virtually new party, with Mr. Ramsay Macdonald at its head. In this connection, it should be remembered that Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will become chairman of the Labour Executive Committee next year, since he is now the Vice-Chairman, and automatically succeeds to the higher post.

RENT AND INCOME TAX.

One very interesting suggestion is to be put before the Rent Restriction Committee next week. It is that those who occupy a house belonging to them should be given exemption from income tax in respect of the annual rental value. A person occupying his own house is now assessed from income tax as if the house were an addition to his income. The tax, it is said, effectively discourages those who are willing to build houses for their own occupation. New houses are an investment that depreciate in time, and, with a possibility of a loss on his capital when house values return to an economic level, a possible builder will not face a heavy tax as well. The proposal will relate only to the man occupying and owning his house, and not to those who build or own houses for the sake of a financial return.

The announcement that the Royal Yacht, Alexandra, is for sale follows closely upon the suggestion made by the Geddes Committee that this economy might be effected. The Alexandra ought to find a purchaser quickly, for she is comparatively new, having been completed only in 1908, when she left the shipyard at Glasgow. It is understood that the sale is to include all the furniture and fittings on board, with the exception of any personal belongings of the Royal Family. The Geddes Report, in addition to recommending the sale of the Alexandra, suggested that the Victoria and Albert should be reduced to a care and maintenance status in the winter months. This will probably be done.

R.I.C. LONDON BUREAU.

The Accommodation Bureau for ex-Members of the Royal Irish Constabulary has moved its headquarters from 2 King's Buildings to 11 Tothill street, London, third floor. All applications for accommodation, purchase of houses etc., should be made direct to the above address.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

MEASURES TO RESTORE ORDER APPROVED.

IRREGULAR PLOT EXPOSED.

PROPOSAL TO DECLARE WAR ON BRITAIN.

By 54 votes against 15 yesterday the Provisional Parliament passed a resolution in which it expressed approval of the steps that have been taken to assert its authority in the country.

The resolution was adopted after an amendment, which expressed regret that the Government had not formulated a definite policy for the relief of unemployment, had been defeated by 53 votes to 17.

Ministers pointed out that the chief cause of unemployment in the twenty-six counties was the campaign of the irregulars, and that there could be no improvement until order had been restored.

The Minister for Defence explained the efforts that had been made to maintain the unity of the Army, and said that the attack on the Four Courts anticipated by a few hours a plan by the irregulars to declare war on Britain—a plan that would have brought disaster upon the nation.

MINISTER'S REVELATIONS.

IRREGULARS' PLANS FOR WAR.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Yesterday's meeting of the Provisional Parliament was very interesting in spots. The Order Paper was a very formidable document, bristling with questions over the name of one Darghal Figes, which turned out to be the nom de guerre, or its Gaelic equivalent, of an old friend.

The chief business of the afternoon, however, was a vote of confidence in the Government, which was proposed by Mr. William Sears, and seconded by Professor Whelehan, of Galway University. Both these gentlemen spoke well, and made an excellent case for the Government's war policy. The seconder of the motion was remarkably impressive—perhaps, because we had never heard him before; and he made his points with exceptional clarity of expression and admirable economy of stress.

AMENDMENT MOVED.

Professor Whelehan was followed by Mr. Darrell Figgis, who sat in lonely splendour in the centre of the House. Mr. Figgis proposed an amendment to Mr. Sears's motion of confidence, accepting the motion so far as it went, but adding an expression of regret that the Government should not have promulgated some kind of constructive policy to deal with unemployment and its kindred economic problems.

Mr. Figgis speaks very well when he likes, but one felt that he was off colour yesterday afternoon. In the first place, he was too discursive, with the result that one followed the thread of his argument with difficulty. Furthermore, he was inclined to allow himself to be "rattled" by interruptions, and particularly by the Cheshire-cat-like smile of the Minister for Local Government.

His main point was that while civil strife breeds unemployment, the converse of the proposition is also true. Unemployment fosters social unrest and swells the ranks of irregular armies, not only in Ireland, but throughout the world. Mr. Figgis declared that he was in complete sympathy with the Government's military policy, but [illegible] that it would not succeed until a parallel policy was pursued with a view to the abolition of unemployment. He criticised the action of the Government in regard to the Post Office strike, and also criticised the lack of discipline in certain sections of the Army. But his speech did not seem to get across the footlights, as they say in the Profession.

A FARMER'S VIEW.

After Mr. Figgis came Mr. Gorey, a member of the Farmers' Party, who supported the Government with bluff common-sense. Then Mr. Milroy rose to his feet. The member for Cavan has the finest voice in the Dail, and few of us will forget his memorable speech in Earlsfort terrace last December, when he "let the cat out of the bag." Yesterday he was in great fighting form, and lost no time in getting to grips with the Labour Party. It was just like old times to hear him again, and one realised once more what a fine tragedian was lost in Mr. Milroy. With that voice and that fiery temperament he would have made a small fortune on the stage. But there is a directness about his manner that is an asset to the Irish Parliament. He never beats about the bush, and if at times he mixes his metaphors, as, for instance, when he referred to Mr. Cathal O'Shannon as the Demosthenes of the Labour Party and "a peevish schoolgirl" in the same breath, his thrusts invariably are driven home. He accused Labour of moral cowardice. Nobody knew whether it was for or against the Treaty. Mr. Milroy had no use for such shilly-shallying.

Alderman O'Brien's reply was straight from the shoulder. If Mr. Milroy's party had had its way, he said, Labour would not be in Parliament at all. In fact, nobody would be there except the two wings of Sinn Fein. Sinn Fein had had popular support which no other Irish movement ever had enjoyed. Some of that support was based on love, more of it on fear; but there it was, and Sinn Fein had had a wonderful opportunity. How had it used that opportunity?

LABOUR AND TREATY.

So far as Labour was concerned there was little to choose between the old and the new régimes. New presbyter was but old priest writ large; and Labour would be forced to fight capitalism whether it was enthroned in College Green or in Westminster. Nevertheless and although he himself was a convinced Republican, the Labour Party was willing to accept the people's verdict for the Treaty, and to make as much as possible out of the political and economic advantages which it conferred. It was a good, honest speech, well delivered, and moderate in tone. In Alderman O'Brien Mr. Thomas Johnson has an excellent lieutenant.

At the back of all this criticism it was easy to discern the desire for a full and frank statement concerning the events which led up to the Government's decision to attack the Four Courts at the end of June. Mr. Mulcahy satisfied that desire. Every time the Minister of Defence speaks he enhances his reputation for sanity and ripeness of judgment. His speech yesterday was admirable in every respect. It was firm in tone but conciliatory in temper, closely reasoned, yet tinged with that hue of idealism which colours all Mr. Mulcahy's thoughts. Some of his revelations were astonishing.

WAR ON ENGLAND.

He read documents, in the handwriting of irregular leaders, which proved beyond a doubt that in the days preceding the Four Courts attack the Army Executive under Messrs. O'Connor, O'Malley, Mellowes, etc., was contemplating a declaration of war against England. Seventy-two hours' notice was to have been given to the British Army to evacuate Ireland, and if this ultimatum was not obeyed war was to begin immediately. It was to have been waged not only in the 26 counties, but also in Ulster, and even in England, where particular attention was to have been paid to members of the Imperial General Staff and Cabinet Ministers. The irregular Executive was determined to embroil the nation in a disastrous war with England. In the circumstances, the Government had no option. Instant action was essential.

In very quiet tones Mr. Mulcahy told the irregulars on what terms peace might be obtained. "No matter how squeamish we may feel about taking life," he said, "we cannot soften our hearts against men who are opposing the people's will by force. Parliament must be supreme, and we, who have such a national responsibility to shoulder, must not falter or stumble under the load."

Such was the gist of Mr. Mulcahy's remarks, which were received with prolonged applause. His statement was as full as the most captious critic could have desired. He extenuated nothing nor set down aught with malice; but, now that he has spoken, the nation knows exactly where it stands, and if Mr. Figgis's amendment did nothing else, it at least gave Mr. Mulcahy a peg on which to hang some straight talk.

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY.

VOTE OF APPROVAL.

Mr. William Sears moved the following motion:—"That the House approve of the action the Government has taken, and is taking, to assert and vindicate the authority of Parliament."

The statement that was made by the President the previous day, he said, had shown clearly and in a business-like way that the Cabinet fully realised the difficult path that lay in front of them, and that they had no doubt or confusion in their minds as to what it was their duty to do, and that they were determined to do it. That statement gave the majority of the members of the House the deepest satisfaction, and he was sure that it would also give the greatest satisfaction to the majority of the people outside. It would increase the faith of the people in the courage and stedfastness of those who were now in charge of the country. He asked the House to endorse the action of the Government.

Mr. Sears spoke of the lawless acts which followed the adoption of the Treaty and brought about the present conflict. The authority of the Executive, he continued, had been flouted. The authority of the Government had been challenged by a minority. The anti-Treaty minority, out-voted in the Cabinet, in the Dail, and in the country, refused to accept its three-fold defeat.

It was pointed out to the members of that party that the majority of the people was opposed to them, but they only expressed the most supreme contempt for the voice of the majority, and in order to prevent that voice from prevailing they had no hesitation in resorting to arms. The constitutional methods of settling their differences, so often referred to, were flouted.

APPEALS FOR PROTECTION.

Mr. Sears referred to the obstruction of public meetings, when it was sought to prevent members of the Dail from addressing their constituents. He mentioned these incidents, he said, to recall the reign of terror which then prevailed. Appeals had been reaching the Government from all parts of the country for protection of life and property, and for a long time the Government had been in the humiliating position of being unable to offer that protection.

The people had been in a state of panic. Brigandage had been widespread—post offices had been raided and banks had been robbed. It had been open to every man to take what he could. Some took houses and land and others, more modest, only took motor cars. There was no insult or indignity that misguided ingenuity could devise that had not been heaped on the Government.

The crowning insult came with the seizure of the Four Courts by the foolish young men whose brains had been fired by the word-spinning of their leaders in the Dail. If capable hands had not been at the helm the ship of State would have gone to pieces. Every county would have had its revolt, and England would have been back again and back for ever.

Thank God, said the speaker, that there were men in Ireland then, as there were still, capable enough to grapple with the situation. Future generations would be grateful to those men who were brave enough to save that which had been won by them.

There was no need to ask what action any other Government in the world would have taken in similar circumstances. Even in Bolshevist Russia people who attempted those revolts were not in prison, but in their graves. He would say that the talk about militarism should be more clear and defined. No matter whether an army consisted of one man and one gun, it was the people who should have control of the army, and no faction outside. (Applause.)

EFFORTS FOR PEACE.

The Government had no doubt from the moment when their authority was challenged as to what their action should be. Every possible means was resorted to in order to find a peaceable solution of those difficulties; but every effort failed, and at the last hour, when it was plain that nothing short of destruction of the Treaty and the bringing back of the British would satisfy these men, the Government, reluctantly and sorrowfully, decided to move, and put the rightful force of the majority of the people of this country into action against the unlawful force of the minority.

They were compelled by the facts of the situation to take that action. It was the duty of the House to endorse that action, because in taking action the Government had defended the principle of majority rule, upon which Parliamentary government was based. (Hear, hear.)

The people of Ireland were grateful to the Government for more than that, because their action meant the saving of the Treaty, the great achievement of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins. They must restore order and get back to common sense. That was what the Cabinet proposed to do. They were all glad to hear the President say that the door was open for peace. There was no one in that House who wished to close the door. If those men came back, it was no disgrace to them to take their stand with the majority of their countrymen. Because he believed that the majority of the members in that House represented the good sense of the nation he submitted his resolution with the greatest confidence. (Cheers.)

PARLIAMENT'S SUPREMACY.

Professor Whelehan seconded the motion, and said that he did so because the principle it enunciated was the supremacy of Parliament. Parliament must be supreme in the land, and must control the Ministry. (Hear, hear.) It must control the civil and military affairs of the nation. Parliament must have an army at its service, but it must not be afraid of any army. It must have but one master, and that master must be the people, whose will it was Parliament's duty to execute. The people's will was the supreme law.

By Parliament was meant the majority vote in that assembly. He fully recognised, and he maintained, that minorities had rights, well defined and unquestionable, any repression of which by the majority party was tyranny. More did he hold that there were rights created by the acceptance of the principle of majority rule, aggression against which by any organisation or band or body of men by force was indefensible and inexcusable.

The ex-President of the second Dail had stated that there was a constitutional way of resolving the national trouble by submitting the questions at issue to the tribunal of the people. By that method, said the speaker, the minority of to-day could become the majority of to-morrow, and if he could at all appeal to the young men of the country, he would appeal to them to weigh well what that meant.

There was a constitutional way open to them to put their claims before their country, and win a majority of their countrymen to their way of thinking, and to come in a majority into that Parliament and take over the control of the civil and military powers of Parliament. They promised them that they who were now in opposition to them would back them up, because they would then stand for the will of the people.

On Monday the President, in making his statement of policy, was quite clear and explicit. He stated that he did not intend to fire the last shot or shoulder the last gun. The President stated the basis on which peace might be had at any time, and he (Professor Whelehan) thought that it was a basis on which any

THE SWEEP IN TIPPERARY.

PRISONERS AND ARMS TAKEN.

NEWMARKET FIGHT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LIMERICK, Sunday.

The tail-end of the Tipperary sweep has brought good results. Yesterday an auxiliary operation was carried out to round up some of the irregulars who had broken back towards their favourite hunting ground which stretches from the Shannon on the west to the Slievefelim mountains on the east. As a result of the operations the Dublin Guards and Limerick Brigade, under Commandant Conway and Lieutenant Lynch, captured in Ballyvara eight prisoners, including the irregular "Vice-Brigadier" Owen O'Brien, who shares with Liam Forde the distinction of being the most dangerous irregular leader in this district. With the prisoners were taken five rifles, a Lewis gun, and 800 rounds of small-arm ammunition. This Lewis gun was probably the last machine gun in the hands of the irregulars operating in this district.

A second detachment of the Limerick troops, under Commandant O'Connell and Captain English, working on the same general scheme as the first detachment, were also successful in taking nine prisoners, six rifles, one revolver, and a quantity of ammunition.

With the exception of one small district, the reports of the Tipperary sweep are now complete, and the full operations have resulted in the capture of thirty-six irregulars, which is roughly the strength of one complete flying column. As there were only three flying columns in the area over which the sweep was designed to operate, the results may be considered successful. The country through which the operations extended was unusually difficult, and the plan of campaign, which as originally drafted left no loophole for escape, was one requiring a nice co-ordination of movements between bodies of troops moving from bases some distance from the critical area. It involved difficult manœuvres, such as pivoting a large section of the encircling line on a certain point and the independent action of several forces with a common object. In such movements mistakes will occur even with fully trained troops commanded by officers of long experience, and in proportion to the lack of experience of men and officers the mistakes are bound to multiply rapidly. In this particular case the major part of the movement went like clockwork, being accurately timed and nicely co-ordinated. In two sectors however, a delay in starting and a misunderstanding of orders led to a slight disorganisation, and so the irregulars were presented with get-aways of which the majority were able to avail themselves.

The general lesson to be deduced is the extreme utility of such sweeps. As the troops engaged in them became more accustomed to the work and understand more fully the importance of exact attention to time and place their effectiveness will increase. But there is another and even further reaching reason why they should be prosecuted without ceasing. So long as the war was a matter of attacking towns the initiative was always with the national troops, who drove their opponents from place after place with little loss to themselves and with disastrous effects to the spirit of their enemies. But when all the towns were taken a period of inactivity while reorganisation was effected allowed the irregulars for the first time to take a kind of qualified initiative. They were not themselves seriously attacked, and they were able to prepare ambushes and forays upon the outlying posts of the National Army.

The system of sweeps is beginning to alter all this, for the columns of irregulars have now to look to their own safety and have to conform to the movements of the national forces who again take the initiative.

A HEAVY ATTACK.

Fuller details of the irregular attack upon Newmarket are now available. At midnight on the 7th Sean Moylan, in command of about 200 irregulars, began his attack upon the posts in the town, then held by a small garrison of national troops. These posts were the barracks and two houses on the opposite side of the street. The usual somewhat prodigal expenditure of ammunition on both sides took place, and one of the smaller posts, consisting of four men, had to surrender, having no cartridges left. The attack on the barracks was pushed forward, several machine guns being used by the irregulars, and the darkness of the night permitting them to approach within bombing distance. The steel shutters protecting the windows were blown in with grenades, but the garrison, under a heavy fire, succeeded in replacing them, and part of the troops held the plating in position while the remainder fired from its shelter. When daylight came the attackers retired, having failed to capture the barracks or the second post, which was defended by only three men. The casualties among the national troops consisted of one man slightly wounded. Irregular casualties are unknown.

AN INTERESTING RUMOUR.

General O'Duffy, it is said, has been offered the position of Chief Commissioner of the Civic Guard. He joined the Sinn Fein movement in 1917, being enrolled at Croke Park by Michael Collins in person. At the time he was county surveyor in Monaghan, and he was immediately given the task of organising that county.

General O'Duffy is still a young man, but little over thirty. His chief capacity is as organiser and administrator. Out of the entire chaos in which the national army was plunged at the beginning of the war, he has evolved something approaching to order and discipline, which is no small achievement. He was one of the first men to realise that a regular army cannot be run upon the same lines as an irregular militia, and he set to work to institute such unheard of things as files, supply services, maps, despatch riders, wireless, routine orders, and the innumerable details of an army machine.

As a strategist and commander in the field, he was helped by the long army experience and thorough military knowledge of his Adjutant, General Murphy. The two formed an excellent combination when General O'Duffy's knowledge of the methods, habits, and leaders of the irregular forces was linked to the military mind of General Murphy.

THE CAPTURE OF TARBERT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LIMERICK, Tuesday.

The irregulars have scored a success by capturing Tarbert. Tarbert is a small village and harbour on the south shore of the Shannon, about 30 miles west of Limerick, and commands the race where the Shannon estuary narrows for the last time before spreading out. Originally held by irregulars, it was taken from them in early August by a clever landing, and has since then remained in national hands. But the irregulars have made several attempts to retake it. Although the village is small, yet it commanded a harbour which they were very anxious to use. It has always been their endeavour to keep some kind of communication by way of the Shannon between their forces in Clare and their forces in West Limerick. Hence the attacks on Tarbert.

On Sunday, when half the garrison was at Mass and unarmed, an attack was made on the remainder, who numbered thirteen. This small garrison put up an exceedingly plucky defence, and the irregulars could make no impression upon them, until they managed at last to set the post on fire with an incendiary bomb. The national troops were forced to leave the burning house, but, before doing so, destroyed all their rifles, except two, and threw their ammunition into the flames. The loss of Tarbert is of no particular importance, as it can be retaken at will. Many such isolated garrisons dotted about the country are open to attack, but, for one reason or another, it is usually necessary to maintain them.

The capture of prisoners by means of small raids goes on steadily. Four men, with rifles and revolvers, have been captured in Clare, and in Limerick City itself a number of men have been rounded up by the police as soon as they attempted to become active. The district east of Limerick has remained quiet since the sweep, as the irregulars have not been able, as yet, to return to their vantage posts and devise fresh trouble.

IRREGULARS FIRE ON TROOPS.

A party of troops from Roscommon with another party from Castlerea drove in Crossley cars to Lisolway, near Castleplunkett, where it was reported that a party of irregulars occupied a house in the village. As the troops approached the house a man, who was evidently on the watch, was seen to run back, and eight irregulars, armed with Mausers, dashed out and made off, firing on the national troops, who returned the fire. The irregulars made good their escape, but a man supposed to have given information was arrested and taken to Castlerea.

THREE AMBUSHES IN DUBLIN.

BOMBS FLUNG AT PASSING TROOPS.

A CIVILIAN KILLED.

No fewer than three ambushes, or attempted ambushes, of national forces took place in Dublin yesterday. The result of the attacks was that one civilian was killed, and seven persons—two soldiers, two women, a girl, and two men—were wounded.

The name of the dead man is Sean McEvoy, of Leeson Park, who was shot through the neck and back.

The wounded are:—

Catherine Myles, 93 St. Ignatius road, Drumcondra, bullet wound in leg.

Miss McCarthy, 8 Hollybank road, bullet wound in thigh.

Maureen Carroll, 47 St. Alban's road South Circular road, gunshot wound in side.

Private Joseph Fitzpatrick, 19 St. Augustine street, wounded in legs and arms.

Private Augustine Clune, Castle street, Nenagh, wounded in legs and arms.

John Hardwood, 19 High street, dangerously wounded in the back, and

A young man, who escaped from arrest, and whose name has not been made known.

DRUMCONDRA BOMB-THROWERS.

An attempt was made at one o'clock to ambush a party of C.I.D. men at the Canal Bridge, Drumcondra.

The men were driving towards the city when a bomb was thrown from Williams's Place by a number of men. It failed to hit the car, and exploded outside Kelleher's provision store. The people in the shop rushed for shelter to the rere of the premises. Miss Catherine Moyles, dressmaker, 93 St. Ignatius road, who was passing the shop, was struck by bomb splinters and wounded in the leg. She was removed to the Mater Misericordiae Hospital.

Miss McCarthy, 8 Hollybank road, was also wounded. She received a bullet wound on the thigh and was taken to the same hospital. Subsequently both patients were removed to the Children's Hospital for X-Ray examination.

ATTACK AT CURZON STREET.

Troops proceeding along the South Circular road last evening, were attacked near Curzon street.

The following official report on the subject was issued by the Army Publicity Department last night:—

"About 5 p.m. a lorry containing troops passing along the South Circular road, in the direction of Wellington Barracks, was attacked near Curzon street. A bomb was thrown at the troops which missed its objective, but passed through the plate-glass window of the newsagency of Mr. James Williams, exploding in the shop and causing much damage. In the subsequent firing a girl aged 7 years, named Maureen Carroll, was wounded in the side. She was taken to hospital.

"Some officers, who came on the scene at the time of the occurrence, gave chase to the ambushers, who ran down Heytesbury street and into Bishop street. They were captured and disarmed, when their revolvers were found to contain bent cartridges.

"While being walked to Cross Kevin street, both prisoners bolted and endeavoured to get away. The troops opened fire, and one irregular was wounded who died following admission to hospital. The second irregular, though wounded, got away."

The little girl Carroll was taken to the Meath Hospital. The man who was killed is named Sean McEvoy. His body was taken to the Adelaide Hospital.

John Hardwood, 19 High street, was dangerously wounded on the back and taken to the Adelaide Hospital.

BLESSINGTON STREET AMBUSH.

Concerning an ambush of troops at Blessington street, Dublin, last evening, an official report issued by the Army Publicity Department last night, states:—

"A char-a-banc containing troops was ambushed while passing along Blessington street about 6 p.m. Two bombs were thrown at the vehicle, one of which failed to explode. The second exploded, and Privates Clune and Fitzpatrick were slightly wounded in the legs and arms. Two of the ambushers were captured and disarmed."

Another account states that people in the vicinity of Rutland square were alarmed by the heavy explosion, followed immediately by rifle and revolver fire, which came from North Frederick street. Crowds rushed for shelter, where it could be got, and the Post Office strike pickets outside the Rink Sorting Office were obliged to beat a hasty retreat.

A char-a-banc conveying national soldiers, who were stated to number about twelve, was proceeding along Blessington street at six o'clock, when fire was opened on it. Two bombs were hurled, and a fierce fusillade of revolver shots followed. The car was badly damaged, but managed to proceed as far as the Fowler Hall, where the soldiers alighted, and went back towards North Frederick street with the intention of pursuing the assailants.

Two of the party were wounded. One was brought into a hotel in Rutland square, and the other was carried off by comrades in a Ford car.

The guard at the Rink turned out immediately, and were reinforced later by a fresh party of troops. Armoured cars and lorries were soon on the scene, and people coming from the direction of Nelson Pillar were obliged to halt at the Rotunda.

The excitement abated soon afterwards. During the firing the tramcars proceeding northwards were obliged to stop.

Another story was that the troops were ambushed by a large number of irregulars, who had taken up concealed positions on roofs of buildings overlooking the thoroughfare along which the char-a-banc passed. Several bombs were hurled at the soldiers, and simultaneously intense fire was opened upon them with revolvers and automatic pistols. Although the vehicle was travelling at a high speed, one of the bombs exploded underneath the back portion of the char-à-banc, and injured Privates Joseph Fitzpatrick, 19 St. Augustine street, and Augustine Clune, Castle street, Nenagh. The troops dismounted and opened fire on the irregulars, and an engagement between them lasted for about a quarter of an hour.

The guard from Mountjoy turned out, and several armoured cars arrived and carried out an extensive search.

TWO IRREGULARS ARRESTED.

The following official report was issued from Army Headquarters last night:—

"Following some sniping in the vicinity of Mountjoy square this evening, a party of troops conducting a search found two irregulars in a lane off Eccles street, both of whom were armed. They were both made prisoners."

"Troops carrying out a search at the premises 34 Mountjoy square to-day," states an official Army Publicity report which was issued last night, "made the following captures:—

"Three Peter-the-Painter automatics.

"Five parabellum automatics in holsters.

"One revolver, with some hundreds of rounds of automatic and revolver ammunition.

"One silencer for an automatic pistol and a quantity of casts for silencers were also found, and an irregular occupying the premises was made prisoner."

EARLY MORNING FIRING.

A great deal of firing was heard in Dublin early yesterday morning. The outburst was particularly heavy at Fairview and the Church road district. Revolvers and rifles appeared to have been used freely. Snipers were responsible for much of the shooting. In the vicinity of Annesley Bridge the firing was intense for a time, and other thoroughfares were swept by bullets.

No casualties were reported.

FUNERAL PARTY AMBUSHED.

An ambush was prepared for national troops at Killeigh, about six miles from Tullamore, on Monday.

A young national soldier named Joseph Lawlor, who was killed accidentally in Sligo, and whose remains arrived for burial in his native parish, was to be buried in Killeigh Churchyard, and a party of troops left Tullamore headquarters to attend the funeral.

They were returning about 5 p.m. to Tullamore after the funeral when the attack was opened, there being a regular hail of bullets. They came from a wood on the right-hand side of the road as the troops, in a lorry and a Ford car, were coming down Scrub Hill, which is about a mile on the Tullamore side of Killeigh.

The troops got out, took cover, and replied to the attackers' fire vigorously, and only one soldier was wounded slightly. His name is P. Mooney, a native of Kingstown. He was removed to the County Hospital, Tullamore, where he is being treated for a slight wound on the foot.

When reinforcements arrived from Tullamore the wood and district around was searched, but no one was found.

A report is current that some of the attackers were wounded.

Following the dismissal of the local secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, arising out of a punishment for being late for duty, some 350 Oldham tramway workers have tendered a week's notice to cease work, to take effect from midnight on Saturday.

ANTI-EUROPEAN OUTBREAK.

TURKS' EXCESSES IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

BRITISH MARTIAL LAW THREAT.

ALLIES AND PROPOSED CONFERENCE.

Turkish Nationalists in Constantinople, elated with the victories in Anatolia, have made violent anti-European demonstrations in the city. The British Commander-in-Chief has made strong representations to the Angora Government, and has issued a proclamation threatening to apply martial law. The warning has been effective, and order has been restored.

Great Britain's attitude towards the proposed conference in Venice is that it would be better to wait until the military situation has been cleared up before a general political conference is held.

Muslim India is following the course of events with anxiety, and strongly deprecates pro-Greek tendencies on the part of the British Government.

In Germany, too, much interest is being taken in the Near East. The ultimate settlement of the matter will, it is held, be a hard test for the strength of the Entente.

EUROPEANS HUSTLED.

SIR C. HARINGTON'S EFFECTIVE WARNING.

Turkish rejoicings over the victories in Anatolia took an ugly turn in Constantinople on Monday night. Greeks and Europeans were hustled in the streets, and windows were broken in the Rumanian Legation, the Greek Military Mission Offices, the French Post Office, Credit Lyonnais, and European shops in the Pera suburb.

General Sir C. Harington, Commanding the Allied Forces in the neutral zone, has warned the Turkish police authorities that these demonstrations must cease, and has published a proclamation in which he says that further acts of violence will lead to the establishment of martial law. The warning has had the desired effect, and conditions are approaching the normal.

The Allied High Commissioners have informed the Angora Government representative that the Allied Governments hope that the Angora Government will respect the neutral zone of the Dardanelles and Constantinople. They recall that when the Greeks made an attempt on the Chatalja lines, the Allies opposed them energetically.

The Angora representative replied that he would send an urgent message to Angora regarding these representations.

SITUATION IN SMYRNA.

Reuter's Agency is informed that according to a telegram despatched from Smyrna late last night, all British subjects who wish to leave have been embarked. Contrary to reports, the British Consulate remains open, and is guarded by a British naval detachment. The Turkish Commander-in-Chief having given guarantees for the preservation of order and the safeguarding of the interests of all foreigners in the city, the British naval patrol has been withdrawn, but, of course, there is no question whatever of the interests of British nationals being confided to anyone but the British authorities.

Communications have been passing between the Allied Governments as to the policy to be followed, and it may be assumed that there will be no departure from the general line of policy as between Turkey and the Allies laid down last March at the Conference of Foreign Ministers in Paris. Already it has been made clear by a joint communication that no violation by the Kemalists of the neutral zone will be permitted. There has been no need to make any communication on general policy, as this remains unaltered.

With regard to the proposed Near Eastern Conference, although the need for the assembly of such a conference at an early date is recognised, the view of His Majesty's Government is that the moment is not opportune for any discussion on the lines proposed for a conference at Venice. The Allied Governments will await a clearing up of the military situation before proposing anything definite in the nature of a general political conference.

No official news has been received by the British Government as to the report that the Jugo-Slav Government has applied to Italy for representation at any such conference, but such a step for some time past has been recognised as inevitable in view of Serbia's realisation of her vital interests in the question of a common frontier between Turkey and Bulgaria. It is thought not unlikely that other Powers directly interested may follow suit.

The Archbishop of Smyrna has sent a telegram to the Pope, describing the suffering of the population and the destitute condition of the refugees, and asking for succour for the poor, irrespective of religion. The Pope replied by immediately sending a generous sum.

PEACE PROPOSALS.

BRITISH ATTITUDE.

ROME, Tuesday.

The following semi-official statement is published here:—The French Government, immediately on receiving the Italian Note proposing the meeting of a preliminary conference at Venice, while making reservations as to the manner in which the Turks might receive the proposal, gave it to be understood that its adhesion was subordinate to British adhesion.

On its part, the British Government has just notified the Italian Government that it shares its desire to bring about a prompt cessation of hostilities between the Greeks and Turks, and to co-operate in facilitating the conclusion of a durable peace between Greece and Turkey, and between the latter and the Allies.

The British Government appreciates the Italian proposal to hold a preliminary conference at Venice in a form, and with a programme, different to those agreed upon for the previously planned conference which it, like the Italian Government, regards as having fallen through.

It thinks, however, in view of the present excitement in Turkey, that before deciding upon the holding of the conference and its nature, events should be allowed to develop in Anatolia until such times as an armistice has been concluded and the situation has been stabilised.

DIRECT POURPARLERS.

Interviewed to-day by the Tribune, Fethy Bey, the Angora Minister of the Interior, referred to the proposed Venice Conference, and gave it as his personal opinion that it would be better for the Powers to allow the Turks to settle their affairs with the Greeks by means of negotiations between themselves at a meeting which might take place at Smyrna, for instance. He did not think that Mustapha Kemal would leave his territory at the moment.

Fethy Bey added that Turkey would place no difficulties in the way of negotiations, providing the fundamental principles of the Nationalist programme were recognised.—(Reuter.)

MOSLEM INDIA ANXIOUS.

PRO-GREEK POLICY FEARED.

SIMLA, Tuesday.

Reports here indicate that Moslem India is deeply stirred by the events in the Near East, and the comments of the French Press, which suggest a Pro-Greek tendency in the British policy. Even the left wing of the Khalifat movement appeared previously to be swinging back towards co-operation, but these comments have aroused deep feeling.

Indian Mussulman circulars are looking to the Imperial Government to continue to observe strict neutrality in the Turco-Greek conflict, and any departure therefrom would be strongly resented.

Moslem members of the Indian Legislature are meeting to-day to appeal to the British Government and people in this connection.

Moslem concern and anxiety is visible everywhere over the British attitude in this crisis, and the hope is expressed that the British Government will not take steps which would have the disastrous result of nullifying the efforts hitherto made to restore mutual co-operation and goodwill between Moslem India and the Government.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

IRISH GOVERNMENT'S POLICY.

MR. COSGRAVE'S SPEECH

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

Mr. Cosgrave may be congratulated upon the speech in which he has outlined the policy and intentions of the Irish Government. His words lacked none of the needful emphasis, while he disclosed a promising vein of common-sense. The problem before him demanded no elaborate exposition on his part, but he seems to have faced its familiar factors squarely. Not only the Provisional Government, but the very basis of civilised administration, has been assailed. In these circumstances Mr. Cosgrave takes his proper place as the custodian of popular right and national honour.

Men of the character of those who compose the irregular forces are not likely to be deterred by mere knowledge that public opinion condemns them and their methods. They have long since turned their backs upon considerations of this kind. They and their leaders are playing a desperate game. A purpose fostered by hatred and wounded self-esteem can be thwarted only by a determination that is, at least, its equal in strength. If, as Mr. Cosgrave leads us to hope, that determination has been formed, it remains only to put it swiftly into force. Action may require courage and high gifts of leadership, but we are confident that it would not imperil the allegiance of a single trustworthy supporter.

FOREIGN POLICY.

FOLLY OF IMPROVISATION.

The Times says:—Once again events are teaching with ruthless severity the lesson that foreign politics cannot be treated with success if they are treated in watertight compartments. The consequences of short-sighted efforts so to treat them are before our eyes in Germany and in the Near East. Foreign policy is the sphere, above all others, in which ignorant improvisation or improvisation adopted to meet personal or electioneering ends, is sure to be fatal.

British policy, and the policy of others, unhappily, has been based upon improvisations of this character ever since the close of the war. Should the Prime Minister go to Geneva, and should he meet M. Poincaré on his way, it is presumed that they will discuss the problem of the Near East, and, doubtless, also, the problem of reparations. The French Note on Near Eastern questions is expected to-day, and hopes are entertained in well-informed quarters that it will prove favourable to the views put forward by England.

Whatever happens, the moral of the present crisis is clear. It is that whenever the larger issues of foreign policy obtrude themselves in their stark reality they impose agreement and mutual co-operation upon England and France. The glaring fault in the policy of both since the war, which they won together, is that they have not steadily prepared for these larger issues by preserving the atmosphere which would make their solution easy. Inexorable necessity demands that it shall be restored. Both peoples earnestly desire its restoration. Let the politicians bear that in mind and put their backs into the business of restoring it, and restoring it without delay. For time, be it remembered, in this is of the essence of success.

NEAR EAST PERILS.

WAITING FOR FRANCE.

France's reply to the British Government's statement of its policy in the Near East is still awaited in London, says The Times. The British attitude, as indicated in well-informed quarters after the Cabinet meeting last Thursday, is that the successes which the Kemalist troops have won over the Greeks must not be allowed to prejudice either the rights of the Allies or the safety of the Christian minorities. Above all, the British Government insists that the freedom of the Straits, which it regards as one of the main prizes of the war, must be maintained.

No official statement as to how far the French Government is prepared to uphold these views has yet been made, and in British Government circles the degree of co-operation which France is prepared to afford is regarded as the whole crux of the present situation. The general view is that indications are distinctly favourable towards complete accord between the two Governments.

EX-KAISER'S FLIGHT.

In a message from Berlin yesterday, The Times Correspondent states:—A letter written by Marshal Hindenburg on July 28th last to the ex-Kaiser on the subject of the flight into Holland is published in the Berlin Press. Hindenburg accepts responsibility for the ex-Kaiser's flight into Holland as a preferable alternative to capture by internal or external enemies, thinking at the time that the exile would be only temporary. He denies, however, that he urged the immediate departure of the Kaiser on the night of November 9, 1918, and asserts that he only knew of the flight after it had actually taken place.

A BOGUS INTERVIEW.

MR. KIPLING AND AMERICA.

Some excitement, says The Times, has been caused in the United States by the report of an alleged interview with Mr. Rudyard Kipling which recently appeared in the New York World. The interview is stated to have been given by Mr. Kipling to Mrs. Clare Sheridan. In reply to an inquiry Mr. Rudyard Kipling telegraphs to us as follows:—"I did not give Mrs. Clare Sheridan an interview, and did not say the things I have seen accribed to me."

[Note.—According to Mrs. Sheridan, Mr. Kipling said on the question of international debts: "You Americans have got the gold of the world, but we English saved our souls."]

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Political developments, and more especially the situation in the Near East, again throw a shadow over the Stock markets, states The Times. Business generally was restricted, and while movements in prices were narrow, the trend was downwards. A rather brighter tendency, however, was manifested towards the close. South American Rails made a brisk rally, and the prices of leading Government securities and certain Mining and Oil shares were finally a little better than at the opening.

THE RETURN OF THE CAPITALIST.

The Morning Post says:—The Soviet Government has come to terms with Mr. Leslie Urquhart and the Russo-Asiatic Consolidated is to re-start mining for copper, gold, zinc, and lead in the Urals. As one swallow does not make a summer, so we are not sure if one capitalist or group of capitalists will succeed in changing the Bolshevist winter into the spring of civilised society. That the conclusion of the agreement is a great moral defeat for Communism and a great moral victory for capitalism is obvious. The awful experience of Russia has proved—if proof were needed—that mankind cannot exist without capital, and that the Karl Marxian system is one huge fraud and fallacy. The capitulation of Bolshevism to the logic of events is not to be gainsaid, and it has been made, let us be grateful, without any capitulation to Bolshevism, such as Mr. Lloyd George would have made at Genoa.

TRANSVAAL'S TRADE DEMANDS.

COMMERCIAL MEN AND POSTAL STRIKE.

SUPPORT FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

COMMITTEE OF HELP APPOINTED.

IMPROVEMENTS IN SERVICES REPORTED.

No approach has been made towards a settlement of the postal strike, and the various services remain in a semi-paralysed condition.

Commercial Dublin freely expressed its opinion of the strike yesterday at a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was of opinion that the Government in this matter is deserving of all the support that can be given to it, and is to be commended for its firmness.

BUSINESS MEN'S VIEW.

APPEAL TO CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

A special meeting of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday to consider the position which has arisen owing to the strike of postal workers.

Mr. William Hewat, President of the Chamber, occupied the chair. He said that it was of supreme importance that the Council should review the position, and decide what steps can be taken to cope with the effects of the strike of postal workers, which came into operation on Sunday evening last, and which was rendering communication with the outer world difficult, and the carrying on of business in some cases impossible.

"Under ordinary circumstances, labour disputes," continued the Chairman, "while of great interest to us individually, and even collectively, have not been considered as part of the work of the Chamber, but in this case it is a strike by members of a branch of the Civil Service carrying on an essential public utility, the stoppage of which aims at cutting all our lines of communication, and will, if successful, lead to paralysis, not only affecting the business activity of the country, but the social and personal relationship of individuals one with another. Now, one would have thought that we in Dublin business life had, during the last few years, run through the gamut of all the trials and tribulations that we might expect to have to face, even in revolutionary times, and we certainly have faced all these trials as they came along. Our business here to-day is to discuss how we are to deal with the situation created by this strike. Many business men, who depend largely on prompt and efficient postal, telegraphic, and telephone services, and who have few employés, will probably decide to suspend operations for the present, rather than attempt to carry on under difficulties; others will try to keep their staffs, as far as possible, at work. By co-operation amongst members of this Chamber much can be done to alleviate the situation, but it will need an organised effort to surmount the very obvious difficulties that must be faced.

"I think it will surprise most of us, if we examine essentials only, how much of the volume of communications that pass through the hands of the Post Office, and have been considered necessary, can be eliminated, for the time being, at all events; and, with goodwill, how much we can help one another in a crisis. If the meeting will concentrate on that aspect of the case, we will soon find out what practical use the Chamber can be made in serving its members. I do not propose to go into the merits of the dispute between the Government and the staff of the G.P.O.—you all know as much as I do about that; but clearly it is in the mind of labour in all directions within the new Free State to endeavour to maintain a higher rate of remuneration than similar services are being paid for in other places. How that is sustainable on any economic grounds I fail to see myself, unless it is contended that we are a law unto ourselves, and do not come into competitive contact with other parts of the country or with other countries. If maintained, it bodes ill for any prospect of building up industries, and makes the question of unemployment insoluble.

FUNCTIONS OF CIVIL SERVICE.

"Again, is it legitimate for civil servants, who are under the control of the Government, who are appointed by the elected representatives of the people (and the people here include the civil servants), to withdraw their labour? Other countries say not, our own Parliament said not, yesterday, and I think you will endorse that decision. The function of the Civil Service is for the protection of the public, acting under constituted Government. All the departments are there for that specific purpose. That any of these services should have the right to hold us up to ransom seems to me to give them a right to undermine the whole structure of the Government of the country. That the country is under a special obligation to its servants need not be denied, an obligation greater than applies to ordinary commercial undertakings, but it endows them with special responsibilities that they ought never try to abuse. Perhaps, some will say that this is not the place to discuss these problems, but I would say to you that business men must take their full share of responsibility in shaping the policy of the new State; they must organise to make their influence effective, and they must recognise their responsibility to their country, and not hesitate to express approval or disapproval of acts done or proposed to be done by any State Department or by the Government, or any section in the country. I do not say that with any intention of asking you to take sides in the present dispute, but to emphasise your right, and, indeed, obligation, to face the position caused by the strike, with the firm intention of asserting your own rights to make whatever arrangements you may consider necessary under the circumstances, and that the trade of the country must be carried on.

"If the people who are aggressive in standing for what they consider their rights could be brought to consider the rights of others at the same time, it would tend to greater harmony, which is so badly needed, and if political consideration were less in evidence and anxiety to work more apparent, we could all look more hopefully to the future of this our native land. You are called on to act together not only in this matter that is before us to-day, but in every other matter that concerns the prosperity of the country. For better or worse, the forces that are to operate in this country must be organised. As regards some of the greater industries, some of them in the past have been self-sufficient, and have rightly prided themselves on occupying this position. There is a call to them to-day to come in and join with us, or lead us, as the case may be, but, in either case, help to shape our destinies, so that every element of our industrial life can be brought into line to achieve some national advancement for the general good, that we as a Chamber must work for in a way that we have never worked in the past.

BUSINESS AND THE STATE.

"Big issues are involved. Are the business men going to stand outside the gates, or are they going to come in to take their full share of the burden? Are they going to continue to be blinded by trade jealousies so as not to see the big national issues, or are they going to rise to the recognition of their collective responsibility? Is each member of the Chamber going to take a personal interest in the work, or are you going to leave it to the few members you elect on the Council? The matter rests with yourselves, and you must decide now."

When the present difficulty is settled, he said, they must join in demanding a uniform postal rate for Great Britain and Ireland. It is essential. It should be done without subsidy. Subsidy is a tax on industry. They saw no reason, he said, why the cost of living should be higher in Dublin than elsewhere. If it is higher they called on the Government to inquire into and remedy any grievance on this head in the interest of all concerned—but, above all, as temporary occupant of the position of President of this Chamber of Commerce, he would ask each and every member of this and other Chambers of Commerce in Southern Ireland, to acknowledge their responsibility in the building up of the new Free State, for their own particular share in this work.

"I think there will be a consensus of opinion which you will not hesitate to express," he concluded, "that the officials of our Post Office are as fine a body of men and women as you will get anywhere. There may be the opinion amongst you that they have been misled in taking such a drastic step as they have done—there may be the wish expressed that it may be possible to arrange the differences that have led to stoppage, but the main object of our meeting must not be lost sight of in any discussion that takes place, and that is the obligation to help one another to tide over the difficult period we have to face in the most effective manner possible. Time is an important element, and workers necessary if we are to do any good work."

The Right Hon. A. Jameson, P.C., D.L., proposed:—

"That in order to minimise as far as possible the injury to the trade and commerce of the country, and the consequent widespread suffering to all sections of the people, a committee of the Chamber be appointed to devise and carry out arrangements to assist, as far as possible, in meeting the urgent needs of business men in the present emergency."

He said that they held a high opinion of their postal officials, and the fact that this body of civil servants had adopted such a method as the strike for calling attention to their grievances was very disappointing. No doubt, in making up their minds to strike, the Post Office workers relied upon the fact that on account of the loss and inconvenience suffered, business men would be compelled to approach the Government and say: "This strike must end." Anybody could fairly assume what their future in business would be if they submitted to that dictation. (Hear, hear.) The Government had done what any other Government would have done—it stood up and said No! They were in an unusual position, and so was the Government, faced as it was by a most difficult situation. At such a moment one would have thought that the postal workers would have hesitated before adding to the difficulties of the Government in Southern Ireland at present. Members of that Chamber, at least, had no intention of grumbling at the trouble they would meet with in dealing with correspondence. They wanted to tell the Government that the business men were behind them in whatever action they were taking. At the same time they must do their best to make the carrying on of their business as easy as possible. There was no doubt that the Government had a proper grip of the situation, and if they appointed a committee of their members to keep in touch with the Government and make arrangements for the receipt and despatch of correspondence, it would be a great help.

THE GOVERNMENT'S FIRMNESS.

Mr. James Shanks seconded. He said that he thought they should make every arrangement for coping with the present difficulty. There was considerable dissatisaction with the method adopted by the postal officers for enforcing their claims against the Government. They had heard of the Divine right of Kings, but now they seemed to be having the Divine right to strike. The loss to the community would be much greater than any benefit which would accrue to the postal workers. One satisfactory feature about the whole thing was the example of firmness shown by the new Irish Government.

Mr. James Brady said that the postal workers had done the wrong thing at the wrong time. It appeared to him that the strike was unpatriotic. He wished that somebody would bring the opposing parties together with a view to effecting an amicable settlement.

Mr. George N. Jacob said that they were prepared to put up with discomfort and loss rather than to see the Government give in to this outrageous act on the part of civil servants. The attitude of the Chamber should be to stand firm and fight it out to a finish.

Sir Horace Plunkett said that they proposed to set up an independent method of maintaining their postal communications as far as possible. Many of those present wished to keep their business going and to maintain their staffs. The conference presided over by Mr. Douglas nearly reached an agreement. There was a feeling that the postal branch of the Civil Service was going to be deprived of the right of organisation, but only in the last resort were they justified in resorting to a strike. It was absolutely necessary to have an arrangement with their civil servants which precluded a strike, but the Irish Government was only three days old and had not had time to make the necessary arrangements for dealing with the grievances of any of their civil servants. Therefore, there was a distinct feeling on the part of that Chamber that the postal servants, for whom they had feelings of nothing but the greatest friendliness, had not given the Government time to make the necessary arrangements for dealing with these matters in the future.

The Chairman supplemented the resolution by proposing the following as a Committee:—Messrs. J. N. Eason, H. C. Doyle, Arthur O'Reilly, M. Stokes, Sir S. Maddock, M. Hubbard, and the honorary officers, with power to add to their number.

The motion was passed and the meeting terminated.

A THOUSAND TELEGRAMS.

POSITION REPORTED TO BE IMPROVING.

The following official report was issued last night:—

"In addition to the running of practically all sub-telephone exchanges, Crown Alley Central Exchange is sufficiently staffed to deal with all Government and essential services work. In addition, a small but growing percentage of private calls are being dealt with.

"Communications with the provinces from the Central Telegraph Office have been very limited and uncertain for some weeks past, through the cutting of wires; whilst this position is worsened by the strike, the inconvenience is only a matter of degree. A fair number of telegrams to different parts of the country have been dealt with during the past two days. Telegrams are accepted for England, the six North-East counties, and abroad; but these, in many cases, are subject to delay. Over a thousand were dealt with at Amiens street to-day. Arrangements have now been made for the reception of all telegrams for Dublin and a number of other towns in the twenty-six counties from places outside that area. The situation in this respect is likely to show appreciable improvement in the near future. Facilities are being provided at Holyhead for the ready disposal of Press work for English and foreign newspapers, whilst the Irish Press, as may be observed, displays little or no trace of a break in communications.

"About thirty sorting clerks are engaged at the Rink Sorting Office, and mails are being made up and despatched to England and abroad. Seventeen bags of mails were forwarded last night.

"There is no restriction in posting, except that the public are requested to confine their communications to those of a very urgent character. Incoming mails are not so regular, owing to the activities of strikers, who in some cases have taken up a very menacing attitude to men engaged in the transport of mails from the stations. The following is a typical instance:—Messrs. Wallis, Dublin, car contractors, report to-day:—'All vans went out as usual this morning. The majority of drivers that went to Westland Row to meet the night mail were turned back by pickets posted around the station. Two of them managed to get to the platform. One van was loaded by the porters, when suddenly pickets made their appearance and ordered the porters to unload the van. The porters refused. Then the pickets themselves unloaded the van.' Steps are now being taken to despatch and collect mails from different parts of the country.

"This morning there was an accession of strength to the officers on duty in Dublin and in the provinces. In this respect the position will, it is anticipated, steadily improve."

CALLERS AT THE RINK OFFICE.

Up to last night there was no sign of a settlement in the strike. The situation was much the same as on Monday, inasmuch as there were again no postal deliveries, no telegrams, and no telephones, with the consequent dislocation of business. Businesses which democratic country would accept peace—that the Parliament set up by the people must control the army of the country.

In supporting the resolution, he felt that in whatever steps the Government might take to establish and assert the will of the people and the people's Parliament, the Government would have every respect for the rights of the minority and be ever mindful that it was dealing with brother-Irishmen. He felt equally confident that the generosity and magnanimity of the Minister of Defence would ensure justice and considered action by the Army.

But the civil authority must be supreme, and neither army could be allowed to dictate to Parliament. The Government must carry out the mandate of the people expressed through the Parliament, and ensure to the whole nation the right to live. He was convinced that the Ministry was determined that the whole people, without differentiation of class, should have that right to live. He supported the resolution because the Ministry meant to ensure that the will of the people in the country should be the supreme law. (Cheers.)

THE AMENDMENT.

Mr. Darrell Figgis moved an amendment to the motion to the following effect:—"But regrets, in view of the economic peril which confronts the nation alike in matters commercial, agricultural, and industrial, and in matters of credit and local government, and other departments of local life, and especially in view of the problem of unemployment, which has lead to so much discontent, that the President, on behalf of the Ministry, did not decide on a definite policy which would recommend itself to Dail Eireann."

He said that he thought the amendment was one that very few in the Dail would not support. He did not object to what the resolution said, but to what it did not say. He thought that the speeches that they had jus heard smacked too much of matters of which he hoped that they had heard the last. These matters had been settled by the election, and should be left where they had been left by the decision of the electors.

What they had to do was to get some definite constructive work accomplished, to relieve the present distress, which was very largely the effect of economic forces, and did not arise out of the Treaty or political discussions of the Dail.

They had heard a great deal of partial history on the previous day. They were not told all the facts. He had been told that before the Dail was to meet in June an irregular Volunteer convention had been held, at which it was decided to open hostilities against British forces. Under these circumstances, he was in entire agreement with the action taken by the Government. A great deal of the present unrest was being charged to the fact that the Government irregularly opened hostilities, but that was not true. While it was true that war made unemployment, it was also true that unemployment made war. Much of the present unrest was due to the fact that men were out of work. It was quite possible that some of them did not want work, but he was sure that the majority would work if they got it.

That symptom had been found after every war in every country, and it was due to the fact that men were not able to get the employment that they desired. That was true of Belfast at present. They had now got into the position in this country where they were chasing round the vicious circle. It was only when the Government dealt directly with the cause, as well as the effect, that they would be able to diminish unemployment and so control irregularism.

FINANCE.

Mr. Figgis went on to deal with the necessity of maintaining discipline in some sections of the Army. That discipline would never be maintained as long as there was unrest outside the Army. He questioned the statement of the President regarding the inability of that Parliament to deal with matters of taxation. If the Dail was sitting as the competent Parliament, surely it was competent to undertake the financial control of the country. (Hear, hear). As regards the proclamation of the Home Ministry regarding the postal strike, he would like to know on what authority it was made. Under Clause 9 of the Draft Constitution, the right which the Minister had withdrawn was conceded. Such action would tend to increase, instead of decrease, disorder, and would tend to impair the maintenance of the prestige necessary to the Free State. He had heard that on the previous day those taking part in the parade of postal workers had boohed a lorry load of national troops in Dawson street. That was a deplorable thing to have occurred. Many of those men in the procession a month ago would probably have regarded every one of these soldiers as a guardian of the rights of the citizens.

Mr. Johnson said that his information was that there was no boohing of the national troops, but of a particular individual who was passing at the time.

Mr. Figgis next referred to the letter, which was quoted the previous day by the Minister of Home Affairs, from a prisoner in Galway, in which he expressed a desire to get guns in order to "talk" to bank managers and railway officials. What caused that prisoner to have that curious desire? He ventured to say that it was due to his being out of employment. Mr. Figgis urged the Government to put forward a definite constructive programme by which unemployment might be decreased, and thus, when it had been decreased, they could bring down the criminal revolt and reduce the present warfare to definite proportions. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. O'Callaghan (Labour) seconded the amendment.

Mr. Gorey (Farmers) said that he was in favour of Mr. Sear's motion. He thought that the amendment was worthy of a debate all to itself. He had listened with regret to the speech of Mr. O'Shannon on the previous day, because he had not put forward one constructive idea. Mr. O'Shannon seemed to him to be a man who had in his hand a huge brush, with which he wished to tar the Government and the Ministry with very black stuff. He had not expressed any opinion as to whether the voice and will of the people, or the bully with the gun, was going to prevail in this country.

LAW OF THE GUN.

There was no law in this country now but the law of the gun. The country was crying out for peace, but to his (Mr. Gorey's) mind that peace must be a peace that would secure that the majority of the nation should be the Government of the nation. (Hear, hear.) There could be no peace unless all the arms in the country were under the control of the Government, and any settlement that did not secure that would be no real settlement. They did not want a settlement that only secured peace to-day to be followed by war to-morrow. Let the Government go on and not turn back, and make a lasting peace as soon as possible.

Mr. Figgis had said that unemployment was driving young men into the army; but he (Mr. Gorey) knew that young men would not work. They had a craze for arms, and 95 per cent. of the young men of the country would not go back to work, although they could get good jobs.

Mr. Milroy said that he would support the original motion. He recalled Mr. Johnson's speech on Saturday, in which that member, on the question of the appointment of Mr. Cosgrave as President, said that his statement of policy—the policy of the Government—was unsatisfactory. He (Mr. Milroy) wanted to know what was unsatisfactory in Mr. Cosgrave's statement. Mr. Cosgrave had said that it was his intention to implement the Treaty. Was that unsatisfactory? Was it unsatisfactory to say that he would enact the Constitution, and assert the authority and supremacy of Parliament? Was it unsatisfactory to say that he would support and assist the national army in asserting the people's rights? Was it unsatisfactory to say that he would ask Parliament, if necessary, for such powers as may be deemed essential for restoring order and repressing crime? Was it unsatisfactory to say that the Government would expedite the return of normal conditions to the country and promotion of reconstruction?

If no answer were given by Mr. Johnson, then he (Mr. Milroy) thought that the Labour members should support the motion. (Hear, hear.) The presidential address was not so much a statement of policy as a statement of the position of the Government. What the country wanted to know to-day was what was the position in which the Government stood—whether it meant to restore peace or whether there was to be any more shilly-shallying with the forces of disorder. No member of the House could divest himself of responsibility for the future of Ireland, for they had now the chance of giving to the Irish people an opportunity to make their will articulate. If they failed in that they would fail in their duty to the people who sent them there.

A SERIOUS MENACE.

He was glad to hear Mr. Johnson say that he and his party accepted the expression of the will of the Irish people, for their attitude up to the present was doubtful. When the fate of the Treaty was trembling in the balance not a single man in the Labour party said a word in favour of the Treaty. But, above all, the House should realise that the great and vital thing for Ireland was not a discussion of a theoretical kind, but that the country was face to face with a serious menace.

The country was on the edge of a precipice, and it should be got back from that precipice before it went over. (Hear, hear.) He presumed that that was the work that the Government was engaged in. They were not engaged in any vendetta or attempt to humiliate political opponents. (Hear, hear.) He was prepared to go any length to make it easy for those who fought against the Government to lay down their arms and make peace with their fellow-countrymen.

Ireland wanted peace, and Ireland would get it if the people stood by the Government that was trying to bring peace to this troubled land. (Hear, hear.) Let no man of any party, either in Ireland or outside of Ireland, imagine that the operations undertaken by the Government had been undertaken for the convenience of England. If any man or body of men in England imagined that it was for their convenience they would get a rude awakening some day. These steps had been undertaken in order to restore peace and security to the Irish people, to enable them to live their normal life, and to place at their disposal a chance of bringing about that prosperity to which they were entitled. (Applause.)

STEPS TO AVERT CRISIS.

Alderman William O'Brien (Labour) referred to the fact that it had been said that before the present conflict was embarked upon every possible step had been taken to avert the crisis. He thought that there was at least one very obvious step which had not been taken, and that was that a meeting of the Dail had not been called and a full report presented of the steps taken to prevent the conflict. That had not been done, and he would say that the first thing that they ought to expect was a full report concerning the negotiations which took place to bring peace and unification in the Army.

He suggested that there was some reason, not yet explained, why the present conflict had been embarked upon within three days of the meeting of the Dail that had been fixed for 1st July. Deputy Milroy had spoken about moral courage, but if his (Mr. Milroy's) party had their way there would be no one in the Dail but Deputy Milroy and his colleagues, and the people would have had no opportunity of expressing their opinions. He thought that they were entitled to a full statement of the negotiations between the Army leaders, and that as they had not heard it long ago they should have it now. The President had made a very comprehensive statement, but to obtain the proper perspective of recent months they would like to get something about what had occurred since the truce.

THE SPLIT.

The President had dealt with negotiations with England, which were already a matter of history. In the first place they should like to know something about the split.

No one would deny that at no time had any party had the same support accorded to the Sinn Fein party up to June last. Some of that support had been given through love, and some through fear. The movement for which he spoke could claim to have done their part. He could pass over the jibes made at them because they were not prepared to harness themselves to the chariot wheels of the party for which the previous deputy had spoken. They made their position very clear long before the country had given its verdict.

The Labour Party believed in national freedom, not for itself, but as a means to an end. They believed that national freedom was incomplete without economic and industrial freedom. He had always believed in an Irish Republic. The Labour movement did everything they could in the fight for national freedom. When a settlement was arrived at they took the view that the men who knew the most about the situation knew what was best to be done. He accepted the views of the military men who were in charge of the I.R.A., and who believed that they could not get better terms than were offered in the Treaty. He had accepted the view of the present Minister of Defence, and when that was reinforced by the leading military men of his (Mr. Mulcahy's) side he was prepared to accept it entirely.

Referring to a statement made by a Minister in the previous day's proceedings, Mr. O'Brien said that they would have to put up the same fight for the Labour movement that they had to put up anywhere else, and it would do them good. He then referred to the conferences which had taken place in recent months, at which Labour had been present. When they had, he said, suggested to the Government that the Four Courts Executive should be invited, they were told that they could not and would not be invited. Yet, within forty-eight hours representatives of the Executive had been called in.

Having dealt with these negotiations the speaker said that, personally, he did not worship majority rule, but nobody could deny what the verdict of the country would have been, and he thought that they ought to accept that verdict. In the discussion the previous day it was Mr. O'Higgins, he thought, who had said that the reason they had embarked on the present conflict was because they had information that the people in the Four Courts had prepared a certain plan or coup.

Mr. O'Higgins said that he had enumerated a series of incidents, and had pointed out that they were cumulative, and, in addition, there was that information alluded to, which was that the authorities in the Four Courts had planned a coup, and they only got in front of them by a short time.

Mr. O'Brien said that so far as they knew no convincing reason had been given why Parliament did not meet on July 1st. The Government might be able to convince them that they were justified in doing so, but so far they had not been told why. They were entitled to expect a full and complete statement why it did not meet on 1st July. He had been told that many anti-Treaty members would have taken a different view of the situation if Parliament had been called together at that time.

MILITARY SITUATION.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Mulcahy (Minster of Defence) then made a statement regarding the Army situation. He felt grateful, he said, for the indications of the various assurances which they had got from the different groups in the House that they were definitely going to regard the Treaty as secure, and that on that particular point they were all as one great group. (Hear, hear.) There were one or two points upon which he had to go back, but he hoped to do so without prejudice to the fact that they had to get forward quickly, realising without any great delay that they were in a very dangerous situation.

As regards the split in the Army it was worth saying what the policy of the Government was after the passing of the Treaty, and the setting up of a Ministry committed to seeing it through. Differences arose in the Army. Hot-headed men wanted to pull this way and that way. This was the attitude that, as Minister of Defence at the time, he put forward, and, he took it, while it represented the attitude that the old Government adopted towards the Army, although they might consider it as finessing a little too much with honour. The position was that the English were clearing out. They had a number of men coming from the camps in the country and the little corners in the hills where they had been training during the truce. They were coming into the barracks where they could strengthen themselves and arm themselves. The Army was appealed to not to raise questions upon which they could split in that particular atmosphere. It was asked to wait until the Constitution was definitely produced, when it would have something before it, and when it could say—"We will not have this," or "Under the circumstances we will have this." It would then arrive at a position of very great strength, and if there was a voice strong enough to speak to the country it would have a weapon that it could use to get the answer it wanted.

He was perfectly satisfied that the situation was not a military stiuation alone, and that, given five or six months to face the actual circumstances, those who had led the Army would not be blind enough to turn round and say, "We will not have this Constitution, and we will put the people to war." He felt absolutely satisfied that the putting of that policy before the Army was correct, and if men split the Army they were men who took a different attitude. If anybody could point to a more reasonable attitude let them hear what it could have been.

Conversations and exchanges took place between the different sides, and naturally people wanted to know what transpired at them. The President, in his statement, read a document in this connection. It was the final note on which the negotiations broke down. A memorandum was handed to him on the 15th June by Messrs. O'Connor and O'Maille, to the effect that a resolution had been passed at an "Executive" meeting held the previous day deciding, amongst other things, to take whatever steps were necessary against the British forces, to take no offensive against the troops at Beggar's Bush. Generally, the result of the endeavours to bring about unification was that five members of the agreed Army Council of seven were in favour of unification. A memorandum prepared by Commandant Sean Moylan was, with a few alterations, the basis of agreement. It was so difficult to get anything in writing from the other side that he gripped on to it.

THE DOCUMENT.

At this stage the Minister of Defence read the document upon which the Army Council agreed. It contained eleven clauses, the first of which was that all ranks and positions were to be as on 1st December, 1921, with certain provisions. The second clause provided that ex-soldiers of other armies were to be employed only in training or an advisory capacity. Other clauses provided for the appointment of a re-organising staff under Liam Lynch, as Deputy Chief of Staff, for the recruiting and local control of divisions, and for a Gaelic outlook involving the training of the youth of the country.

The Minister next read the proposals submitted to the Four Courts Executive, which provided for a periodical convention to elect an Army Council. He would not recommend any young State to organise its Army along those lines, but, considering the circumstances in which they were, they allowed themselves to be dragged from what would be lines of organisation of an Army properly subject to a Government. The proposals which came before the Executive on June 14th were turned down, because it was decided that the man who would be placed in complete executive control of the Army would be the man who a short time ago recommended the idea of a dictatorship, and was out for the suppression of the Press and the stoppage of elections, and who also had stated time after time that he would not allow the Treaty to be worked. In spite of his very sterling character, they could not allow as chief military head of the Army a man who had publicly taken up that attitude. (Hear, hear.)

As a matter of fact, they were dealing with little bits of mercury that slipped from one side to another when they came to anything like grips with them.

Following on that breakdown, he addressed a letter in which he said that, on the matter of general proposals, they had gone as far as they could, and that further responsibility must be left to the new Coalition Government which was being formed. Before Parliament met on the following Saturday the Government took action against the people in the Four Courts, because a coup was meditated, and, so far as it was possible for human people to foresee, they foresaw that, if they did not take the move they did, that Parliament would never meet. (Hear, hear.) It had been stated that the Executive people intended an attack against the English.

The Minister of Defence then quoted from a document in the handwriting of one of the members of the Executive, which contained a resolution stating that the Executive Council of the I.R.A. had decided that, as the only means of maintaining the Republic was by giving the English seventy-two hours to clear out of Ireland, they had further decided to declare war on the British. Statistics were then given in the document giving the comparative strength of the British and Irish forces.

Under the head, "Activities, 26 Counties," it was decided to destroy all barracks occupied by Irish troops and positions held by English troops; to clear out all English Government officials, Dublin Castle, etc.; to resume immediately hostilities in England, especially against the General Staff and the Cabinet, and to conduct reprisals in England for shelling, etc.

Under the head, "Six Counties," it was decided to destroy warerooms and Orange Lodges, and it was mentioned that they did not intend to send any reinforcements from Southern Ireland, as they could not be spared.

These documents, General Mulcahy proceeded to explain, were not in their hands when they took the decision they did, but the general information was in their hands, and when the raid for motor cars was made on a firm in Dublin the Government practically decided that the Four Courts was to be proceeded against. That decision was practically taken, if not formally taken, before Lieutenant-General O'Connell was arrested on the same night. Those of them who were responsible for the decision felt that they were justified in it, as they could not allow the country to take the risk of an attack upon the British.

ESSENTIALS OF PEACE.

The Government had been asked whether there was no way in which a word might be uttered from the Ministry that would give hope to the country. There were certain essentials for peace in this country, and the first, in his opinion, was that some body of people representing the people should be allowed to work the Treaty, and the next was that they should be allowed to do so with the best Constitution that they could get under it. The third essential was that the sword must not be again thrown into the situation against any particular clause of the Constitution and against the expressed vote of that Parliament; the fourth was that opposition to the Government working the Constitution framed in accordance with the Treaty must be along constitutional lines; fifth, that the Army must be the people's Army and responsible to the National Government; and sixth, that the Government shall control by its regulation all arms held in the country.

These were details that to-day and to-morrow they might have difficulties about, but if they got them accepted generally throughout the country, and if they had no body of people challenging any one of these six points in arms, then they could have peace in the country, and they could settle all the other details in time. His information was that certain of these points were not unchallenged in the country by force of arms, and he had gone as deeply and closely into the matter as it was possible to go.

THREE CLASSES.

Here was the attitude that he found. There was opposition to these fundamental principles by three classes, who were for the moment all in one whole. There was opposition that might be classed as politicians, by people who might be classed as honest soldiers, and people who might be classed as criminals. (Cheers.)

The honest soldiers had been misled, and were waiting for a word of the politicians to say that they were travelling a wrong road. The politicians were in this particular frame of mind—"We signed the pact with those who supported the Treaty, and we signed it in order to avoid a terrible state of things. We were led into signing that pact by the light of reason, and in signing it we bowed our head in the light of reason." But men of fate arose and took action, and the politicians dropped their hands by their sides and they said to themselves through pure lack of moral courage—"After all, perhaps it is better to be led by fate than by reason."

Every one of the six points that he mentioned as fundamental for the peace of this country was challenged by force of arms.

That was his impression of the situation, and if there was any group or any single person in that House who said that that interpretation was wrong, they had to go to the people who could authoritatively state that the attitude was otherwise, and if they did go there and brought a statement that the attitude was otherwise, there was nobody would welcome that statement more than he would or the Government.

Failing a statement to that effect the work before the Government was to vindicate its authority and to stand absolutely by its authority in establishing these principles, because if they weakened on any one of these to-day all security and safety in the country would be gone. He did not wish at that moment to go into details as to how the armed force that was opposed to them on these principles was to be met. But it was to be met vigorously and firmly, and as legally as possible. It was to be met, whatever squeamishness they might have about taking life, for they could not be squeamish with people who jeopardised the life of every single person in the country.

FORCE TO FORCE.

If they could get rid of that armed force without taking life, if they could capture these people and put them in jail they would endeavour, by every means in their power, to do so, but they could not have any soft feelings in their hearts when they had to oppose with force a force that threatened the whole life and safety of their nation. (Cheers.)

Feeling the temper of the House, and being grateful for it, he disliked very much to have to go over the past. He would prefer to look forward to the future, because he was perfectly satisfied that this House looked immediately and constructively to the future.

Proceeding, the Minister of Defence said that the point had been raised as to who was responsible at the moment, and who would be responsible in the immediate future, for keeping order in the country. For the greater portion of the country the Army must be responsible, because there was no other force, no other organisation to do it. There was no use in challenging the Army and saying, because the Army was called upon to deal with law and order in one particular area, and because it did its work there in the only way an Army can do it, "this is militarism," and that the Army was butting in.

They stood for the supremacy of the civil power in the Government, and when they spoke of indiscipline in the Army—and cases of it cropped up—he asked for some sympathetic realisation of what the position of the Army was. They were carrying on very difficult military operations, and were up to their eyes in these difficulties, which arose because of the lack of civil administration. If young men in the Army brushed up against people here and there in a rough and untactful way, it was very greatly to the credit of the Army as a whole, and the young men of this country who formed it, that these cases were not in greater volume.

They realised the danger of indiscipline in the Army, and they realised the danger of inexperience in dealing with public matters, and it was most necessary to establish civil administration and civil police, and then the Army would very soon find its own place. (Hear, hear.)

POSITION UNDER TREATY.

The point had been raised as to whether the Government did not consider that the national position was that the people only accepted this Treaty because they must, and that they accepted it as something short of their ultimate demand. He accepted this Treaty as giving them a position short of what he would wish their national position to be, but he accepted it as against the state of things that they had emerged from. He accepted it as giving to them a position for which they might work forward to the highest pinnacle of national dignity and national honour, without that nation-killing irritation between nation and nation that they had suffered from, and of which they had seen so many sad examples in Europe.

He would prefer to be dealing with the work of construction, and did not sympathise with the spirit that, at this moment, put forward the amendment that had been moved to the original resolution. (Cheers.)

The state of military affairs that existed at present and the situation of the Army had retarded the dealing with the question of unemployment. He looked forward to the time when their military work was done, and they might give some small contribution to the constructive work of the country in that spirit of service and co-operation that distinguished them in the Army, and that spirit of co-operation and service that Deputy Johnson spoke of on Saturday.

He had in his mind a scheme which he hoped would be taken up by the Government, and which would relieve unemployment, which was a source of danger to the country. It would give employment to the men who were retiring from the Army and promote the development of the country. The country, he suggested, should be divided into zones, and the works would be better roads in the country, drainage, and house-building. The money that would be expended on improving the roads of the country would be returned in the shape of less repairing costs to motor vehicles. As to drainage, he suggested that such rivers as the Awbeg, near Fermoy, should be improved. It would confer a great benefit upon the district. As to housing, he believed that no member of the House would be averse to it, because better wages and shorter hours for the working classes were as nothing unless they had decent houses to live in. (Hear, hear.) In these schemes he proposed that the loose-end soldiers of the Anglo-Irish war should find employment. The armed challenge to the authority of the Government should be put down, and would be put down. (Applause.)

At 6.10 the House adjourned for an hour.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

After the tea adjournment, Mr. Thomas Johnson said that the Minister for Defence had set an example which he hoped would extend right through Government circles. If the tone which he had adopted had been present in the minds of Ministers, more especially the Propaganda Department, during the last four or five months they would not now be in the pitiable position which they were in to-day. It was evident that one Minister, at any rate, had not forgotten the course of history of the last four years. He had told the country to-day what it should have been told before the bombardment began. Much of the trouble could have been averted if the country had previously been taken into the confidence of Ministers.

A beginning had been made, but only a beginning. They would like to know the course of the negotiations with the political leaders as well as with the military. The Labour Party could not approve of the resolution before the House, because it asked for approval of the action of the Government to assert the authority of Parliament. They were asked to approve of the kind of action that was taken, the time when it was taken, and the method of its pursuit. He was sorry to have to say that the innumerable complaints that were reaching them indicated that there must be some truth, at any rate, in the assertion that certain ranks and officers in the Army were carrying out the work that had been handed to them in a manner which was entirely indefensible, and which could not be approved by that House.

He complained of the arrest and imprisonment of persons without trial, persons who had never carried arms, but who were arrested on suspicion, and advocated the appointment of a Committee of Inquiry into the treatment of prisoners. As regards unemployment, he said that they wanted some indication of policy on matters concerning the daily lives of the people, even though they were carrying on a war. It was folly for Ministers to think only in terms of war. That way ruin lay.

SPIRITED DEFENCE.

Mr. O'Higgins, Minister for Home Affairs, defended the Government against the indictment of Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson did not like the tone of the speech of the Leader of the House, but the substance of the statement was far more important than its tone, and he (Mr. O'Higgins) liked its substance. The Minister of Defence had spoken for all the Ministers, and their view was that if there was to be peace the men in arms against that Parliament should accept the authority of Parliament in an unqualified and unequivocal manner. (Hear, hear.) They must accept the Treaty and the Constitution under it, and the arms in every part of the country must be placed under the control of the Government. (Hear, hear.)

He asked the House to remember the issues that were at stake. There were people going round the country with guns in their hands fighting over words, without the slightest idea of the social, economic, or political considerations that were at stake. That was the tragical part of the business. The issue was whether Parliament was to be the supreme authority in the country, and to have control of all sections armed or unarmed. (Hear, hear.) They had been blamed for having postponed the meeting of the Dail, and he believed that the Government were right in doing so, because it would be futile to summon Parliament if its members were not free to express themselves without intimidation from any armed minority.

Tone was important, but straight talk was even more important. Reflections were made on the conduct of the national troops, but he held that those troops had been on occasions too courteous to prisoners. (Labour cries of "Shame.") They all knew what had happened at Maryborough, when three officers of the national Army were shot dead with dum-dum bullets by an ambush party, who promptly put up their hands, cried for mercy, and walked out. The first and most important policy for the future was to vindicate the authority of Parliament, and he made no secret of it.

Mr. Johnson—By any method?

RATIFY THE TREATY.

Mr. O'Higgins—Our next is to ratify the Treaty, and pass the Constitution, and to lay the foundations of the State on which something worthy can be built. (Hear, hear.) He hoped that the whole House, with the help of the Labour members, would set itself to that work, and if they did they would have done good work. The Government had a policy for unemployment. What was the cause of the abnormal unemployment in this country? How could anyone expect anything but unemployment when the whole transport system of the country was held up, when the whole banking system was held up, and when looting of goods trains and shops was carried on? Let them get down to realities and drop humbug.

The real cause of unemployment in this country was the destruction of the economic life of the country by the men in arms against this Parliament—(hear, hear)—and whatever military measures were necessary would be taken to deal with unemployment.

Professor Magennis moved that the question be now put, and he suggested that the wording of the original motion be altered by the change of a few words, so as to make it acceptable to all parties. Some of them did not know what was meant by the "action the Government is now taking." He moved that the wording be "That the Dail approves of the determination of the Ministry in asserting the authority of the Dail, and enforcing the will of the Irish people."

Mr. Cosgrave asked if it was an attempt to escape responsibility for the action of the Government from the 28th of June till now. If there was any such attempt made he would not accept the amendment.

Mr. Johnson—I will not accept responsibility for many of the actions of the Government since June 28th.

Mr. Cosgrave said that the Government had taken serious responsibility, and did not seek to evade that responsibility. People spoke of prisoners and their sufferings, and they forgot that the national troops were being made cockshots for snipers and bombers, and that unfortunate civilians going about their business, as well as women and children, were being shot at and injured and terrorised.

NOT ACCEPTED.

Mr. Davin (Labour)—Are we to understand that the Ministry accepts the amendment?

Mr. Cosgrave—No. The real thing is the shocking state of discredit to which the business of the country has been reduced by reason of the action of the irregulars. If there are persons in this House who wish to evade that responsibility, that is their business; but I will not do it. (Applause.) What has got to be asserted in this country is the supremacy of the people, and their right to live their lives in peace and security, and without interruption from any despot who has a gun in his hand.

As to the financial responsibility for all this, the country could only borrow the sum of money that it could afford to pay back. If it borrowed in excess of the money it was capable of paying back, bang went its currency. If they were to do what they were asked, they would have to borrow huge sums of money, and they would have to admit to the finance house or bankers they went to, that no income tax was being paid.

In one very important commercial centre not a single shilling of income tax was paid. Were they going to borrow on that security, and, if so, at what per cent., and were they able to pay 1 per cent. charged? He might be a child in these things, but he had an ordinary business man's contemplation of the value of money, and he appreciated the fact that a Government must meet their liabilities.

In a country like theirs, where the political outlook and atmosphere was charged with suspicion, unrest, and insecurity, what had a Government like theirs to offer in the shape of security when they knew full well that money spent in many of the things suggested would be money lost? When any section could come along with arms and destroy various piers, as they did throughout the country?

SECURITY OF PEOPLE.

What action the Government had taken in that matter was not for a mere formula for the supremacy of Parliament, but for the security of the people, of their lives, and the value of the money that was in the country.

With regard to the resolution, it was important that they should know exactly where they stood. There was no use in getting up there and making apologetic speeches for the people outside who were in arms against them. The Government knew, and every member knew, that they carried their lives in their hands when they felt that there was such moral desolation abroad. The people had lost the moral sense of their responsibilities and duty when the nation was reeking with the filth of overwrought nerves and dope that was being handed out by people certainly not in their senses.

He knew that there were idealists among the Republicans. He told the Dail last December that there was at least one man who meant what he said. He knew that they were fakirs, who, when they put up the white flag, dragged the ideals of Republicanism in the mud. He had no respect for men who when, as in Leix, had done their fell work, screamed for mercy, and twenty-five of whom surrendered to the troops.

They were criticised because they did not hold Parliament on 28th June. The facts were that the second institution in the country had a meeting called for a day or two later. Certainly two or three or four members of the House were members of that institution, and a resolution was there tabled to criticise the Government. There were 128 members of the House scattered all over the country, from Donegal to Cork, and Galway to Dublin. The other institution had 80 members, each one of whom lived in the City of Dublin, and they could not get sufficient members to turn up to form a quorum; and they tabled a resolution condemning the Dail for not meeting! If there was one of those members present he asked him to say if what he said was untrue.

Alderman O'Brien—I was present at that meeting, and what I said was, that instead of postponing the Dail and starting the war, you should have postponed the war and held the Dail.

President Cosgrave, continuing, said that they were not shirking their responsibilities. They believed that they did right by striking, "and," he declared, amidst applause, "if I were to meet the Supreme Judge within five minutes from now, I would go hoping that every action of my life was as well justified as that action, and I am not afraid to take a vote of the House on this question."

Mr. Johnson—We are not dealing with the morality of the question, but the wisdom.

"If I have ever done a wise thing in my life," retorted the President quickly, "I bank on that as the wisest." (Cheers and laughter.) I appreciate the action of those who differ from us if they are not as wise as we are." (Laughter.)

Continuing, he said that at the present moment the country was suffering from lack of moral courage. There were people, even in that House, who did not pay their income tax or their rates, and who could afford to pay. And there were people outside evading their responsibilitity. If the House did nothing else but electrify the country into a state of moral responsibility it would have done some good, even if the irregulars got them five minutes after they had done that work. (Applause.)

It was not a time for borrowing money. He did not agree with the member of the House who said that they could get it at 5½ per cent. He had told ex-President de Valera that 5½ per cent. was too much. They were not a rich country, and they were getting poorer because people sought to make reputations by quick results. "The irregulars are doing it at this moment," he went on. The late President Arthur Griffith did not get it by quick results. He was thirty years before he went down in honour to his grave, and Michael Collins put in as much work in the last five years as an ordinary man would in twenty years."

If they were going to make the country worth living in they would have to work it. It meant hard work if there were to be any real results got of the Treaty. "We are prepared to do it, and are doing it," he concluded, amid loud cheers; "but if this House does not agree with the action the Government has taken, this is the time for saying it."

General Mulcahy pointed out that in declining to accept the amendment he took it that it was perfectly understood that they were not turning their back nor denying the fact that the Dail shouldered its responsibility for the future.

THE DIVISION.

The amendment was declared defeated, but a division was taken at the request of the Lord Mayor of Dublin, and the voting was 17 for the amendment and 53 against. The amendment was declared lost.

The voting was as follows:—

INTRODUCTION OF ESTIMATES.

The Provisional Parliament met at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Leinster House, Dublin.

Mr. Figgis asked the President if he would set aside an early date for the discussion of the whole question of the position of finance and taxation, with specific reference to the relations at present existing between the Provisional Government and the powers of the Dail and the British Government.

The President (Mr. Cosgrave) replied that the estimates would be submitted to the Dail in about a fortnight's time. He did not understand what was meant by the second part of the question. It was rather a general question, and he would like to know what was exactly meant by it. The Provisional Parliament had not got power of taxation.

Mr. Figgis asked that the House should be furnished with a complete list of Executive "decrees," and for which of these decrees the President proposed to ask the House for the necessary legislative authority.

The President replied that he was getting these lists compiled, and that he expected them to be ready in the next couple of days.

Mr. Figgis next inquired what Commissions and Committees had been appointed by the Executive, and the terms of reference for each Committee or Commission, the persons appointed to serve on each Committee; and if the Chairman was about to move for the confirmation of such appointments.

The President said that he was having a list of these Commissions compiled. There were not many of them.

The next question by Mr. Figgis was as to when the President proposed to bring in a bill to authorise the payment of salaries to members of the Government and the Chairman and Deputy Chairman.

The President replied that he did not intend to bring in a bill. He suggested that the House should either appoint a Committee, or take a recommendation from the Ministry to set up a Committee to deal not only with the matters mentioned in the question, but also with the matter of payment of members. The Committee should be of a proportional representation character.

Mr. Johnson said that he thought that the proposal was a desirable one, but it would be better that it should have the approval of the House.

OUTRAGES AT FOXROCK.

Mr. Figgis next inquired if the attention of the Minister of Defence had been drawn to the serious state of affairs at present existing in South County Dublin, and particularly in the neighbourhood of Foxrock and Carrickmines; and whether it was not a fact that the inhabitants of these places, so near Dublin, were terrorised daily and nightly, and what steps he proposed to take in the matter.

General Mulcahy said that the state of affairs in this neighbourhood had come under the notice of the military authorities. It suffered from the operations of the general activity carried on by the irregulars all over the country, and from the operations, under cover of these disturbances, of a number of criminals. The remedy for this was part of the general objective of the national forces. A military post had been established at Foxrock.

Mr. Figgis—Was it not known to the military authorities, as it seemed to have been known in the district generally, who these persons were?

General Mulcahy said that for some weeks past a small band of irregulars had created a state of terror in Foxrock district. Their activities were not alone confined to outrages against the Government, but also against private property. Robbery under arms and plunder of private houses was rampant in the district. These persons had attacked the car of the late Commander-in-Chief from the house in which last week two men were killed and two were captured when they fired on the troops who went to arrest them, and in respect of which a Coroner's jury found on Monday that they were killed by the troops in the execution of their duty.

General Mulcahy also referred to the shooting of an unarmed soldier in the same neighbourhood, and said that the soldier had made a statement that those who had shot him were local men. It transpired later that these were the same men who occupied the house in question on the night of the fatal raid. Order had practically been restored in the Foxrock district.

PAYMENT OF GRANTS.

Mr. Corish (Wexford) asked the Minister for Local Government if he was aware of the straitened financial circumstances of the County Councils in consequence of the withholding of overdue grants by his department, and if he was able to give the House an assurance that these grants would be paid immediately.

Mr. Blythe said that in view of the financial position of local authorities generally the Government had decided to make payments of the amounts under the Local Taxation Account during the financial years 1920-21 and 1921-22, which had been withheld. The items involved were—Motor duties, two years' grants under the Local Government Act, two years' estate duty, agricultural grant, one and a half years; estate duty grant, one moiety. The agricultural grant for 1921-22 had so far been retained in connection with the Land Purchase Act. The allocation of the foregoing meant that Wexford County would be entitled to receive £37,510 0s. 5d.

Mr. Corish (Labour) asked the Minister for Industry and Commerce if he was aware of the hardships that exist in the agricultural areas by reason of unemployment, and whether he considered the necessity of extending the provisions of the Unemployment Act to those areas.

Mr. McGrath, in reply, said that he was aware that there was unemployment in agricultural areas. Agriculture was not included in the Unemployment Insurance Acts, either in Great Britain or Ireland. In his opinion, the farmers would be opposed to it, while the labourers would be either hostile or indifferent, while the collection of contributions would be difficult.

Mr. Corish asked whether the Act would be applied if a general desire to have it were expressed.

Mr. McGrath said that in that event, he would consider the matter.

In reply to a further question from the same deputy, Mr. McGrath said that the number of unemployed persons in the twenty-six counties, excluding those engaged in agricultural and domestic service, was about 250,000. On the 28th August, the last date on which figures were available, 40,625 were registered at Exchanges for employment, and of that number 34,000 persons had lodged claims for unemployment benefit. Eighty-seven per cent. of the claims for benefit were allowed, so that the number of persons in receipt of benefit on 28th August would be 29,960.

Mr. Hogan (Minister of Agriculture), in reply to Mr. Darrell Figgis, who asked whether a bill for the completion of land purchase would be introduced, pointed out that the Government could only continue in office until the Constitution was enacted and the Free State Government formed. Under present arrangements, the Constitution must be enacted before December 6th, and it was not proposed to introduce a Land Purchase Bill previous to that date. It was recognised that the problem must be dealt with at the earliest opportunity, and a scheme would be drafted and at the disposal of the Minister of Agriculture in the Free State Government.

Mr. Gavan Duffy asked the Minister for Foreign Affairs whether he was aware that the assembly of the League of Nations was now meeting at Genoa, that it was not likely to meet again for at least twelve months, and whether the Government had considered the question of causing a formal application for the admission of Ireland to the League to be made immediately.

Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald (Minister for Foreign Affairs) intimated that the question of application was being considered.

Mr. Duffy pointed out that the matter was urgent.

Mr. Fitzgerald stated that there would be a definite answer one way or the other very soon.

THE POSTAL STRIKE.

largely rely upon the post for carrying on their work, and concerns such as the Stock Exchange, which depend almost entirely on telegrams, were, perhaps, most affected. An appreciable advance was, however, made by the authorities on their work of the previous day, and it may be said that the Government is doing its best to mitigate the inconvenience to the public. Towards this end, the public were invited to attend at the Central Sorting Office, Rotunda Rink, for the purpose of securing their letters. In response, a large queue formed up outside the Rink during the afternoon. Each member of the queue was admitted singly, and attended to by the limited staff on duty.

Box-holders are requested to call for their letters at the Rink between 11 a.m. and 12 noon, and private callers between 3.0 p.m. and 5.0 p.m.

It would facilitate matters if firms arranged to send only one messenger for the correspondence for any address, with authority to collect letters for all firms or person at that address, the messengers, of course, being provided with properly signed authority.

It was stated in the evening papers of yesterday that a number of clerks from Government offices in Merrion street have been delegated for postal duty at the Rotunda Rink. This is a mis-statement. The officers referred to are sorters who were employed temporarily away from their headquarters and who have now been recalled. The statement that the public are rigidly excluded from the Rink is also incorrect, as people calling for letters are, of course, admitted.

It is stated that a certain number of workers went back to their posts yesterday, and the authorities hope that a still larger number will be available in a day or two.

With regard to the deficit on the working of the Post Office in Ireland, it was freely rumoured in Dublin yesterday that the Government had in view the reduction of the staffs to such an extent that over half a million per annum can be saved in the working expenses. The reported intention of the authorities is to employ only the required number of men in the various Post Office departments. Hitherto, it is stated, the service was very much over-staffed. If this intention be carried out, it will have a serious effect on the position of many of the officials now on strike.

UNION REPORTS.

At the office of the Irish Postal Unions yesterday it was stated that picketing was being carried on as usual at all Post Office premises in Dublin, and a tour round the city confirmed this statement. Outside the Central Telegraph Office in Amiens street an Inspector of the Metropolitan Police approached the picket and said that his orders were to disperse the men by force, and with the aid of the military if necessary. Strike headquarters subsequently issued a notice that "peaceful picketing, without interference with traffic or the public, must be maintained at all costs."

"We have," said a member of the Postal Executive, "definite assurances of support from the general body of Labour. The Irish Transport Workers' Union has issued a notice to its members that they are not to handle mails tendered to them or made up by 'scabs' or military." "The English Transport Union," he continued, "has written promising that they will do nothing to facilitate the Post Office attack on workers' wages. The Irish Automobile Drivers' Union has instructed its members to refrain from undertaking any work of any description for the Post Office Department."

With reference to Mr. Kevin O'Higgins's statement in Parliament, that acts of sabotage had been committed by the workers before leaving their posts, the Secretary of the Union said that it was absolutely false. It had also been stated that the test box at the Central Telegraph Office had been wrecked. That also, he said, was untrue.

Strike reports from the provinces, continued the Secretary, were arriving continuously by a special corps of messengers, and everything indicated that there was a complete stoppage in the twenty-six counties. The few strike-breakers in the sorting office had not, he declared, been augmented, and they could not carry on even the semblance of a postal service. The statement that the Government hoped to carry on a telegraphic and telephonic service was simply ludicrous, when it was remembered that not only had every operator in Dublin left his post, but that the supervising staff from the Chief Superintendent down to the overseers, had been locked out for declining to do operators' work. This involved the superintendents, assistant superintendents, and overseers of the postal and telegraphic departments; the chief inspector, inspectors, and assistant inspectors of postmen. The only officers now at work in the Rink, he said, were the controllers of the postal and telegraphic departments.

The postal unions, he added, had no desire to cause unnecessary dislocation of Press work, and they expressed the opinion that, on the whole, the Press had been fair and impartial.

It was learned that the total number of postal workers now out in Dublin is about 2,650, and in the city and the twenty-six counties 7,248.

During the afternoon a large body of police dispersed the picket outside Aldborough House. The picket moved from their original position and took up another.

EXECUTIVES' STATEMENT.

The following statement was issued last night by the joint Executives of the Unions:—

The special pleading contained in the Government's statement is evidently intended to mislead the public as to the actual position, and to create the impression that the post office staffs have withdrawn their labour without sufficient cause. The attempt to make the interim findings of the Postal Commission a justification for the action of the Postmaster-General is too transparent to deceive anyone acquainted with the facts. Between March and May the Commission held thirteen sittings in all, and the union witnesses were subject to a searching cross-examination of every figure produced and every argument used to show the inadequacy of the wages to bear the "cut." The Department was unable to refute the union's case. The Commission in May reported to the Government regarding the March reduction:—"The Post Office staff in Ireland have found it extremely difficult to adjust their living expenses to the reduction in the bonus.

"That this has caused certain hardships in the lower-paid classes, especially in the case of married men with families."

The Post Office staffs have been anxiously awaiting the final report of the Commission, confident in the belief that the basic wage must of necessity be substantially increased. The Government, however, stepped in, and, notwithstanding the fact that prices had not decreased since the date of the Commission's report, it was announced that the increases granted in May would be withdrawn from 1st September, and, in addition, 3-26ths of the bonus, which would reduce the wages by from 10s. to 20s. per week.

The Commission further decided that its award should remain in force until it had finally reported, or until an Irish cost of living figure had been agreed to. Neither of these eventualities has occurred. The final report has been postponed because the postal authorities declined to proceed, and no cost of living figures have been agreed to. It is true that the Government have "produced" figures of their own, and the following specimens may serve as an example as to their reliability:—Butter 1s. 6½d. per lb.; bacon, 1s. 7d. per lb.; beef, 1s. 1½d. per lb.; mutton, 1s. 3½d. per lb.; eggs, 1s. 5½d. per dozen; milk, 4½d. per quart; rent, 5s. 2d. per week; coal, 35s. per ton.

The Dublin housewives will be pleased to know that food can be bought at these prices and that houses can be had at 5s. 2d. per week! Again, the Government figures state that the bonus represents 90 per cent. of wages, but this statement is entirely contrary to fact. In the case of the more senior members of the staff the actual bonus varies from 60 to 75 per cent., while only the very junior staff obtain the full percentage.

ITEMS.

Picketing was carried on during the day and no untoward incident occurred.

The Unions have so far received no reply to their offer made to the Postmaster-General to provide staffs in the telegraph and telephone offices at the larger centres—Dublin, Cork, Waterford, and Limerick—for humanitarian services, and staffs in the various offices for the payment of old age and other pensions.

Messages continue to be received from the various centres indicating complete stoppages of all classes of Post Office services.

POSITION OF CONTROLLING OFFICERS.

The following information was supplied by the Union last night:—

In view of possible misconception on the part of the public, the following facts in connection with the action taken by members of the controlling staff, as reported in previous issues, may be of interest. It will be remembered that the controlling officers of the postal, telegraph, and telephone services, who had no connection whatever with the strike, have been suspended from duty as a result of their refusal to perform the duties of the rank and file. We have been informed that before the decision not to perform these duties was arrived at representatives of the officers concerned interviewed the Postmaster-General and the Secretary to the Post Office, to whom it was explained that the controlling officers were prepared to co-operate with the authorities in every way consistent with their positions as superintending and supervising officers in carrying on the work of the department. The Postmaster-General, however, insisted on every officer, irrespective of rank, doing any class of work proper to the rank and file which he might be called on to perform. It was fully explained to the Postmaster-General that compliance with this instruction would place the supervising officers in the position of "strike-breakers," and, as such, expose themselves and and families to grave risks, as well as place them in an untenable position with the staff when a settlement is reached. It was also pointed out to the Postmaster-General that the controlling officers could not understand why the Government by their action were forcing them into this invidious position.

The efforts of the deputation, however, proved unavailing, beyond a promise that their views would be laid before the Government.

At a subsequent meeting of the controlling officers it was decided that the instruction could not be complied with, and the reasons therefor were set forth in the following resolution, which was adopted:—

Resolved—That as we regard the Secretary's instruction requiring us to perform duties other than those proper to our rank as a violation of the guarantee given in the Government of Ireland Act (1920), under which our positions on transfer to the Irish Provisional Government would not be worsened; and that we regard it as unjust and degrading to require us to perform the work of the rank and file, and, in effect, act as "strike-breakers" or "blacklegs," and thereby expose ourselves and our families to serious personal risk, we regret we feel compelled not to carry out the instruction, and we request that this decision be brought to the notice of the Postmaster-General and the Provisional Government.

As a result, out of a staff of about 130 superintendents, assistant superintendents, overseers, woman supervisors and assistant supervisors, inspectors and assistant inspectors of postmen, only five were allowed to remain on duty.

PARCELS AND REGISTERED LETTERS.

As the postal strike in Southern Ireland is continuing, the General Post Office, London, has issued the following notice:—"The Postmaster-General of Southern Ireland requests that the despatch of parcels and registered letters for places in Southern Ireland shall be discontinued during the present postal strike in that country. No registered letters or parcels addressed to places in Southern Ireland will, therefore, be accepted at any Post Office until further notice. This does not apply to letters or parcels addressed to British naval and military forces in Ireland. All correspondence addressed to Southern Ireland will be liable to serious delay."

The Ulster Association for Peace and Honour makes the following announcement:—"Misapprehension appears to exist in the public mind regarding communications with Ireland as a result of the postal workers' strike in Southern Ireland. So far as Belfast and the six counties are concerned, the postal services are functioning normally. The dispute concerns only the South and West of Ireland, and does not affect in any way communication by telegraph, telephone, or letter between Ulster and Great Britain. The usual mail services to Belfast and the North of Ireland from England and Scotland are also running normally, and deliveries in Ulster are taking place as usual. The impression which seems to have got abroad that the whole of Ireland has been cut off is, therefore, erroneous."

PROVINCIAL OFFICES.

In the cases of some sub-post offices in North King's County, staffs, who are non-union men, remain at work, but have nothing to do owing to the effects of the general upset of arrangements due to the strike.

The postal staff in Naas ceased work on Sunday evening in accordance with the decision to strike. There have, therefore, been no deliveries of mails since.

The Post Office in Longford is closed to the public and troops occupy the departments on the ground floor, as well as the offices upstairs.

Every man or woman in post office employment at Wicklow and Rathdrum offices is out on strike, and the offices are closed, notices on the windows intimating that, owing to the depletion of the staffs caused by the strike, the offices would be closed till further notice.

THE DESPATCH OF THE MAILS.

Seventeen bags of mails for Great Britain were conveyed from Dublin to Kingstown yesterday evening. When the bags were being removed on barrows to the mail boat, the railway employés were approached by members of a strike picket standing on Carlisle Pier, who appealed to them as trades unionists "not to act as blacklegs." The railwaymen, however, continued with the work of transferring the mails from the Pier to the boat. A force of the Dublin Metropolitan Police was present during the removal of the mails. One member of the picket, who endeavoured to board the mail boat, apparently to protest against the carrying of the mails, was prevented from doing so by the company's officials, because he had no ticket to travel.

MR. COSGRAVE'S MESSAGES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—According to the report of the proceedings in the Free State Parliament, appearing in the morning Press of September 12th, Mr. Cosgrave is anxious that two messages—one to Mr. Childers and one to myself—should reach us respectively. I will reply to them both, since both messages refer to my words or actions.

As to the message to me, I made no such statement to Michael Collins on the way to Downing street, nor did the few words which passed between him, Mr. Griffith, and myself—they are vividly impressed upon my memory—call for any such reply.

As to the message to Mr. Childers, no Irish delegate left the room during the conference at which the Treaty was signed; and, had I left it in order to consult with my "cousin and friend, Mr. Childers"—a relationship and a friendship of which I am justly proud—Mr. Childers would undoubtedly have advised me against signing the Treaty; for he had already done so during the delegation conference immediately preceding that in Downing street.

There are other falsehoods in Mr. Cosgrave's address, but they will, no doubt, be dealt with by President de Valera when the time arrives and when the publication of the true history of the negotiations will bring the greatest benefit to the Irish people.—Yours, etc.,

AKALI FANATICISM.

GOVERNMENT'S FIRM ATTITUDE.

SIMLA, Tuesday.

Sir William Vincent presented to the Legislative Assembly to-day a detailed statement of the origin and present position of the trouble at Gurukabagh, the Sikh shrine, twelve miles from Amritsar.

The trouble occurred through the Akalis cutting down trees on the property, and, after many arrests following an attack on the police, violent speeches were made, inciting the Sikhs to continue their lawless resistance to authority.

By the end of August the Akalis at Gurukabagh numbered 3,000 or 4,000. The police were compelled to disperse them. They used no firearms and used the minimum amount of force. Not a single death occurred.

The reports of the alleged brutality and excesses on the part of the police is absolutely unfounded. The object of the dispersals was to avoid arrests, but the authorities have now decided to revert to the method of arrests.

The real significance of these incidents has been obscured by efforts to excite odium against the Government, but the real issue is whether the Government is to discharge its primary duty of protecting individuals, or abdicate its functions under the threat of force.

The Government has repeatedly declared its willingness to introduce measures to provide for the removal of incumbents of shrines who are abusing their trust. The Government hopes to introduce a bill in connection therewith at the end of this month.

Meanwhile, the Government will continue to protect the rights of private properties, using the minimum force necessary. The situation is engaging the careful attention of the Punjab Government. A Commissioner is exploring every possible method of terminating the existing situation.—(Reuter.)

MAYO IRREGULARS ACTIVE.

Trees have been felled again and fresh trenches cut on the roads to Claremorris and Ballinrobe. No goods can be taken to the markets, and in Ballinrobe the want of potatoes is greatly felt.

National troops operating north of Ballinrobe have discovered a stolen motor car and many important documents relating to plans made by the irregulars in an improvised "dug-out."

PUNJAB DACOITIES.

SIMLA, Monday.

Punjab reports record an increase in dacoities for the year ending July 31. The main cause of the growth of lawlessness and the defiance of authority is due to Akali Sikh propaganda.

The situation in Multan is improving. The number of troops has been reduced. All the shops are open and the leading men are returning.—(Reuter.)

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

BUSINESS VERY LIMITED. FUNDS LOWER. "CASHEL" FURTHER RALLIED. TEXTILE, MARCONIS, TOBACCO, AND OIL SHARES WEAKER.

The Post Office strike very severely affected business again on the Dublin Stock Exchange, and even in important securities actual dealing was at vanishing point, while local securities were little more than nominal. The Funds weakened on international considerations. Banks marked time in a dull market. Guinness Ord. shares alone quoted in Breweries and Distilleries. The Marconi market was dull throughout. Among Home Rails "Cashel" Stock further rallied, but other stocks in the group again left off sellers. Pre-Ord. Stocks were idle, without change. Dunlop Rubber Ord. closed without alteration. Trams, Tyres, Gas, Bakery, Drapery, and Miscellaneous sections were all passed over without any business being done or indicated. Textiles were sellers, especially Coats Ord. shares. British-American Tobacco were the turn easier, but Imperials held firm. Lever Bros. Pref. met with a little inquiry, as did Dockrell Deb. shares. Mexican Eagles and other Oil shares closed on sale.

In the Funds, etc., War Loan 4½ p.c. fell ½ to 97, ditto 5 p.c. ¼ to 100, and India 3½ p.c. ½ to 68. Funding Loan (by deed) realised 88¼, and Dublin Corporation Stock repeated 70.

Banks were dull. Bank Stock repeated 225 and Munster and Leinsters 6½.

In Breweries Guinness Ord. were unaltered at 42⅞, and in Telegraphs Marconi Ord. fell 4½d. to 48s. for an odd lot.

As regards Home Rails, Great Southern and Western Ord. recovered a further 1 to 45, and the Guaranteed repeated 61½. Great Northern fell ½ to 56½, and the Pref. repeated 56⅞.

Dunlop Rubber Ord. repeated 9s.

With reference to Manufacturing shares, Bleachers fell 3d. to 41s. 9d., Coats 1s. to 66s. 6d., and British-American Tobacco 6d. to 89s. 3d. Goulding Debs. repeated 75s. 6d. Lever Bros. 7 and 8 p.c. Pref. issues rose 1½d. to 19s. 10½d. and 19s. 9d., respectively.

In Trading, etc., Dockrell Debs. rose ⅛ to 6⅛. Imperial Tobacco repeated 69s. 6d., while Mexican Eagle Oil fell away to 65s. 7½d.

The afternoon (2.30 p.m.) market was again closed.

LAGGING STOCKS.

NO PRESSURE TO SELL.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

It was somewhat difficult yesterday to gauge the tendency of the Stock Exchange, so little business was done. Although there was no particular pressure to sell, markets throughout the day were very dull and uninteresting. Prices generally continued to sag wholly through the lack of support. With here and there a mild exception, Gilt-edged Stocks were very inactive, and left off at the close pretty much at the previous day's level. In Home Rails the heavy Stocks were chiefly stagnant, very few changes being recorded. The Foreign Railway market in some respects showed a slightly harder tendency towards the end of the afternoon.

LONDON STOCKS IN ANXIOUS MOOD.

BUSINESS SMALL.

On the Stock markets yesterday the tone was dull, the situation on the Continent and the Near East causing much anxiety. Business throughout was small. British Funds were generally unchanged, but India Loans fell. The 3 p.c. lost ½ at 56½ x.d., the 3½ p.c. ½ at 67½ x.d., and the 7 p.c. 1½ at 114 x.d.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were little changed on the day, French Loans and German Threes being unaltered. Peruvian Corporation rose ¼ to 4½, the Pref. 1½ to 29½, and the Debs. 1 to 91. Mexican Fives fell 2 points to 60. Brazil 4 p.c. 1889 fell a point to 50, and Egyptian Unified at 72 fell ½.

HOME RAILS were listless. Great Northern Pref. lost ½ at 65 and South-Eastern Def. ½ at 34½. Great Central Def. dropped ¼ to 9.

In COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILWAYS "Canpacs" and Grand Trunks were unaltered. Argentines were dull and lower. "B.A.G.S." fell ½ to 72½, Westerns ½ to 67, and Centrals 1 to 63. Mexican National 1st Pref. lost a point at 11, as did United Havana at 63. Entre Rios Ord. fell ½ to 16½.

OIL SHARES FEATURELESS.

SHELLS IMPROVE.

Like most other speculative sections of the Stock Exchange, the market in Oil Shares was an uninteresting one yesterday, business being once more of a poor character in both the leaders and speculative favourites. Nervousness was apparent at the start, the political situation being the chief factor, but while an influence of this character would only a short time back have had the effect of making the market flat, the present condition of the market is such that it merely causes buyers to hold aloof. A reason for the improvement of Shells and Royal Dutch in the afternoon was to be found in the higher prices received from New York. Burmahs met with a little support and recovered the fraction lost on the preceding day, but Anglo-Persian Ord. were a distinctly dull market at one time, and although they rallied at the end, they still showed an appreciable loss at the close. Roumanian descriptions provided little of interest. Rumanian Consolidated were freely offered, and further declined. Trinidad issues remained on the dull side, although the only quotable alteration was a further shrinkage in Centrals, of which there was some selling by disappointed holders following the meeting. RUBBER SHARES AGAIN DULL.

After the better showing of Monday the Rubber Share market relapsed into quietude and dulness. Price changes were usually very small and unimportant. United Sua Betong rose 1s. 4½d. to 41s. 10½d., while Lanadron fell 1s. to 9s., and Tremelbye 1s. to 8s. The price of rubber rose to 7½d. per lb. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET INACTIVE.

"GAS CUT OFF AT THE METER."

It was quite evident at the opening of the "House" yesterday that the nervousness which prevailed on Monday had by no means disappeared. International political uncertainties still checked any expansion of public interest, and professionals were unwilling to increase commitments. So far as the Mining Market is concerned, speculative activity seemed to have been terminated, as one dealer put it, as completely as cutting off the gas at the meter. This is probably an exaggeration, but it is quite certain that the excellent promise held out by the Kaffir section during the past few weeks has so far borne very little fruit. Rhodesians failed to maintain the firmness noticeable on the preceding day, and, under the lead of Chartered, quotations were inclined to droop. Rezendé were a dull spot, and Lonely became easier on the somewhat poor character of recent developments. Diamonds were comparatively steady. Tins remained in a state of almost complete neglect. There was not sufficient interest in Australians to alter prices, except that British Broken Hill relapsed on a little offering on an unresponsive market. Coppers were steady, and Tintos maintained their position, while among Russians there was again a big business in Russo-Asiatic on a wider appreciation of the importance of the new agreement. There was naturally a good deal of profit-taking, and the shares, which at one time changed hands at nearly 13s., left off at the overnight level. Closing prices:—

INDUSTRIALS DULL.

BUSINESS RESTRICTED.

Business in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday was again restricted as a result of the political situation which induced selling by day-to-day operators, and a dull tone ruled at the opening. As the day wore on, however, prices were inclined to harden, and, although in most instances declines were shown, on balance closing quotations were above the worst of the day. The outstanding movement occurred in Ind Coope, which closed substantially higher on expectations of a good dividend.

Among Breweries, Ind Coopes closed 3s. higher on balance at 43s. Among Caterers, J. Lyons eased to 4¼, though A.B.C.'s held their ground at 32s. 9d., and Liptons were maintained at 27s. Foodstuffs kept up. Liebigs improved to 13½; Bovril Def. strengthened to 18s. 9d.; Maypoles remained at 6s. 9d., and Van Den Berghs at 1⅛. The B Prefs., however, receded to 16s. Few movements occurred among Iron and Steels. Armstrongs were maintained at 15s., though the Third Prefs. fell a few pence to 15s. 6d., and Swan Hunters relapsed to 1⅞. Sheffield Steels lost the turn at 2s. 3d.; Vickers still ruled at 12s. Workman Clark Debs. slipped back to 81. Coal Stocks showed no quotable alterations. In the Shipping department Furness Withy lost 6d. at 31s. 6d. ex bonus, and Cairn Lines 9d. at 20s. 3d. P. and O. Def. fell 10 to 300. Bank Shares revealed little of interest. After their rather sharp rise last week Brunner Monds came on offer, and finished 1s. lower at 33s. De Treys relapsed to 13s. 6d., and Dunlops A Pref. to 16s. 3d., though the Ord. of the latter still ruled at 9s. Lever 7 p.c. Prefs. showed no quotable alteration at 19s. 9d., and the 8 p.c. Prefs. strengthened to that level. Among Motors, Humbers recovered to 21s., though Rovers eased to 1⅛; and among Wireless descriptions Marconis kept steady at 2⅜, and the Prefs. at 2⅛; while Marines showed no change at 1⅛. Canadians, however, further receded to 11s. Profit-taking was responsible for a fall of 1s. in B.A.T.'s to 88s. 6d. x.d. Imperials eased to 68s. 9d. Among Textiles, Cellulose issues were very active; the Ord. improved to 6s., and the Prefs., after changing hands up to 9s. 6d., closed 3d. higher at 9s. Courtaulds opened at about 55s., and after being offered down to 54s., closed at 54s. 9d., which, however, left them 7½d. lower on the day. Losses of 3d. occurred in Amalgamated Cottons at 16s., and in Bleachers at 41s. 9d. English Sewing Cottons and Fine Spinners both lost at 46s. 6d. and 41s. 9d. respectively. Crosses and Winkworth Prefs. were dull at about 16s. Dyestuffs Pref. rallied to 6s. 3d., and Calico Printers Prefs. put on 6d. to 17s. 6d., though the Ord. lost that much at 23s. 6d.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

OTAVI MINE.—Dividend of 5 per cent.

MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA.—Interim dividend of 3 per cent. on A, B, and C Shares.

LEYLAND AND BIRMINGHAM RUBBER.—Final dividend of 5 per cent. on Ordinary, less tax.

SHAMVA MINES.—Interim dividend of 6¼ per cent., less tax, for current quarter.

AUSTRALIAN BANK OF COMMERCE.—Dividend of 7 per cent. for the year.

TANKERS.—Report shows a net profit of £93,308 0/1, subject to tax and Corporation profits duty, which it is proposed to carry forward.

GLOBE TELEGRAPH AND TRUST.—Quarterly dividend of 3/- per share on Preference, less tax, and 5/- per share net on Ordinary.

JAMES W. COOK AND CO.—Interim dividend on Ordinary for the half-year ended 30th June last at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, less tax.

BRITISH GAS LIGHT.—Final dividend on Ordinary at 5 per cent., also bonus of 2/- per share, both less tax.

HARRISONS AND CROSSFIELDS.—Dividend on Cum. Pref. Shares at rate of 6 per cent. per annum for three months.

MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA.—Interim dividend of 8 per cent., less tax, on "A," "B," and "C" Shares.

NORTH OF ENGLAND CINEMAS.—Interim Ordinary dividend of 5 per cent. was paid. Directors regret that results will not allow of final dividend being paid on Ordinary Shares.

BRITISH ALUMINIUM.—Dividend for half-year at rate of 6 per cent. per annum on Pref. and at rate of 5 per cent. per annum on Ordinary, both less tax.

MANCHESTER NORTH BORNEO RUBBER.—Profit for year to 31st March was £39, which is added to £22,201 brought forward. After deducting Preference dividend there is balance of £2,114 to carry forward.

BARSI LIGHT RAILWAY.—Final dividend of 3 per cent., together with a bonus of 4 per cent. (14/- per share in all), making, with the interim distribution in April last, a total distribution of 12 per cent. for the year to 31st March, 1922.

EASTERN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Dividend at the rate of 3½ per cent. per annum, less tax, on the Pref. Stock for the quarter ended 30th September, 1922, and the second quarterly interim dividend of 2½ per cent. on the Ordinary Stock, free of tax, in respect of profits for the year ending 31st December, 1922.

SCOTTISH AMERICAN OIL COMPANY.

REDUCING THE CAPITAL.

A notice of an extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of reducing the denomination of the shares of the company from £1 to 5s. each, and writing off as lost 15s. per share of the issued capital, has been issued. Under an agreement dated November 18th last, the terms and conditions, of which were submitted to and approved by the shareholders at a meeting held on the 28th October, 1921, the whole of the assets and liabilities were assumed by Tankers, Ltd. The consideration for the sale was the allotment of 4,771,455 Ord. shares in Tankers, Ltd., of 5s. each, credited as fully paid, together with a sum of £2,000 in cash. The company, therefore, becomes a holding company, its only assets consisting of the above-mentioned shares. In order, therefore, that the capital may more nearly correspond to the amount of the assets the directors, after careful consideration, recommended for acceptance the proposals contained in the notice of meeting.

THE MONEY MARKET.

COMFORTABLE CONDITIONS

STEADIER EXCHANGES.

Possibly because of Monday's considerable repayments to the Bank loanable credit proved to be rather useable during the earlier hours, but the situation generally in Lombard street was distinctly more comfortable. Night money, for which 2 p.c. was paid, soon came down on offer to 1½ p.c. There were lenders offering special weekly money at 2½ p.c., but they met with no success. Fixtures were being continued at 1½ p.c. As regards discounts, one of the "Big Five" was willing to buy October Treasuries at 2⅛ p.c., and succeeded in getting quite a fair amount; but there were many sellers who wanted better terms. Full-dated Treasuries were being done in small quantities at 2⅛ to 2¼ p.c., while fine three months' banks paper was rather easier at 2⅛ p.c., with 2⅜ p.c. rarely quoted.

Gold was unchanged at 92s. 6d. per oz. nominal. Bar silver rose ⅛d. for spot to 35⅛d. per oz., but remained unaltered for forward delivery at 35⅛d.

The foreign exchanges were much steadier, with very little business doing, the market awaiting further developments. German marks, after a weak opening, rallied to 6,500, reacting to 6,600. French francs, after being 58.18, improved to 58.05, but reacted to 58.15. Belgian francs being 61.45. Italian lire were a little cheaper at 103½. Sterling on New York eased to 4.45, Montreal being 4.45½-4.45¾. Greek drachmae remained at 175-180, and Austrian crowns were 310,000 sellers, Polish marks being rather firmer at 30,000-33,000. Holland was 11.45½-11.46½, Switzerland 23.51-23.53, Sweden 16.75-16.78, Norway 26.75-26.80, Denmark 20.80-20.85. Prague was better at 130-133. Yen further improved to 2s. 2d. PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

BIRMINGHAM, Tuesday.—Scarcely a fair supply of pigs, at the recent fall in prices, with sows less firm. Quotations per score, dead-weight—Bacons 20/-, small pigs ditto, sows 17/.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Tuesday.—There are more samples of new grain in evidence, including wheat, oats, and one or two of barley. Business very quiet. Wheat appears to have opened at values around 26/- to 27/- per barrel for choice County Dublin qualities, and say 1/- or so less for ordinary descriptions, but sales are not very large, and millers for the present cannot see their way to pay the prices looked for; neither is most of the wheat in evidence in suitable firm condition for milling. White oats make from 18/- to 19/- per barrel. There are a few special samples for which more money is asked. Blacks figure from 17/- to 18/-, and 18/6 for extra nice qualities, but prices certainly indicate a weak undertone. Old white oats from 21/- to 23/-, and old blacks say 20/- to 21/6 according to character. Barley not yet priced. A cargo of Canadian white oats is now about due, and what effect this will have on the market remains to be seen.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC, Tuesday.—WHEAT cargoes in quiet request and values tend in buyers' favour. No. 1 Northern Manitoba October-November sellers 44/6, Pacific September-October 44/6, No. 2 hard winter September-October 44/-, Australian afloat 50/3, Rosafe (63lbs.) due 45/9. Parcels quiet at 3d. to 6d. per qr. decline. No. 1 Northern Manitoba afloat sellers 48/6, September sold 44/10½, October 43/7½, October-November 43/4½, No. 2 hard winter afloat sellers 44/6, September-October 43/-, Australian afloat 50/-, Rosafe (63lbs.) shipping/shipped 46/- per 480lbs. MAIZE cargoes dull and 3d. per qr. easier. Plate steamers afloat sellers 38/3, loading 38/-, September-October 35/3, October-November and November-December 34/9, No. 6 yellow African loading 36/-. Parcels easier. Plate July-August sellers 37/6, August-September sold 35/6 to 35/7½ to 35/6, September-October 33/6 per 480lbs. BARLEY steady. Cargoes Dan.-Bess.-Kus. loading sellers 33/-, and Dan.-Moldavian September 32/6. Parcels of No. 4 Canadian Western October 28/3 per 400lbs. OATS steady, quiet; Plate f.a.q. September-October sellers 23/6, October-November 24/-, No. 2 white clipped American August-September 23/6, ditto 36lbs. 23/-, No. 2 Canadian Western September-October 26/3 per 320lbs.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—WHEAT—American and Argentine advices were easier, and the distant position of speculative wheat here was lower at the commencement of operations, though current month showed an advance owing to scarcity of sellers. Shorts covering, consequent on absence of tenders, put September up considerably, and December improved in sympathy, but later on receded with disappointing late afternoon cable, finished quiet and under best. C.i.f. parcels No. 1 Manitoba 18th September sold at 44/6, September 44/-, October 43/3, October-November 43/- to 43/1½ per qr. C.i.f. parcels MAIZE River Plate to load September 20 sold at 36/6, American mixed arrived 32/3, September 31/1½ to 31/6 per qr. Wheat on the spot was irregular at about Friday's market prices, to 1½d. per cental advance, with a better inquiry for American Winters. Maize—Spot parcels of American mixed were ½d. and River Plate 2½d. per cental over last market day, with a moderate business reported. FLOUR quiet, and prices of local-milled reduced 1/-, bakers' grade being now 36/- to 37/- per 280lbs. Graded wheat futures opened ½d. lower to ½d. dearer, but closed 1½d. over last night for September, but ½d. lower for December delivery. Maize options nominal.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—BACON—There was no quotable change cabled from Chicago in the value of live hogs, but speculative products were easier, and arrivals of bacon at this port on an increased scale. The market, however, remained steady to firm, and, although the demand continued more or less of a limited character, no quotable change took place in values of any selections, best quality Cumberlands again being mostly inquired for. HAMS quiet generally, and prices were unchanged, short cut attracting some little attention. Shoulders in only limited request. Canadian Wiltshires quiet, but steadily held for late currencies. Irish and Continental scarce and firm, with Danish now quoted 160/- to 168/- per cwt. LARD on the spot offered at 3d. to 6d. per cwt. decline, but in only moderate demand. Prime steam now at 62/9 to 63/3, and American refined in boxes 65/- to 66/6 per 112lbs. CHEESE still firm at recent advance, but with Canadian advices less encouraging. BUTTER continues firm, and the tendency of prices again upwards. EGGS firm and dearer. Irish hen now at 18/6 to 20/- per 120.

PATRICK KEHOE, LTD., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners, Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN. (Advt.)

MANCHESTER, Tuesday.—BACON—The quality of the Irish arrivals shows some improvement. Danish remains firm, with American easier. LARD in fair request, with English refined quoted 70/- per cwt. CHEESE—Lancashire and Cheshire finest ruled in sellers' favour, with imported a firm and advancing market. EGGS—With a sharp falling off in supplies, prices were firm; Irish 19/6 to 21/-, Danish 19/6 to 22/-, Continental 13/- to 13/3 per 120. BUTTER—With small arrivals, a firm tone prevailed on the butter market, values all round being higher. Danish quoted 226/- to 230/-, Irish creamery 200/- to 205/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Tuesday.—Market exceptionally heavy of both fruit and vegetables, and business of an equally dragging and disappointing character. Impossible to clear many commodities—plums, pears, and tomatoes selling at practically give-away prices—in fact, anything obtainable. The big arrivals of Dutch tomatoes and cucumbers has brought the market to a low ebb for home grown lots. Black grapes 1/9 to 2/- and 2/6 per lb., Almeria 14/- to 20/- and 21/- per barrel, Lisbon cases 8/- to 12/- and 13/-, imported plums 3/6 to 6/- per half bushel, Irish selected baskets and floats plums 5/- to 6/3, others 2/9 to 3/6; peaches 2/- to 5/- and 7/- per dozen, French pears 5/- to 6/- per box, 10/- to 14/- per case, Belgian and Dutch 9/- to 13/6 per barrel, Irish pears 2/3 to 2/9, and selected 3/3 to 5/- per tray; damsons 5/- to 6/- and 7/- per half bushel, English pears 5/- to 10/- per half bushel, and 10/- to 15/- per barrel; oranges 28/- to 35/- per case, lemons 14/- to 25/- and 30/-, American apples 30/- to 40/- per barrel, English selected dessert 10/- to 15/- per box; Irish apples 1/6 to 2/6 and 4/6 per tray, 9/6 to 19/6 per barrel, and 3/6 to 5/9 per keg; vegetable marrows 2/- to 10/- and 11/- per dozen, cucumbers 1/6 to 3/- and 4/- per dozen, cauliflowers 1/6 to 2/6, 3/-, and 4/- per dozen, York cabbage 50/- to 54/-, 60/-, and 80/-, and extras 90/- to 95/- per load, in bags 2/9 to 4/3 per dozen; broad beans 6d. to 10d. and 1/- per tray, rhubarb 1/- to 1/6 per dozen bunches, Irish tomatoes 3d. to 4d. and 5d. per lb. English beet 6/- to 6/6 per 12lbs., Dutch 2/6 to 3/- ditto, parsnips 4/6 to 6/- and 7/- per cwt., sprouts 4/3 per float, swede turnips 2/- per cwt., white turnips 2d. to 4d. and 6d. per bundle, scallions 6d. to 8d. ditto, carrots 6d. to 1/3 and 1/9 per dozen bunches, kidney beans 2/- to 2/6 per tray, lettuce 2d. to 3d. and 6d. per dozen, peas 3/- to 3/6 per float.

DUBLIN WHOLESALE POTATO, Tuesday.—Trade for potatoes continues slow. No stint in supplies generally, although some factors are receiving heavier consignments than others at the moment, according to how farmers are circumstanced with regard to harvest work. Prices continue mainly 4/6 to 5/- per cwt.; occasionally an extra 6d. is looked for for specially nice Queens.

DUBLIN POULTRY AND GAME, Tuesday.—Market shows a firmer tone, especially for plump, well handled dead goods. Chickens are not so plentiful, and more looked for at some advance. Quite apparent change in other currencies. Rabbits lower. Any wild fowl coming in so far showed poor condition, which leaves values uncertain. Chickens 11d. to 1/2 per lb. dead, crammed 1/4 per lb., turkey poults 1/4 to 1/8 per lb., pullets 3/6 to 5/-, prime live hens 2/6, dead 1/6 to 2/-, prime ducklings 3/6 to 4/6, extras around 5/-, seconds 1/6 to 2/6, old ducks 9d. to 1/-, young pigeons 9d. to 6d., wild duck 2/- to 2/6, young grouse 3/- to 3/6, old 2/-, partridge 2/6 to 3/-, old 2/-, hares 2/- to 2/6, rabbits 10d. for fresh trapped arrivals.

DUBLIN LITTLE GREEN EGG AND BUTTER, Tuesday.—Our produce market here opens the week firmer, and the depression of last day for both butter and eggs has been generally wiped out, if only temporarily; however, with postal, telegraph, and 'phone communications cut off, trade is in an uncomfortable condition, and commitments are cautious, as nobody knows what is taking place in other districts. Choice standard creams are from 1/10½, with good medium qualities 1/9½ to 1/10 per lb. Poor makes and out of condition stuff anywhere from 1/7 to 1/8½ or 1/9 per lb. Farmers' butter remains much as previously; separators 1/6 to 1/6½, and fancy qualities around 1/7 per lb; cools from 1/4 to 1/6 per lb., according to character; firkins 1/3 to 1/5½, lumps and coarse flavoured stuff from 1/- to 1/2½. Eggs in good supply, and for strictly fresh qualities specially selected, prices have recovered 6d. or 1/- from last week's depressed position, but doubtful and stale consignments are still cautiously dealt in at about previous figure. For best case hen eggs from reputable senders prices run from 19/- to 21/-, and for selected and repacked lots up to 22/6 is paid. Western case eggs coming in from 17/- to 18/6, and country and local smalls and ordinary from 15/- upwards according to size, etc.

DUBLIN FISH, Tuesday.—Only three small packages of salmon came in, and figured from 1/6 to 1/10 per lb, season being done. Very poor selection of white fish on market. Three steamers brought in 475 boxes of stuff, mostly whiting of poor class, which rated cheaply. Other deliveries from Balbriggan and local boats. Lobsters plenty and cheap; first pick of 15 chests averaged 6/6 to 10/- per 13, a few 12/6, seconds 5/- to 6/- per lot, small, etc., 2/- to 4/- per 13; turbot 1/6 to 10/- and 12/- each, brill 6d. to 2/- and 3/- each, best soles 30/- to 44/- per 9 pairs, mediums 20/- to 25/-, slips 10/- to 17/6 per 9 pairs, large plaice 6/- to 8/- per 4, others 4/- to 8/- per 8, half boxes plaice 50/- to 125/-, small, etc., 20/- to 40/-, hake 50/- to 90/-, codfish 30/- to 70/-, pollock 8/- to 20/-, ling 15/- to 20/-, haddocks 30/- to 55/-, white soles 30/- to 45/-, whiting, best 20/- to 30/-, poor 1/- to 10/- and 12/-, ray 15/- to 20/-, conger eels 5/- to 20/-, gurnard 4/- to 5/- and 6/-, herrings around 10/- to 14/-, mackerel 11/- to 13/-.

PRODUCE.

LONDON, Tuesday.—TEA—2,300 packages Ceylon in auction met an active demand for fine liquoring grades at full rates, but common easy. MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW (SMITHFIELD), Tuesday.—Another heavy market of country hay was offered here to-day, and, as before, County Dublin deliveries formed a rather moderate proportion of the gathering. Choice strong horse hay and also prime mixed herbage of bright, well-saved old meadow sold out steadily at a firm repetition of previous quotations, but secondary and poor descriptions of hay proved tedious to cash at generally a good 6d., or, perhaps, more, per cwt. under last day's currencies. At all events, terms were decidedly more irregular in this line; choice County Dublin first and second crop hay 7/6 to 8/-, and in a few fancy cases 8/6; like country hay 6/9 to 7/3 and 7/6 per cwt., medium strong hay 6/3 to 7/-, prime old meadow 5/6 to 6/3 and 6/6, other sorts 3/6 to 5/3 per cwt. There was a comparatively sensational break in straw prices from recent extraordinary dear position. Before the market properly gathered 7/6 and occasionally 8/- per cwt. was realised, but subsequently, on fairly liberal arrivals, prices slumped back to 5/6 and 6/6 for wheaten and oaten straw. In fact, the market closed irregular and difficult to clear. The absence of telephonic communication proved to great disadvantage to factors in finding possible customers for a considerable quantity of fodder.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN was in fair request at easier rates, cash on balance being 12/6 and forward 5/- per ton lower compared with the close of Monday. Cash quoted £158 12/6 to £158 15/-, three months £159 10/- to £159 12/6, settlement price £158 15/-. Sales, 525 tons; cash sold at £159 10/- to £158 15/-, October dates £159 12/6 to £159 5/-, and three months £159 15/- to £159 12/6. COPPER rather firmer, with a moderate trade in force, cash and forward on balance being 2/6 per ton higher. Standard cash quoted £63 2/6 to £63 5/-, three months £63 10/- to £63 12/6, settlement price £63 2/6. 599 tons sold; cash at £63 to £63 2/6, October dates £63 2/6 to £63 6/3, November £63 7/6 to £63 6/3, and three months at £63 10/- to £63 11/3; electros £70 15/- to £71 5/-, best selected £66 to £68, strong sheets £94. LEAD quiet. Sales, 300 tons; September £24 2/6, October £23 17/6, and December £23 7/6. SPELTER steady. 350 tons sold; September £31 10/-, October £31 5/-, December £30 12/6 to £30 15/- per ton. TINPLATES unaltered.

BRITISH TRADE IN AUGUST.

IMPORTS FALL AND EXPORTS RISE.

An increase of roughly £800,000 in the value of the imports, and a decrease of £380,000 in the value of the exports are shown in the Board of Trade returns for August. Comparisons with last year are vitiated in large degree by fluctuations in prices, but it is to be noted that imports last month were £5,890,000 less in value than in August, 1921, whilst exports were £8,700,000 greater in value. Compared with July, the August figures show:—

IMPORTS.

Foodstuffs—decrease	£1,050,000
Raw Materials—decrease	£90,000
Manufactured Articles—increase	£1,750,000

EXPORTS.

Food stuffs—increase	£300,000
Raw Materials—increase	£900,000
Manufactured Articles—decrease	£1,300,000

6,146,121 tons of coal were exported last month of a value of £6,873,551. This is nearly double the quantity exported in August of last year, and nearly three times that of July this year. As compared with a year ago, manufactured articles exported show an increase in bulk values of £7,200,000, and raw materials an increase of £1,850,000. Imports of foodstuffs show a decline on August, 1921, of no less than £12,800,000, but raw materials imported increased by £4,600,000. Imports for the eight months ended August, 1922, amounted to £651,656,527 as against £740,803,626 in the corresponding eight months of 1921. Exports for the eight months totalled £543,704,751 compared with £532,458,757 in 1921.

Imports during August, as compared with a year ago and in 1920, were:—

1922	£82,661,405
1921	£88,554,663
1920	£153,343,305

Exports during August, as compared with August last year and in 1920, were:—

1922	£60,032,237
1921	£51,346,307
1920	£114,903,335

Re-exports for the same periods were:—

1922	£7,503,925
1921	£9,997,779
1920	£13,368,347

Total exports for August of 1922, 1921, and 1920 were:—

1922	£67,536,162
1921	£61,344,086
1920	£128,271,682

IRISH NATIONAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

An extraordinary general meeting of the above company was held yesterday at the head office, 30 College Green, Dublin—the chairman, Mr. Lawrence Casey, presiding.

A resolution was proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. Eamon O Duibhir, organising manager, and passed unanimously to the effect that it appears to the meeting that it would be convenient and advantageous to the company to combine the business of Employers' Liability Insurance with the various other insurance business carried on by the company, and the directors were authorised to do all things necessary to have the alteration sanctioned by the Court, and the necessary deposit of £20,000 made with the Accountant-General.

This resolution will be submitted for confirmation as a special resolution to a second extraordinary general meeting, which will be held at the head office on Tuesday, 3rd October, 1922, at 12 o'clock.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

Catalogues comprising 12,508 bales of wool consisting of 8,979 bales privately owned wool, and 3,529 bales on account of B.A.W.R. Association, Ltd., were brought forward last evening. There was again excellent competition, and very full prices were paid for all fine wools. The coarser lots of greasy cross-breds, however, showed some irregularity. Sales close on Friday next.

It is reported that the mixed Boundary Commission for Russia, Ukraine, and Poland has arrived at complete agreement, and the boundary from the Dvina to the Dniester has finally been defined.

LOST GERMAN LINER.

TERRIFIED PASSENGERS JUMP OVERBOARD.

The Union Castle steamer, Kinfauns Castle, with 377 survivors of the ill-fated German steamer, Hammonia, on board, arrived at Southampton early yesterday morning. They included men, women, and children of many nationalities, Germans and Spaniards preponderating. They all looked well and happy at their providential deliverance, and revealed few traces of the hardships and peril that many of them had undergone. Moreover, they were full of gratitude towards the gallant captain, officers, and crew of the Kinfauns Castle.

Captain Hoefer, of the Hammonia, said that he left Vigo with 365 passengers and 192 officers and crew. A strong wind was encountered, which increased in violence, until a perfect hurricane was blowing. Huge waves broke over the vessel, which gradually began to take a list to starboard. Captain Hoefer was loud in his praises of Captain Day and the crew of the Kinfauns Castle.

Captain Day stated that when the Kinfauns Castle arrived on the scene they saw many submerged lifeboats and rafts, with people clinging to them. Six boats were sent away from the Kinfauns Castle, and rescue work was carried out under great difficulties. It was terrible to see the women and children struggling in the water. He estimated that 50 or 60 lives were lost before they arrived.

Mr. Jubb, a passenger, stated that the sea was running mountains high, and passengers on deck chairs were rolled right over. Several lifeboats were launched, and one capsized. Many on the Hammonia jumped overboard in sheer terror, including women and babies. A Spanish lady tied four babies together in the hope that they would float and be saved, but he believed that they were drowned.

There was one Englishman aboard the ill-fated vessel, Mr. Wm. H. Jubb, a Yorkshireman from Barnsley, now residing at Gravesend, who was proceeding to Mexico. Fellow-passengers said that he behaved with great gallantry in helping women and children. "He has helped us by being an Englishman," said one lady, with tears in her eyes. "He is a real gentleman."

Dr. Ludger Forest (Liberal), the only candidate for election as member of Sherbrooke County in the Quebec Legislature, was returned by acclamation.

P. J. BYRNE'S SALES.

VALUABLE, WELL-ESTABLISHED AND SPLENDIDLY-SITUATED SEVEN-DAY FULLY-LICENSED PREMISES, 11 NORTH WALL, DUBLIN.

TO BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION (if not previously Sold by Private Treaty) at 8 PARLIAMENT STREET, DUBLIN, on WEDNESDAY, the 20th SEPTEMBER, 1922, at 1.30 o'clock, per instructions of the Owner Mr. Hendrick, who is going abroad.

The above Premises are held under Lease or Sub-Lease for 200 years from the 1st May, 1835, subject to the reduced rent of £71 1s. 0d. per annum, provided the covenants and conditions contained in said Lease on the Lessee's part are performed and observed.

The Premises comprise handsome four-storey structure, containing an extensive Shop, tastefully fitted up and suitably appointed. There is a good and extensive Cellarage.

The Dwelling Portion of the Premises is exceptionally good, consisting of drawingroom, diningroom, four bedrooms, w.c., kitchen, with a separate entrance. There is electric light throughout.

The Vendor expended a considerable sum in improvements within the last five months. The trading is substantial, and capable of considerable further development. The situation is a most favourable one for extensive trading and the erection of buildings on lands adjacent (now in contemplation) should further enhance the value of these Premises.

Conditions of Sale from
